Morgenthau Acts to Head Off Forced Bond Buying

Tells House Group Treasury Prefers 'To Ring Door Bells,' Has Plan to Do So

With a new program of anti-inflationary taxes apparently sidetracked by the Administration, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday moved to head off counterplans for compulsory bond sales or forced loans.

Morgenthau led a delegation of General Motors officials before the House Ways and Means Committee to outline a voluntary system for marketing defense bonds. He told the committee the Treasury would ring doorbells once a month to avoid resort to compulsion.

Morgenthau, in the face of progressively declining defense bond sales since the first of the year, said the Treasury was mapping an intensive sales drive, and would proceed on the voluntary basis "unless Congress directs us to do otherwise."

On Quota Basis

"We have a plan now whereby we hope to fix a definite amount for every county and town in the Nation," the Treasury Secretary said. "We expect to ring every doorbell once a month."

A member of the committee asked him what he would do about "slacker dollars" and Morgenthau replied that he did not propose "to paint any houses yellow or put people behind barbed wires."

"When you have true voluntary cooperation, you can't have coercion," he said.

Earlier he told a press conference that he was "in tune" with the President in giving the committee a demonstration of the value of voluntary bond marketing methods.

"We have weighed the voluntary plan as against forced savings, and definitely prefer the voluntary," he testified.

Under questioning by Representative Robertson (Democrat), of Virginia, Morgenthau said he would keep earlier promises to come back in July if voluntary purchases failed.

Morgenthau's appearance, with a White House green light, followed a three-cornered contest between two factions in the Administration and Congressional taxing committees, on proposals to nearly double the pending seven billion dollar tax program as an inflation control measure.

Favored By Henderson

Price Administrator Leon Henderson, Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, and Budget Director Smith have reportedly favored a large increase in the tax program, while Morgenthau held out against it at this time. Despairing of augumenting the revenue load Congressional tax spokesmen suggested Congress would be more likely to favor a forced saving plan, which would pay back part of the new levies in non-negotiable, non-interest bearing bonds, redeemable after the war.

The President last weekend is reported to have decided with Morgenthau and the Congressional group against an immediate steep increase in the tax program, but sentiment for the forced-saving plan remained. The President conferred with Chairman Doughton of the Ways and Means Committee on Wednesday, and Morgenthau was given the "go ahead" to present yes-

U. S. Sugar Ration Will Be One-Half Pound Per Week

The Government announced yesterday that the Nation's first sugar ration allowance would be half a pound a week per person.

This quota will apply to the first two months of rationing, which is scheduled to begin sometime between May 4-7—the period during which all citizens must register and obtain books of ration stamps.

Under present plans, each ration stamp will be good for two weeks and stamp number one will permit purchase of one pound of sugar, OPA said. The ration allowance might be changed for each two weeks later, depending upon available sugar supplies.

At the same time, in a pamphlet of official instructions covering sugar rationing, OPA urged citizens to be careful of "war ration book number one," and the 28 stamps it contains since "it may, at a later time, be necessary to use it for other commodities if they are rationed."

Admit Perjury

Frameup Tale Fake, Ewing Witnesses Say

The United States attorney's office was seeking last night to identify a mysterious "Frank," named in District Court yesterday as the man who engineered a false "frame-up" story introduced last month in hearings on Orman W. Ewing's motion for a new trial.

Two men who testified on March 11 that a star prosecution witness had asked their help in framing Ewing—convicted in February for the rape of a 19-year-old Government girl—yesterday confessed on the witness stand that they had been lying.

Stating that he had deceived Ewing's lawyers and family with his tale of being approached, Raymond Hager, one of the pair, asserted that he had been drawn into the plot by a man whom he knew only as "Frank."

He claimed that the man had tricked him into signing a false statement concerning Robert Payne, boy friend of the girl Ewing attacked. Under threat of being prosecuted for this false statement, he continued, he had been more deeply enmeshed and had gone on to swear falsely to the story of being propositioned.

Hager admitted that he had brought the other witness, Kenneth Miller, of Huntington, W. Va., into

Senate to Get Moderate Bill On War Labor

Subcommittee Acts To Forestall Harsher Connally Measure

Taken to President

OPPOSITION of C. I. O. and A. F. L. to freezing or stabilization of wages is carried to President. Page 4.

Ball Plan Redrafted

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

After months of uncompromising opposition to war labor legislation, the Senate Education and Labor Committee yesterday considered "moderate" action to stabilize wages, restrict wartime extension of the closed shop and tighten machinery for mediation of disputes.

A completely new draft of the Ball bill, designed to end labor strife for the duration by procedural methods, was prepared by a subcommittee and will be submitted to the full committee for approval on Monday morning.

The committee is expected to move a bill to the Senate floor coincident with the drive for more drastic legislation. A motion to call up the Connally plant-seizure measure is the special order of Senate business on Monday. The substitute move would reach the floor at the same time.

Opens Up Whole Field

The Connally bill itself merely freezes labor relations in plants taken over by the Government because of management or labor holdups, but his motion opens up the whole field of labor legislation and sweeping amendments were expected to be offered.

It is into this Senate melee for labor legislation that the Senate Labor Committee compromise would be dropped, probably as a complete substitute for the Connally measure.

Revised by Senator Ball (Republican), of Minnesota, following conferences with Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, the bill received a subcommittee going over yesterday and apparently was ready to report.

The War Labor Board would be continued as a mediation agency and the conciliation service would likewise be retained. But over these

Baxter Balks At Naming Revolt Chiefs

Pleads It Would Violate 'Soci' Law, Then Agrees to Tell The Grand Jury

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

David Baxter, pro-Nazi Californian, yesterday defied the special grand jury on Axis agents, and refused to name the leaders of a secret band which is plotting for an armed revolution in the United States.

Baxter said it would be against the "Soci" law—the proposed regulations of the Social Republic Society—for him to tell the names.

But he gave in, after Justice F. Dickinson Letts warned that he would go to jail for contempt of court if he kept on defying the grand jury.

Insists on Secrecy

Grudgingly, the stocky pamphleteer promised to answer the questions asked by Special Prosecutors William Power Maloney and John T. M. Reddan. But he would do so, he stipulated, only in the secrecy of the grand jury room.

Under the command of Assistant Attorney General Wendell Berge, chief of the criminal division, the prosecutors are investigating defeatist publications—their backing, Congressional connections and suspected enemy inspiration, or control. Attorney General Biddle gave orders for firm action if evidence were found.

Summoned last week, Baxter was called into the grand jury chambers yesterday. About an hour later Foreman John S. Gorrell ordered the man taken before Justice Letts.

Prosecutor Maloney told the court that Baxter was another of a "monotonous procession" of witnesses who were lawfully summoned but deliberately refused to reply to proper questions asked before the grand jury.

Admits Mailing Literature

Maloney said Baxter admitted that he was the man who sent out the "special bulletin" in which the hidden leadership of the Socis warned their followers to lay up guns and ammunition. The American people—said the Soci bulletin—never would know who was leading the secret band which was going to grab control of an imminent revolution.

"I might add your honor," said Maloney, "that the wrapper contained also the familiar reprint from the Congressional Record—this time a speech of Representative Clare E. Hoffman."

The prosecutor showed the court a copy of Hoffman's "Roosevelt Is a Judas" speech, of which 145,000 copies were printed. Some of them went to Baxter.

Maloney pointed out that the Soci bulletins contained high praise for Robert Noble, the Los Angeles pro-Nazi now in jail on a sedition charge; for Edward James Smythe, the New York anti-Catholic pro-Nazi agitator, who has been accused of supplying data to Representative Hoffman; and for Charles B. Hudson, the anti-British, Omaha Jew-baiter, who was jailed last week for refusing to tell who printed a seditious card he mailed out with the Hoffman "Roosevelt Is a Judas" speech. Hudson later told and went free, after five days in jail.

Testimony Is Read

Arthur G. Previn, the official reporter, took the witness stand and read from his notes of Baxter's testimony, under Maloney's questions.

Mother Feared Boy-Killer Was Subnormal, Police Data Shows

Richard L. Wilhite, 17-year-old theater usher, who looked like a "nice boy," early yesterday confessed to police that he had ravished and killed Madeline Matthes, 25, a sedate missionary for Jehovah's Witnesses.

The fleeting mystery as to the killer thus was solved, but there promised to be repercussions from the crime that might have a strong bearing on Washington's system for handling juvenile delinquents.

Young Wilhite, police records disclosed, had run away from home ten times since August, 1940. His mother, according to one detective, had said she thought he was "mentally deficient" and had planned to have him examined by a psychiatrist at Gallinger Hospital.

Yet the youth was at large, sitting alone in the Wilhite apartment at 1422 N Street Northwest, when Miss Matthes knocked at the door at 8 o'clock Wednesday night. She carried a batch of religious pamphlets and also some Jehovah's Witnesses' phonograph records. She wanted to play these for the youth's mother, Mrs. Edna W. Wilhite, a

Japs Invade Island of Panay Under Cover of Ships, Planes

Post Staff Writer

Japanese troops, landing in force under cover of bombers and warships, have invaded the rich island of Panay in the central Philippines, the War Department announced last night.

Eight transports, probably carrying a thousand or more soldiers each, put men ashore near Iloilo, an important port on the south side of the island, and near Capiz, on Panay's northern coast, early yesterday.

American-Filipino forces on the island—small units of Philippine Scouts and Commonwealth Army troops—are "in contact with the enemy," the War Department communique said. No details of the fighting were immediately available, however.

Panay, a rich sugar-producing island near Cebu—where heavy fighting is still under way—is the eighth Philippine island invaded by the Japanese. The others are Luzon, Cebu, Mindanao, Jolo, Mindoro, Masbate and Lubang.

Meanwhile, Corregidor and the other Manila Bay forts continued under heavy attack, but their big guns also "dished it out."

Yesterday morning's Army communique told of Jap troop concentrations and truck columns on Bataan Peninsula being smashed by shells from the forts Wednesday. Enemy ammunition dumps there were blown up and many Japs are believed to have been killed.

Last night the War Department reported that as the result of the heavy pounding the American forts had given the enemy batteries in Bataan and Cayite, some apparently have been put out of action, as their fire had substantially decreased.

Japanese Pour Into Burma, Peril Chinese

Troopships Sighted; Flanks of Stilwell's Forces Threatened

By the Associated Press

Chungking, China, April 16.—The Japanese were pouring fresh divisions which may total upward of 80,000 men into the Burma campaign tonight and expending ammunition on a huge scale in a massive attempt to complete the conquest of the Kipling country and shut China off from the United Nations before the May monsoon gives the nearly exhausted defenders relief.

In the last four days R. A. F. reconnaissance planes have spotted 40 Japanese troopships off Rangoon, all presumably carrying reinforcements for the Burma battle, and there were some reports that these involved 5½ divisions.

(Earlier estimates have placed the strength of the Japanese force already in Burma at three divisions; thus if the 5½ division estimate is correct the total force involved could approach 150,000.)

Chinese Positions Shelled

In the middle of the Sittang River sector of the battlefront, one of the two held by parts of the Chinese Fifth and Sixth armies under U. S. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, the Japanese were throwing between 2000 and 3000 shells a day into the main Chinese positions, now established

Cocoa, Fla., April 16.—A neutral Swedish freighter, caught in the crossfire of two Axis submarines, was riddled by shells off the Atlantic Coast Monday while helpless survivers of a sunken American vessel looked on from a tossing lifeboat, the men from the two ships related today.

[In the third submarine attack on merchant ships announced by the Navy during the day a machine-gun crew aboard an American freighter shot the periscope off an attacking submarine but the freighter was sunk, nevertheless. Survivors reaching New York revealed that apparently seven lives had been lost in the attack.—Editor's Note.]

Survivors Tell of Gun Flashes

Nine men, including the captain, were missing from the Swedish ship when survivors of the 26-man crew landed here. Twenty-seven were saved from the American vessel, one was known dead and four missing. Both were small vessels, the Navy announced.

Survivors told how the flashes from deck guns of the submarines pierced the blackness of night, firing on the Swedish ship despite a large

Diversion Effort

By the Associated Press

London, April 16.—R. A. F. planes by the hundreds swarmed across the Channel today to blast at Nazi-occupied France and carry on the British nonstop offensive in what appeared to be the greatest mass daylight sweep by either Britain or Germany in this war.

The air ministry disclosed that more than 400 fighters alone took part in the day's onslaught. In addition, bomb-carrying Hurricanes took part in two attacks, and in others clouds of fighters escorted American-made Boston (Douglas) bombers.

Le Havre and Dunkerque Hit

Five and probably six Axis fighters were shot down; two British planes failed to return from the daylight forays, aimed at such targets as the power station and docks at the great port of Le Havre, the railway sidings and blackened piers of Dunkerque. In the Channel a 200-ton German motor torpedo boat was raked by cannon and machine-gun fire by a British pilot who dived until his plane almost touched the waves.

The Bostons scored four direct hits on Le Havre power station, the Air Ministry said, and their bombs also hit dock gates, barges and a warehouse in operations described officially as "superb."

People on the Kentish coast said the roar of the British planes eclipsed that of the German air force at the height of the Battle of Britain a year and a half ago, when Germany sent more than 500 fighters and bombers hurtling toward England in a single day.

This evening, on the third day of the R. A. F.'s own dawn-through-darkness onslaught, more strong formations of Spitfires crossed the water before dusk while many other squadrons were returning from the direction of Boulogne and Calais, still flying in perfect formation.

Ruhr Also Bombed

A Wednesday night assault on the Ruhr, the seventh in less than two weeks, was accompanied by raids on the docks at St. Nazaire and Le Havre—the former the scene of the recent spectacular British naval commando raid that heavily damaged the harbor—and on Nazi airdromes spread out through the Low Countries.

In these raids four British planes were lost.

The Germans for their part struck back with a raid on a northeast England town in which at least 12 persons, five of them babies, were reported killed and many other persons injured.

Nazi raiders also machine-gunned

Relations between America and Vichy were at the breaking point last night on basis of official expectation here that Pierre Laval will attempt to lead France back into the Second World War through an effort to regain portions of the colonial empire seized by the Free French.

The United States, it was learned on highest authority, expects Laval to do all in his power for a German victory. President Roosevelt and Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles have determined not to do business with a French government dominated by the Axis collaborationist Laval.

Fires of Revolt Flare as Laval Takes Reins

Troop Train Derailed; Nazi Sentry Shot, Another Disarmed

By Ralph Heinzen
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, April 16.—Pierre Laval, the Franco-German collaborationist, mapped out a new government today, with himself as premier, while police guarded him from a huge crowd in the streets and a fresh wave of terrorism, including a German troop train derailment that killed 44 persons, swept through occupied France.

His mind apparently made up on the composition of his new cabinet, Laval arrived from German-occupied Paris shortly after noon, was escorted into conferences with Chief of State Marshal Petain and Vice Admiral Darlan, and it was announced tonight that the council of ministers—the ruling governmental body—will meet for the last time tomorrow prior to the formation of a new regime.

Many New Faces Expected

It was believed that Laval would assume the ministries of foreign affairs, interior and propaganda and that there would be more new faces than old ones in his cabinet. Either Petain or Laval will announce the cabinet list in a radio speech tomorrow or Saturday, it was reported.

Laval went to his Chateldon Chateau for the night and will return at 9 a. m. Friday.

Simultaneously, news of outbreaks in the occupied zone began pouring in. A train carrying German troops on leave was derailed by saboteurs near Caens, in Normandy, and the casualty list was estimated at 44. At Lens, north of Paris, civilians overpowered a German sentry and took his rifle. At Lillers, in the northern industrial basin near Bethune, a bomb was thrown. At Mericourt, near Vimy, French cyclists shot a German soldier who tried to stop them. In Paris two hand grenades wrapped in newspapers were thrown into German headquarters. It was announced that there were no casualties at the Paris headquarters.

[The Associated Press reported three forest fires have broken out near Paris and in Southern France "in circumstances which remain unknown." The most spectacular fire was said to be still raging in the famous Fontainebleau forest

French military and naval efforts to recapture former possessions now held by the Free French would bring Laval's forces into the American orbit—since the Free French hold the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off Newfoundland and well inside the Western Hemisphere. Such an eventuality almost certainly would bring the first break in American-French relations in history, if not actual conflict.

Officials Expect Worst

Pessimistic officials here made no efforts to minimize the dangers of the situation. It was pointed out that bad as is the United States-Vichy situation, it is even more grave when considered only as a single segment of Adolf Hitler's long anticipated spring smash to win the world or lose everything. Diplomatic circles here feared that the coming weekend might develop the jump-off of Hitler's smash amid events of world-shaking importance.

Vichy and the United States came to a stalemate last night during an hour's conference between Welles and the Ambassador of unoccupied France, Gaston Henry-Haye. Henry-Haye presented France's rejection of America's explanation of this country's consular recognition of Free French forces in French Equatorial Africa. Welles, speaking for the United States, told Henry-Haye that he could not accept this viewpoint.

When the florid little Frenchman emerged from Welles' office at 7:05 p. m., it was obvious that relations between this country and Vichy were hanging by the slenderest of threads.

"I informed the Secretary," he said, "that this note could not be received by the French government—part of the note was not acceptable by my government. The Secretary said he could not accept the viewpoint I was expressing. So, as you Americans say, we were playing ball.

"This long, cordial relationship is to my sense very useful to both

President Issues Statement Today; Press Parley Off

The White House announced last night that President Roosevelt would issue a statement at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

At the same time, it was stated that the President's usual Friday morning press conference would be canceled.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early, who made the brief announcement, declined to give any hint as to the content of today's statement.

Unofficial speculation on its nature included these possibilities:

A declaration of American policy toward the new Vichy government, formal announcement of the scope of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command in the Southwest Pacific, an executive order affecting wages and prices to halt inflation, a possible cabinet reorganization, an announcement of plans and the creation of a new agency for man power mobilization.

By Robert De Vore

The chairman of the board of Carboloy Co., Inc., a General Electric Co. subsidiary, yesterday admitted before the Senate Patents Committee that his firm, with the assistance of its huge industrial parent and a patent alliance with the Krupp interests in Germany, operated a monopoly in tungsten carbide, a steel-cutting material on the critical list of the War Production Board.

The admission, however, was accompanied by a declaration by Dr. Zay Jeffries, the board chairman, that the monopoly resulted from the lawful exercise of rights under patents covering tungsten carbide production.

The Carboloy-General Electric tieup with the Krupp munitions manufacturers is the subject of a Department of Justice anti-trust indictment scheduled for trial in 60 days.

Jeffries also pronounced "without foundation" charges leveled by

Reds Win Spring's First Major Battle

OFF Report

Nazis Speed 'Win-or-Die' Drive Plans

The Nazis are gathering their resources, after a morale-shaking winter, to "stake the fate of the Axis on a final grand offensive before cold weather sets in again," the Office of Facts and Figures reported last night.

This picture of the spring and summer of 1942 was fitted together, the agency said, from European broadcasts recorded by the Foreign Broadcast Monitoring Service.

Through the controlled radio and press, Hitler is conducting a "high pressure recruiting campaign for soldiers for the new offensive," it was said, and is forcing the Axis partners and satellites to do the same. Ranks of the storm troopers, Hitler's elite corps, have been opened to 17-year-olds and to recruits of "unproven political reliability."

Other signs of the preparation picked up by short-wave were "the stern tone of Goebbels' articles in 'Das Reich,' in the Nazi-inspired protestations of loyalty by satellite nations, in the extreme political activity of Nazi diplomats, in news of transportation shortages, tightened control over food, raw materials and labor, and in the stream of propaganda pressure directed at neutral countries."

Undertones of irritability and a theme of "Victory or Annihilation" mark the Nazi propaganda for home consumption, the agency said.

This quotation from Goebbles, the German propaganda minister, was offered as typical:

"That which does not contribute to victory is unessential. What is necessary must be done quickly, otherwise it is often too late. Jettison everything that is not contributing to victory."

2 Nazi Commands Crushed in Drive On Vital Stronghold

By the United Press

Kuibyshev, April 16. — Elite guardsmen of the Red army have repulsed 30 powerful German counterattacks on the central front and are advancing over melting snow fields strewn with thousands of corpses toward a river guarding a vital enemy stronghold, Russian military sources reported tonight.

The sanguinary fighting on a broad front, in which the commands of two German generals were crushed despite a frantic bringing-up of reinforcements, was described as "the first major battle this spring," suggesting that Adolf Hitler finally had given the go-ahead for his long-awaited spring offensive.

There were other signs of increased action in the brief period of firm footing between the winter snows and the spring slush as front line reports told of the Russians fighting in the outskirts of a "big town" on the Bryansk front southwest of Moscow. Bryansk is a city of 400,000.

City Entered, London Hears

(The London radio said the Russians were fighting in Bryansk, near which the Germans were said to have abandoned 12 more fortified villages and still were falling back.)

(The night communique from Moscow said the Red army killed more than 2000 German troops on the Leningrad front in the last two days, captured a fortified locality on the Northwestern Front, repulsed a counterattack on the Kalinin Front, and in a night attack took an important defensive position on the Central Front.)

The Germans were said to have abandoned their fortified positions at dozens of points on the Bryansk Front under unremitting Red army pressure.

Air Activity Increased

Air activity also mounted, especially in the Murmansk sector where with improving weather the Germans were pounding at the port through which British and American supplies enter Russia by the northern route.

The big battle of the Central Front capped with a Soviet victory menacing a German position of extreme strategic importance, was fought on a field of crumbling snow which, as it melted, bared the bodies of invasion troops slain during the winter.

The Russian struck through the positions of Gen. Haekel, who had ordered three regiments of the 263d Division into a wave of counterattacks, which failed. Then he ordered up a battalion of engineers and his remaining reserves. Failing to stem the Russian attacks, Haekel sent an urgent call to the rear for more reserves, who were flung precipitately into the battle as fast as they clamberid from their trucks.

Altogether Haekel attempted 18 counterattacks, sustaining thousands of casualties, Red army reports said.

In an adjoining sector, Gen. Kreiner Kareps threw in the 280th and 449th Regiments and their reserves, including engineers. Twelve counterattacks failed, and the Germans sent up two more regiments plus eight reserve battalions in a desperate effort to block the Russians from the water barrier guarding the German base.

(A British military commentator said the weather on the Central Front should permit big-scale operations shortly before May 15, on the Southern Front a few days later, and in the Murmansk area about the end of May.)

A Tass news agency review said that in nine months of war the Russians had "annihilated" a majority of the 34,000 to 36,000 German flying personnel trained before the war.

[The other two fires were reported in the Senart forest and at Collobrieres, in Southern France, where 1000 acres were devastated.

[A further reflection of the French state of mind in the occupied zone was a story in the London Daily Herald which said that during the recent British Commando raid on St. Nazaire many Frenchmen, thinking it was the prelude to a continental invasion, "ran out of their houses with any weapons they could collect—guns, clubs, knives—and attacked Germans in the streets."

[As many as 800 Frenchmen were executed later by the Nazis for this assistance to the British, the Herald said].

After a preliminary conference with Petain, Laval met again this afternoon with the marshal and Vice Admiral Darlan, whose position in the new government is still obscure, but who at last reports was slated to retain his role as designated successor to Petain and commander of the armed forces. It was reported that Darlan might be named "admiral of France," a title corresponding to field marshal in the army.

A decree by Petain published in the official journal today, ordered Darlan maintained in active service for life, instead of being retired on reaching the age limit. It said that Darlan, now 61, will have the "title and prerogatives of admiral of the fleet."

[A communique issued tonight, according to the Associated Press, said merely: "Marshal Petain received M. Le President Laval this morning. In the afternoon the marshal conferred again with Admiral of the Fleet Darlan and M. Le President Laval. They exchanged views on the political situation. Before constitution of the new government the council of ministers will meet for the last time tomorrow."

[M. Le President is the courtesy title for all former premiers.]

Laval's son-in-law, Count Rene de Chambrun, and Fernand de Brinon, Vichy delegate to Paris, accompanied him here.

Vichy was in the throes of its greatest excitement in 16 months, since Laval was ousted from the government. Crowds filled the park and the streets around the Hotel du Parc and police kept them at a considerable distance.

French Colonial Africa was vitally concerned in the negotiations here and a dispatch from Casablanca said Governor-General Pierre Boisson, high commissioner for West Africa, had arrived by plane from Vichy, conferred with Gen. August Nogues, resident general of Morocco, and had continued to Dakar.

(Russian newspapers expressed grave concern over the fate of the French fleet. Kuibyshev dispatches quoted the Communist organ Pravda as saying, "Hitler had no time to wait for the senile Petain to hand over France on a platter with her fleet and African bases. The ground is burning under Hitler's feet . . . He has no time for masquerades . . . The dirtier Hitler's pawn the better and there is no one dirtier in France than Laval." Ilya Ehrenbourg, Soviet war correspondent, was quoted as writing in the Krasnaya Zvezda: "The fate of French warships now depends not on Vichy policy but on the courage and patriotism of French seamen . . . One should believe now that the naval gate of Marseille will be closed and Germany will no longer receive smuggled presents from overseas.")

Watching every development from his desk in the United States Embassy was Admiral William D. Leahy, who has not called on Petain or Darlan since the crisis broke.

areas along the southern English coast, inflicting a small number of casualties.

A train standing in the station was among the targets raked by the low sweeping Nazi airmen. The fireman was wounded but the passengers escaped injury.

The growing weight of the British daylight sweeps was seen by competent observers as an effort to force the Germans to disperse fighter plane strength which otherwise could be used in Russia or the Mediterranean.

The role of the new Bostons today indicated they might be what the British had long sought—a high-speed attack bomber to replace some older types whose slowness has made them easy targets.

Churchill to Give Commons Secret Report on War Outlook

By the United Press

London, April 16.—Prime Minister Churchill will make a secret report to Commons on war strategy as soon as he completes his conferences with Gen. George C. Marshall and Harry L. Hopkins, American munitions controller, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden announced today.

Eden spoke in Commons while Churchill, Marshall and Hopkins met again in what was believed to have been one of their final conferences on the prospects for opening a second land front against Germany.

Observers said the coming secret session, at which Churchill reports, will be one of the most important in British history.

An editorial in the Evening Star praised Churchill's decision not to make his report public.

The newspaper said that the American officials had demonstrated in their public statements that they were "realists with offensive minds."

Meanwhile, Commons approved without a record vote government proposals for the 1943 budget. Samuel Hammersley, a conservative, paid tribute to the United States' huge lend-lease contributions.

"There has been much talk in past times about the almighty dollar," he said, "but that great country has shown that they can use their mighty dollar for munificent objectives and for the interests of the world."

countries," Henry-Haye continued. "France has done everything possible to keep them alive despite all the troubles and miseries and probably will continue to do so until the very last."

Citizens Advised to Return

Earlier yesterday, Welles had confirmed that American consular officials have renewed their suggestions that United States citizens in unocccupied France return to this country. Welles, however, insisted that this warning had no direct connection with the Laval crisis and that it was routine rather than extraordinary.

In the background of the American fears were the Vichy-held possessions at the very back door of the United States—Martinique and Guadeloupe in the Caribbean and French Guiana on the shoulder of South America. American troops already are in Surinam or Dutch Guiana, next door to French Guiana, and a highly responsible source said that America will not hesitate to take action at Martinique should its good judgment show that action is necessary.

The policy-making officials here were viewing events in Vichy and Paris with cold realism, and there was no disposition to view Laval as anything but an opportunist who is prepared to lead France into active collaboration with Germany in an effort to defeat the United Nations and win victory for the Axis. It was disclosed that highest officials here have determined not to permit Laval to maintain relations with the United States on the basis which was permitted the government of Marshal Philippe Petain, whom Laval has shoved into the discard.

It was learned that the United States is anticipating the following quick developments after Laval organizes his government:

1. He will attempt, for the benefit of French public opinion, to maintain relations with the United States similar to those maintained by Marshal Petain. He will not be permitted to accomplish this objective.

2. He will attempt to recapture, by military and naval force if necessary, French possessions now held by the Free French. These include St. Pierre and Miquelon, French Equatorial Africa, Cameroons, New Caledonia in the southwest Pacific and Syria.

3. He will take every step within his power to contribute toward an ultimate German victory on the premise that unless Germany wins, he, himself, is doomed.

4. He will use the strong police forces now at his dispotal to purge army and navy officers who are not entirely loyal from his point of view.

The anticipated attempt of the Laval-dominated France to recapture possessions by force has tremendous implications for the United States.

French Equatorial Africa lies along the ferry route which American bombers are being sent to the Middle East, Far East and India.

The New Caledonia Islands lie athwart America's communications lines and supply routes to the Australia war theater.

Syria is dynamically important in view of the expected attempt of Hitler to crash through to the Middle East this spring.

Martinique, Guadeloupe and French Guiana, strategic positions in the Caribbean and South America, still are in the hands of Vichy officials. They, therefore, would not be included in any military effort launched by Laval.

But authoritative sources said that if at any time in the judgment of the United States action is necessary in the case of Martinique, the United States will not hesitate to act.

U. S. Fliers Use Secret Bases In Philippines

By Clark Lee
Associated Press Staff Writer

United States Army Headquarters in Australia, April 16.—Proving that the Philippines are not yet lost, it was disclosed today that the American bombers which spread destruction and dismay among the Japanese early this week used a secret, fighter-guarded base deep in the islands and provisioned it in expectation of returning again and again.

Ten B-25's and three B-17's made the raid. One B-17 was destroyed on the ground by the Japanese, but its crew of 10 was brought back in the other planes along with 34 soldiers and civilians who had made their way out of such places as Corregidor and Bataan.

The unfolding story of the 4000-mile American exploit showed clearly that it was only an opening, although highly effective, step in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's promised campaign to drive the Japanese out of the Philippines.

War Tide Is Turning

Australian Prime Minister John Curtin hailed the exploit of Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce and his men as indication that the war tide was turning.

Gen. Royce, who volunteered to lead the expedition, gave these details of the bold, significant exploit:

"It was a field day for two days. . . . Something in the nature of a picnic.

"We left our Australian squadron base at 1 a. m. Saturday, refueled farther on, and took off under cover of American fighters at 10:30 and flew straight into the Philippines.

"I went up in a B-17 and came back in a B-25, and did some piloting both ways. On way back one of our engines was out for three hours.

Slept Under Planes

"We got into our base in the Philippines at dark Saturday and prepared for our missions. Everyone slept right under the planes.

"Sunday morning we sent two bombers toward Manila. One sank a transport near Batangas and came home. The other flew over Corregidor and then bombed Nichols Field.

"The third (B-17) had to have an engine changed and was spotted on the ground by a Jap reconnaissance plane that the soldiers call 'Photo Joe.'

"Soon dive-bombers appeared, single-float Navy jobs which buzzed around at 2500 feet and started to pick at the bomber. It was most insulting.

"The other heavy bombers had returned and were refueling when the Japs hit the grounded bomber, blew her up and damaged the other two.

"We worked all night to repair those two, got into the air at 5 a. m. and got them home all right.

"Meanwhile the other bombers also were seeing action.

"Sunday morning we sent them against Cebu from two directions. They knocked out a transport and set docks afire and when they returned they went to dispersed positions which the Japanese never found.

"On Monday morning our infantry at Davao made an attack and I sent the bombers to smash Japanese troop concentrations, airports and installations to Davao harbor.

"They destroyed at least one bomber on the ground and I think a lot more and shot down one float plane.

"They again raided Davao and Cebu Monday evening and found the morning fires still burning. They returned to our main airport, refueled and at 1 a. m., Tuesday, took off for home."

In all the Americans dumped 110 tons of bombs on the astounded Japanese.

Royce, it was disclosed today, was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, as were Lieut. Col. John Hubert Davies and Capt. Frank P. Bostrom.

'More Than 100'

House Passes Bill to Double Sub Fleet

By the Associated Press

Determined to beat the enemy at his own game, the House passed yesterday legislation calling for a vast expansion of the United States submarine fleet, at an estimated cost of 900 million dollars.

Without an opposing vote it sent to the Senate the bill of Representative Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia, to provide for immediate construction of an additional 200,000 tons of undersea craft.

Vinson, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, said he could not, for reasons of military expediency, disclose how many submersibles would be constructed under the new program, but earlier he had said "more than 100" would be built.

This number probably would come close to doubling the size and torpedo strength of the existing sub fleet. Vinson said members of the committee knew "how many submarines we need" and added they are being built now "faster than ever before."

The chairman indicated that the new fleet was intended to combat Axis activities in the Atlantic, where United Nations shipping losses have been heaviest.

"The war in the Pacific," he commented, "looks like an aviation war, but the war in the Atlantic looks like a submarine war."

"Experience in this war has demonstrated the extreme need for submarines." Minority Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, told the House.

"At least 1000 first-class submarines are necessary," asserted Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi.

Prompt Senate approval of the bill was taken for granted.

Two Destroyers Launched, Third Is Commissioned

New York, April 16 (INS).—East coast shipyards beat the time schedule again today with the launching of two destroyers and the commissioning of a third.

At Boston, the Bennett and the Fullam slid down the ways four months and six days after their keels were laid—setting what is believed to be a new construction record.

In the navy yard at Brooklyn, the U. S. S. Duncan was commissioned less than two months after its launching at Kearny, N. J. The commissioning was five months ahead of schedule.

nounced the sinking of the 840-ton minesweeper Finch by the Japanese bombers pounding Corregidor.

One of the vessels formerly used to carry supplies from the island arsenal to the troops on Bataan, the vessel went down "during the past few days," the Navy said. There was no loss of life.

Loss of the 25-year-old craft, brought to 30 the total number of American naval vessels destroyed by all causes since the war began. It was the fifth ship lost in the Manila area.

There were five air raids on Corregidor Wednesday, the War Department said, and several more yesterday. One of the island's sharp-shooting gunners hit a high-flying Jap bomber yesterday and probably accounted for it. When last seen it was rapidly losing altitude.

During the week following the fall of Bataan, April 9 through 15, there were 65 air raids on Corregidor. Since the war started, the citadel has been bombed more than 200 times. A total of 206 air raid alarms have been listed, and often repeated raids have been made before the "all clear" was sounded.

"Despite the almost constant bombing," the War Department said, "the damage to military installations has been relatively slight, and the morale of the troops is unimpaired."

The late communique also told of "substantial enemy losses" resulting from raids by American-Filipino forces in Mindanao. Patrols took a toll of the Japs near Digos on Davao Gulf and Monsaya in Zamboanga, both on the island of Mindanao.

Occupation of Iloilo on Panay by the Japs, marked the fall of the last important city of the Philippines to the enemy. Fifth city of the islands, it had a population of 88,000 before the war.

Panay, fourth island of the archipelago, and one of the richest, has an area of 4448 square miles. The American gunboat Panay, sunk "by mistake" by Japanese bombers in the Shanghai, December 13, 1937, was named for the island.

Jap Ships Disturb India's Lethargy

Attacks Bring Realization Nation Is in War Zone

By Preston Grover
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi, India, April 16.—With Japanese warships churning the waters along much of the coastline, India is rising slowly from long years of lethargy to recognition that it is a war zone.

Freshly arrived from the Egyptian frontier, where the war has made itself more intensely felt, I found New Delhi more curious than disturbed over the fact that the Japanese fleet had swept along the eastern coastline, sinking British merchantmen and several American ships and sending airplanes in savage, although costly, attacks on Ceylon.

As a prelude to worrisome days ahead came reports that submarines had appeared south and southwest of Ceylon. Thus the Axis came nearer and nearer to hooking its belt on naval units around Europe and Asia—tenuous though the belt may be in certain places.

With ships to the west, south and east and Japanese troops pressing ever deeper into Burma, New Delhi officially recognized the war last night by having its first blackout.

It was merely a test operation, to be repeated tonight and tomorrow night. It was effective despite the fact that many windows had been knocked out during the afternoon by a hail storm. The half-inch stones denuded trees and raised lumps in the backs of India's famous humped cattle.

Calcutta, on the east coast, is getting a rush of refugees from Burma. One observer reported that 70,000 already had cleared through there, and Calcutta itself is contributing to the westward flow of refugees as the Japanese menace approaches.

Despite the growing threat of Japanese attack, efforts to bring about a great degree of Indo-British collaboration remains in the doldrums.

Only the most remote possibility is seen here that Britain will make further advances in the face of the rejection of Cripps' proposals. Nor do Indian observers express belief that their side will offer concessions.

However, the Congress leader, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, hurried to Calcutta to try to inspire members to build up opposition to the Japanese.

He is seeking to arouse at least part of the resistance to invasion which, the leaders assert, could have been achieved whole heartedly if an agreement with Britain had been accomplished.

'Yield to None'

Yorkshire Unit Holds To Its Motto

By Drew Middleton
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, April 16.—Bloody, weary, but still on their feet and fighting, a battalion of the King's Own Yorkshire Light Infantry, a regiment with 186 years of glorious history, held the Burma front today in obedience to the regimental motto, "Yield to None."

This battalion of hard-fisted, laconic coal miners from Yorkshire has been twice mentioned for gallantry in the Burmese campaign. They are part of a small force who have turned the Japanese invasion of Burma into one of the war's bloodiest campaigns, one which cost the Japanese heavy casualties and time.

The deeds of the battalion ring throughout the British army today. Already cherished is the remark of a sergeant who spat out a spent Japanese bullet which had ripped through his cheek.

"I'm tough, mate," he told a youngster. "They bounce off me bleedin' teeth."

The battalion, which has been fighting steadily since the second week in February, had neither relief nor respite for 44 days of fighting early in the campaign. Sometimes no food reached them for several days.

The "Koylis" fought at Minden (famous battle in the province of Westphalia, Germany, in the Seven Years' War), at Waterloo, and in France, Italy and Macedonia in the first World War.

In this war they battled in Flanders from the Dyle River to Dunkerque. Another battalion stood up to meet the Germans in Norway when for the first time the British army was cut up by bombers and tanks.

Security forbids mention of the name of the officer commanding in Burma. The Queen is the colonel in chief.

Their motto as expresed by men in the ranks: "Cop the lot and stick it."

Gatty Gets U. S. Air Post in Australia

north of Thagaya, a Japanese-occupied town some 30 miles north of Toungoo.

Official spokesman said the Chinese lines above Thagaya now were stabilized, largely due to the valor of a Chinese battalion commander who, although wounded, fought a successful delaying action against two enemy divisions. However, there were two distinct threats to the Chinese position on the Sittang.

One was to the Chinese right flank and it was caused by the British withdrawals, under extreme pressure, in the Irrawaddy Valley to the west. The other—on the left—was caused by the movement of two Japanese columns toward Loikaw, capital of the Karenni tribal area and southern gate to the Shan States.

Loikaw is some 80 miles northeast of Toungoo. One column was moving up the Salween River from the southeast, the other had reached Yado, about halfway between Toungoo and Loikaw.

The Japanese started a fresh drive northward on the Sittang two days ago after reaching reinforced positions east and west of Thagaya, the Chinese high command said tonight, but Chinese troops resisted heroically, inflicting many casualties in hand-to-hand fighting. Then the Japanese shifted the direction of their assault.

On the east the Japanese troops who captured Yado were being constantly reinforced but the Chinese line was holding at last reports.

On the Irrawaddy, the British again were fiercely engaged, but official New Delhi reports said a valiant covering action by stouthearted "Koylies"—the King's own Yorkshire light infantrymen—had enabled the main forces to establish positions near Yenchaung, north of Minhla, less than 30 miles from the oil field center of Yenangyaung.

For days, the "Koylies"—always in the thick of the Burma battles—fought magnificently to cover the latest retreat up the Irrawaddy.

The British command said their forces in the Taungdwingyi sector of the Pegu Yoma hills, between the Irrawaddy and the Sittang, still were covering the Chinese right flank, but the Chinese obviously were worried about the situation there.

Chennault Is Appointed A Brigadier

The famed commander of those fabulous "Flying Tigers" of China, Col. Claire L. Chennault, was given the official status of an American Army officer yesterday and promoted to the rank of brigadier general.

Chennault, leader of the American volunteer group of pilots that have been winning fame and fortune guarding China's Burma Road, comes under United States Army command by the action. An Army Air Corps veteran, he retired as a captain five years ago to head Chiang Kai Shek's air force.

The Army said Chennault will continue at his present post, in which he ranks as air adviser to the Chinese Generalissimo. His volunteer fliers, who are paid high sums for each Jap plane shot down, are not affected by their commander's change of status.

28 Get High Rank

Most of the group are former American Army, Navy and Marine Corps pilots, and many of them want to serve again under the American flag, despite the financial sacrifice they must take, informed circles say. The matter is understood to be under consideration.

Along with Chennault, President Roosevelt nominated 28 officers of the Army for high rank.

Heading the list was Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, 48-year-old director of Selective Service, who was named a major general.

Also advanced to major general were Brig. Gen. Emil F. Reinhardt, commander of the new Seventy-sixth Division, which is being organized at Fort George G. Meade, Md., and will have many men now being drawn from selective service rolls in this area in its ranks.

Three Other Major Generals

Brig. Gen. Mark W. Clark, 45-year-old chief of staff of the Army ground forces, and the commanders of two other new divisions, the Seventy-ninth, Brig. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, and the Eighty-first, Brig. Gen. Gustav H. Franke, were nominated to be major generals at the same time.

The list of 24 colonels nominated for brigadier general includes Col. Frank O'D. Hunter, one of the most famous pilots of the first World War, and Col. Harold L. George, commander of the Army Air Force Ferrying Command.

Four colonels whose homes are in the Washington area were also on the promotion list to be brigadier generals. They are:

Col. William E. Farthing, of Bethesda Md., 49, until recently commander of the fifth bombardment group at Hickam Field, Hawaii, and still on duty in Hawaii.

Col. Shepler W. Fitzgerald, of Washington, 57, a graduate of George Washington University, and a pioneer Army pilot. Co-winner of the Mackay Trophy in 1914 for the most meritorious flight of the year, he commanded the air service of the First Army in France in 1918.

Enlisted in World War

Col. Isaiah Davies, of Chevy Chase, Md., 51, a former enlisted man who won his wings during the first World War.

Col. Donald A. Davison, 49, of Washington, an Army engineer and West Point graduate in 1915. From 1928 to 1932, he served as assistant engineer commissioner of the District of Columbia, and last year was sent overseas as a war observer.

Other colonels advanced to brigadiers general were: Hume Peabody, air corps; Walter F. Kraus, air corps; Clayton L. Bissell, air corps; Harold M. McClelland, air corps; Ralph C. Smith, infantry; Goeffrey P. Baldwin, infantry; William R. Schmidt, infantry; Jerome J. Waters, jr., field artillery; Augustus M. Gurney, field artillery; Rex W. Beasley, field artillery; Charles G. Helmick, field artillery; Russell G. Barkalow, field artillery; William G. Livesay, infantry; William A. Campbell, field artillery; William C. Lee, infantry; John E. Dahlquist, infantry, and Philip E. Brown, infantry.

Manila AP Correspondent Was Clerk Here

Dean Schedler, Associated Press correspondent on Bataan Peninsula, who was reported in a dispatch yesterday as probably in Australia after having been seen alive and safe recently in the Philippines by United States officers, was a clerk with the National Recovery Administration here in 1933 and 1934.

His brother, Carl R. Schedler, assistant to Dr. John R. Steelman, of the Labor Department's conciliation service, told a Post reporter that the 26-year-old newsman went to Manila shortly after giving up his job here and for a time was in the import-export business with another brother, Edmund W. Schedler, in the Philippines. Edmund Schedler is now in the insurance business in Davenport, Iowa.

Schedler joined the Associated Press shortly after the war with Japan broke out. Before that, he was for a time on the staff of the Manila Bulletin.

A native of Stillwater, Okla., he attended Oklahoma A. and M. College a year and Washington University here two years. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Schedler, and a sister, Miss Leah R. Schedler, live in Stillwater.

In the youth's most recent letter home, received about a month after the attack on Pearl Harbor, but dated December 9, he expressed confidence that the United States would defeat Japan in time, his brother said.

While in Manila, Schedler also operated a brokerage business and edited a mining company publication before joining the staff of the Bulletin.

House Pipes 'Anchors Aweigh' For Women's Naval Unit

With speed and without argument, the House yesterday passed a bill to create a women's auxiliary reserve in the Navy to release thousands of men for sea duty.

Under provisions of the legislation, introduced by Representative Maas (Republican), of Minnesota, the petticoat branch of the Navy would be open to any woman over the age of 20.

Grade for grade, the "sailorettes" would receive the same pay as male seamen. They would perform noncombatant duties such as decoding, airplane spotting, and confidential secretarial work.

No limit on the number of volunteers is set

Senator Herring (Democrat), of Iowa, revealed yesterday that the War Department is considering establishment at Fort Des Moines, Iowa, of a "women's little West Point" at which between 4000 and 5000 women would be trained for various war occupations.

This and other WAAC organization plans are "ready to go" as soon as the Senate acts on the legislation, approved by the House several weeks ago.

Senator Herring said the War Department "is considering transferring the induction center now at Fort Des Moines to Camp Dodle to make way for the women's training center, which would be the first established in the Nation.

An officers' training camp for the WAACS also has been planned. Rumors place it at Fort George Meade.

A general speedup of the use of women in the war effort is predicted on all fronts during the summer months. April 1 figures on war production workers showed that only 900,000 out of 9,000,000 were women—but revealed that the percentage is increasing rapidly.

blue and gold flag painted on her sides showing her identity as a neutral.

"We could see the flashes and the first burst was a direct hit," Chief Engineer Thomas McCarthy, 46, of the American boat, related. "They got her in a cross-fire. No torpedoes were fired, but they must have pumped 45 shells into her. When we last saw her, she was on fire." McCarthy is from Staten Island, N. Y.

Arne Larson, 21, ordinary seaman of the Swedish freighter, said he thought the submarines had failed to recognize the nationality of his vessel.

"I don't think we would have been fired upon if they knew we were Swedish," he said. "We had no guns aboard but in the blackout we were likely mistaken for an Allied ship."

U. S. Gunners Score On Sub's Periscope

New York, April 16 (AP).—A machine-gun crew aboard a United States merchantman shot off one of the periscopes of an attacking submarine which nevertheless sank their ship off the Atlantic Coast, three of the ship's 38 survivors related today.

The sinking presumably cost the lives of seven men, listed as missing. One was believed killed by the first torpedo blast and six others probably drowned as two of the three lifeboats launched were sucked under after the second torpedo hit the starboard side.

The submarine apparently was not completely disabled by the ship's machine gun, for one survivor said that when he was struggling on an overturned lifeboat he saw the submarine on the surface. Naval authorities said that many submarines carried more than one periscope.

Axis Sub Reported Sunk by Norse Vessel

Rio de Janeiro, April 16 (AP).—Reports of a running sea fight in which the armed Norwegian merchantman Baalbek sank an Axis submarine were received here today.

The action, these reports said, took place off Brazil's inlet-indented, island-screened north coast, where one or more undersea raiders, mostly striking by night, apparently have been trying to cut the sea lanes between the Americas.

The Baalbek was reported to have been damaged but afloat after sinking the submarine.

in or near northern Australia."

The casualty list, the War Department tsaid, is incomplete and does not include any soldiers killed in the Philippines.

Col. Murphy, whose death had been previously announced, was killed in action February 3 while in service with the Allied high command in the Far East. The inventor of the radio beam receiver used on commercial and radio planes, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Catherine Probey Murphy and two children, Catherine Anne and William Herbert, jr., of 3205 Nineteenth Street Northwest, and his mother, who resides at 1120 Vermont Avenue Northwest.

A native of Germany, Col. Murphy was educated in Washington public schools and served in the last war. Memorial services in his memory were held February 22 in Washington Cathedral.

Lieut. Rowland was a native of Fort Worth, Tex., and a student at Texas A. & M. when he quit to enter the Air Corps in October, 1940. His wife, whom he married eight months ago, came to the District in mid-January to work for the War Production Board.

She resides at 4400 Dexter Street Northwest and said she did not learn of her husband's death until after coming here. Her husband was 23.

Sergt. McTavish, who met his wife, the former Miss Mary Elizabeth Boggs, when he stopped off here on an Army cross-country flight three years ago, was 28 and a native of Rainier, Oreg.

"I think he died as he would have wished, in his country's service," his wife said yesterday at the home of her father, L. B. Boggs, a guard at the District Building, who resides at 233½ Ninth Street Southeast.

The McTavishes were married in August, 1939, in California. Mrs. McTavish said she received a letter of condolence from an officer, describing the manner of her husband's death, before she was notified by the War Department that he had been killed in action.

Young Negley was the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. V. W. Negley, sr., of San Antonio. His mother is the former Laura Burleson, daughter of the former Postmaster General who died in November, 1937, at the age of 74.

Labor Heads Fight Pay-Freezing Plan

Murray, Green Declare Roosevelt's Program Imposes Unfair Condition

Copyright by Chicago Sun

Organized labor balked yesterday at President Roosevelt's tentative plans to freeze wages along with prices and profits on grounds that pay stabilization would unjustly penalize wage earners.

Presidents William Green and Philip Murray, of the A. F. L. and C. I. O., conveyed their "determined and uncompromising opposition" to wage freezing schemes to Mr. Roosevelt at a lengthy White House conference of the "Labor War Cabinet."

Although labor officials admitted that no specific proposals for wage freezing as yet have been advanced by the Administration, it appeared certain that their opposition will delay by at least a week Mr. Roosevelt's submission to Congress of his overall plan to check inflation and halt rising prices.

While coming close to deadlock on the wage issue, the labor spokesmen moved toward agreement with Mr. Roosevelt on general plans for cration of a new agency to handle problems of mobilizing millions of American women and men for war production work.

Both Murray and Green declined to comment on possible selections as manpower chief, but it was learned that Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt has been recommended for that job and now is virtually unopposed.

The President has been working intensively on his anti-inflation program this week, and indications were he had planned to submit it to Congress in a special message sometime next week. As a result of yesterday's conference with the labor cabinet, however, there appeared little likelihood that it could go to Capitol Hill in less than ten days.

Green explained that the two great labor organizations feel that wages already are being controlled through the War Labor Board which exerts strong control over all proposals coming before it dealing with any pay increases in major industrial groups. Any executive action or legislative act to impose further restraints would submit labor to double checks whereas industry would be subject to whatever curbs are imposed by Congress, they claimed.

"We assured the President," said Green, "that labor is willing to make equal sacrifices necessary to winning the war," explaining that by "equal" he meant "equality of sacrifice with all other groups such as farm groups, professional groups, business groups, etc."

"But we object to a double check," he continued. "We would have not only a check by the War Labor Board but also a check by executive order freezing wages."

Murray emphasized that before Mr. Roosevelt takes any further steps toward wage stabilization, he will confer again with the Labor cabinet."

ler, Adolf Hitler?

A. No, I don't mean him.

Q. Who is the chancellor?

A. I cannot answer that

Q. Tell us who the chancellor is.

A I cannot answer. It would be against the regulations, the proposed regulations and by-laws.

Justice Letts called upon Baxter, when this reading was completed. "You understand," asked the justice, "what you have been asked? The grand jurors want to know the leader and the chancellor."

Baxter said he understood he had a right to refuse to incriminate himself. Maloney pointed out that Baxter had said, under oath, that there was nothing seditious or unlawful about the Socis.

Says He's Insulted

Baxter then said the grand jury hearing was personally insulting. His sanity, he said, has been questioned.

"Will you go back and reveal these names," the justice pressed him, "truthfully, without any evasion?"

Baxter said he would.

"If you fail to do so," Justice Letts cautioned, "you would be in contempt of court and would certainly be liable to punishment."

The grand juriors returned to their chambers, heard Baxter for a few minutes and adjourned, ordering him to return at 10:30 a. m. today.

Other witnesses yesterday were an official of the Guaranty Trust Co., New York; Helen Bover, Hoffman's secretary, who said she had produced some documents, and E. J. Garner.

Garner is the editor of Publicity, the Wichita, Kans., newspaper which recently called the Pearl Harbor attack "probable provoked" and hailed Baxter as the man of the hour, the new leadership needed by the Nation.

Publicity printed an interview in which Baxter advanced the doctrine of a "peace with honor" by which Europe would be given up to Hitler, Asia to Japan and the United States would abandon its allies for a policy of extreme isolation.

Royal Oak Postmaster Impounds Termite Sheet

Royal Oak, Mich., April 16 (INS).—Acting on orders from the postoffice in Washington, Royal Oak Postmaster Gilbert H. Davis today halted in the mails copies of Social Justice, a weekly publication founded by the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin.

Previously, Attorney General Francis Biddle had banned the publication from the mails on a charge of violation of the 1917 Espionage Act.

Davis refused to deliver 120 copies of the magazine which are sent from Royal Oak. One copy, he said, was sent to the Postmaster General in Washington for examination to determine whether it contained seditious matter.

German Soldiers, Nazi Police Clash

London, April 16 (U.P.).—Intelligence reports reaching the Belgian government in exile today said German troops on leave in Belgium clashed with Nazi military police trying to force them to return to the Russian front.

Many soldiers were killed and wounded in pitched battles at Liege and Tournal, the reports said. Demonstrations were understood to have occurred in other cities. Field police intervened when soldiers changed into civilian clothes and demonstrated.

terday's demonstration against compulsory marketing.

To the Ways and Means Committee Morgenthau introduced four representatives of labor and management from the General Motors Corporation to explain how that company has promoted defense-bond sales by voluntary payroll deductions and an S. S. V. or "Saving and Serving for Victory" campaign. The Treasury Secretary said the G. M. C plan had been "explained to the President and it is pleasing to him."

Reuther Testifies

Walter Reuther, director of the General Motors division of the C. I. O., United Automobile Workers, said the compulsory method would dull enthusiasm for bond purchases. He said the auto workers already had purchased 50 million dollars in bonds to replace the battleship Arizona destroyed at Pearl Harbor, and is now driving for 50 million dollars more to buy a battleship for the Atlantic.

John M. Jerpe, G. M. C. official directing the campaign, exhibited charts and placards used in promoting the bond sales campaign which has set as its goal 100 per cent employe participation in each of the corporation's 93 plants. In addition to regular bond purchases by payroll deductions, he explained how the company helps employes to make outright bond purchases, supplementing their payroll savings.

H. W. Anderson, General Motors vice president in charge of personnel, testified that the program started last fall, picked up after Pearl Harbor, and is now being intensified by carefully planned promotion methods. Also appearing for the voluntary plan was Russ Nixon, representing the United Electrical Radio and Machine Workers.

Morgenthau spoke briefly following their testimony. He said compulsory sale of bonds naturally would be "much simpler" but the Treasury felt that if each employe made his own decisions "it will go so much further in helping win this battle."

Driving to complete hearings on the pending 7 billion dollar tax program this week, the committee also heard Randolph E. Paul, tax adviser to Secretary Morgenthau, urge reduction of "depletion" allowances of oil and mining companies. Later Paul testified for elimination of tax exemption on outstanding and future issues of State and local securities, to net the Treasury an estimated 275 million dollars.

1½ Million Nazis Kept on Lookout By British Raids

London, April 16 (INS).—Britain's bomber offensive over western Europe has kept a force of more than 1,500,000 Germans on the defensive, R. A. F. officials estimated tonight.

Computing the number of Nazis kept busy manning giant searchlights, antiaircraft guns, air raid observation and communication posts, as well as those who actively fly and service the German fighter force assigned to battling the R. A. F., the British air officials termed the 1,500,000 figure conservative.

A senior R. A. F. staff officer pointed out that it takes about 5 men to staff a modern antiaircraft searchlight. The searchlight belt on the Dutch-German frontier varies between 10 to 30 searchlights in a single cluster, and there is one of these groups every 5 miles along a 200-mile front.

Phillips' Statement On CCC Called Libel

'Dastardly Insult' To Oklahoma Youth, McEntee Declares

James J. McEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps, said yesterday that a statement Wednesday by Gov. Leon C. Phillips of Oklahoma that "a great majority" of first-term prisoners in the Oklahoma granite reformatory were former CCC enrollees was "a vicious libel" and a "dastardly insult to the young people of Oklahoma."

McEntee issued a formal statement in reply to the testimony Gov. Phillips gave the Senate Labor Committee as he favored legislation to abolish the CCC and National Youth Administration.

He said Phillips' charge was a "dastardly insult to the young people of Oklahoma, just as it is a vicious libel, stated without facts to substantiate it, upon three million young men who have served in the CCC."

"Hundreds of thousands of young men, who have entered the CCC without previous work experience," the statement said, "have literally pulled themselves up by their own boot straps and have learned something of the value and discipline of work and have developed a wholesome respect for their country's flag and its institutions.

"Many were enabled, for the first time in their lives, to render real assistance to their families.

"Figures of the bureau of prisons and statements of juvenile court judges all over this country show that, during the years of the operation of the corps, there has been a tremendous decrease in juvenile delinquency."

Phillips told the committee that both NYA and CCC were "poison to our boys" and urged that the funds now allotted them be used for vocational agricultural training.

Under questioning Phillips said he had not planned to testify on the NYA-CCC legislation and had no statistics with him, but that 20 out of 40 first-termers he recently had talked to at the Granite Reformatory had been enrolled in the CCC.

Natural Helmets

Cavemen's Skulls Found Extra Thick

By Frank Carey.

Cambridge, Mass., April 16 (AP).—The pre-historic cavemen, who lived a half-million years ago, set the style for the "crash helmets" worn by less thick-skulled modern fliers and tank fighters, it was reported today at a meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists.

Dr. Franz Weidenrich, of Peiping Medical College, and an authority on the famous fossilized "Peking man," said he had completed measurements showing that the skull of the primitive man was twice as thick as that of modern man.

"And the astonishing thing," he declared, "was that the structure of the skull of the primitive man corresponded strikingly with the shape of the helmet worn by air pilots which are reinforced at the forehead, across the top and around the side of the head."

Weidenrich showed pictures of the noggin of "Mr. Peking" which revealed dents presumably made by rival primitive man wielding a sharp-eged stone to good advantage. The dents were large enough to hold a garden hose—but the skull wasn't pierced.

Weidenrich said his researches indicated that in the normal process of human evolution there is a decrease not alone in the thickness of the skull, but in the thickness of the bones of the arms and the legs.

"You might say," interjected another anthropologist, "that the modern skeleton is 'stream-lined,'—that is, lighter and thinner-boned. But the structure is so well designed that modern man can also take a great deal of punishment."

Alloy Monopoly Is Admitted

John Henry Lewin of the Department's anti-trust division, in three days of committee testimony, that monopolistic practices of the General Electric Co., created a "bottleneck" in the manufacture of machine tools for war production.

The admission was drawn from Dr. Jeffries near the end of a tense, three-hour session, and it brought from his noted counsel, Walter Gordon Merritt, a thundering denunciation of tactics of the committee in the second of two loud rows between Merritt and committeemen.

"Your contention in the main is that you did substantially what was brought out here (by Lewin), but what you did was legal?" Creekmore Fath, committee counsel, asked Dr. Jeffries.

"That is it," Dr. Jeffries replied. "We are charged with doing this thing unlawfully. We didn't do it unlawfully."

Merritt stood up as the committee was preparing to recess. In a conversational tone he inquired if the committee desired additional testimony from his clients. He was informed that it probably did not. Then in a rich, courtroom baritone, he proclaimed:

"I have witnessed this afternoon the unseemly performance of our prosecutor suggesting questions or furnishing material for questioning our witness."

By the word "prosecutor," he meant Lewin who, in all probability, will oppose Merritt when the Justice Department indictments are brought to trial, and who sat behind committee members and called their attention to documents that appeared to contradict statements by Jeffries.

Several of these documents, submitted by Lewin at the morning session of the committee, were cited by Senator La Follette (Progressive), of Wisconsin, in an attempt to get Dr. Jeffries to admit that Carboloy and General Electric importuned their German partner, Krupp, to bring pressure against a Carboloy competitor, the Union Wire Die Corporation, to force Union out of the tungsten carbide business.

Lewin told the committee that Carboloy purchased Union's business for approximately $950,000 on the "day which marked the termination" of a three-year agreement between Krupp and Union for the purchase of tungsten carbide.

La Follette asked Jeffries if General Electric did not either urge Krupp to cut Union off from its source of supply of material or jockey the company into a position where its prices would be dictated by Carboloy. Jeffries said he thought that a "fair assumption," but he objected to use of the word "squeeze" in describing the transaction.

Dr. Jeffries told the committee that the agreement with Krupp terminated "automatically" with the United States declaration of war on Germany. He subsequently admitted, however, that through a part of 1941, at least, Carboloy continued its regular reports on sales volume of tungsten carbide to Krupp through a Switzerland company.

In his prepared statement Dr. Jeffries approved "reasonable legislation which will make it possible for the Government to secure the benefits of any and all patents for our war effort." (The committee is considering a bill having this purpose.)

Dr. Jeffries said he was glad to observe that Lewin admitted, "in effect," that G. E., Carboloy "and the individual defendants in the Carboloy case are now operating that industry at reasonable prices, free from all restrictions and are doing all that they can do in that industry to further our war effort."

Freedom of Press on Trial Now, Price Warns Editors

By Scott Hershey
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, April 16.—The editors of many of the Nation's leading newspapers—trustees of the freedom of the press—were told today that that freedom was now on trial through the invocation of wartime voluntary censorship.

Meeting in their twentieth annual convention, the American Society of Newspaper Editors heard Byron Price, censorship chief; representatives of the Army and Navy public relations offices and others discuss the role of newspapers in a nation at war.

They heard their president, Dwight Marvin, editor of the Troy (N. Y.) Record, declare that "our profession faces the supreme test," and urge them to be certain that "the news we print be the unvarnished, unbiased truth and that editorials and comment be unpurchased and unpurchasable."

Price, former executive news editor of the Associated Press, on leave of absence for the wartime censorship post, declared it would be an unhappy day for all of us if it was found that President Roosevelt's confidence in them had been misplaced.

"The President of the United States has put his confidence in your patriotism and your understanding," said Price, "and has turned his back on those who argue that only compulsory censorship can be effective."

He cautioned that the success of the experiment to make voluntary censorship work would not be determined by the office of censorship but "by the publishers and editors who control the policies of the individual publications."

He reviewed briefly the history of the American press and its survival of recurring crises.

"We are engaged in a desperate war—a war not only for existence but for that better existence for which we have yearned during long years of doubt and apprehension," Price said. "No industry and no individual can expect to escape the tribulations and the sacrifices of such a war. I have faith that you as editors, and the newspapers you represent, will not flinch or whimper on the firing line."

Senate Will Get Moderate Measure Dealing With War Labor

Closed Shop Clause

Instead of banning or "freezing" closed shop contracts, the bill bars Government labor agencies from approving contracts making membership in a labor union a condition of employment, with two exceptions. If a closed shop existed before the bill became law, or if the employer had violated the Wagner Labor Relations Act within the preceding two years, the agencies could approve a closed shop.

Wage "stabilization" would be sought by providing that no Governmental agency could approve or recommend an increase in wages, unless it was justified by a showing of living cost rises, or unless wages in the plant or industry were unduly depressed.

The bill seeks to stabilize "salaries" as well by forbidding an increase in the salary of any employe who makes $5000 or more, unless he takes on a new job or new duties warranting the increase. The Labor Disputes Commission could approve a salary rise if justified by a showing of increased living costs, or if the salary was out of line with the level for similar work.

Senator Ball, whose more limited procedural bill was reported months ago by the Labor Committee and left stranded on the calendar, said he felt the revised draft would not only write an effective national labor policy into law, but provide a flexible ceiling on wages as a guard against inflation.

Whether organized labor would support even this moderate measure appeared doubtful after the President's A. F. L.-C. I. O. Labor War Board advised Mr. Roosevelt yesterday it was "uncompromisingly opposed to the stabilization or freezing of wages."

The more sweeping Smith-Vinson profits-labor curbs, meanwhile, faced a vote in the House Naval Affairs Committee today. Edmund Toland, committee counsel, recommended further modifications in line with views aired at hearings by Government production chiefs.

When the Senate Labor Committee was redrafting the Ball labor bill, the Senate heard bipartisan appeals for the President with labor and management to initiate a voluntary program of controls before the Senate launches its labor debate next week.

Senator Lucas (Democrat), of Illinois, said that unless labor and management agree on a program "just as sure as we take up the labor bill and continue this debate for a week or so, we will come forward with a legislative monstrosity."

Senator Vandenberg (Democrat), of Michigan, likewise told the Senate that nothing "constructive" could be accomplished unless labor and management reach an "affirmative, all-out agreement."

Action Due in House

The House may receive a labor bill coincident with the Senate if the House Naval Affairs Committee today approves the recommendations of Chairman Carl Vinson for freezing of open and closed shop relationships and extension of the 40-hour week to 48 hours, as well as percentage limits on profits.

Further modifications in the Smith-Vinson bill, already toned down by its authors from its original flat suspension of the 40-hour week, meanwhile were suggested by Committee Counsel Toland, in testimony before the group.

Toland outlined a bill prepared by himself which provided for freezing of open and closed shop relations, but carried greatly modified hours provisions. To eliminate agitation for pay increases if overtime was eliminated with suspension of the 40-hour week, he proposed mandatory payment of bonuses to workers who labor longer hours, equal to the overtime they would have received.

In lieu of the $8000 plus 8 per cent profits limit in the Smith-Vinson bill, Toland proposed a formula similar to that approved by the Senate, giving war agencies leeway to renegotiate contracts and compel submission of cost information.

Another Salary Limit

In addition, Toland suggested that no cost allowances for salaries be made in excess of those paid on July 1, 1940, and that bonuses be limited to 10 per cent of salary for cost purposes. To avoid dissipation of profits, he suggested dividends be frozen at the level paid in the last quarter before July, 1940.

As a "cushion" against a postwar let-down, the committee counsel further proposed that 50 per cent of all profits in excess of $100,000, after payment of taxes and dividends, be withheld in return for Government securities that would not become negotiable until after the war.

139 Selectees Enter Army Ranks Today

A total of 139 Selective Service registrants from eight local draft boards will be inducted into service this morning at Fort Myer, Va., and Fort George G. Meade, Md.

Other developments on the Selective Service front were:

National Selective Service Headquarters denied reports that alien students and others who are temporarily in this country are subject to military service. Officials pointed out that aliens who consider themselves to be in this country in a nonresident status must have their status officially determined by the local board in the community of their temporary residence, merely for the record.

Seventeen Washington young men reported at Fort Belvoir for physical examinations and intelligence tests yesterday in what was the first group of local Selective Service registrants in Class 3A applying for officers' training. The young men were volunteers with dependents whom they have declared willing to leave behind if they are successful in attaining a rank of second lieutenant, after training, at a salary commensurate with the rank.

Pat de Cicco, who has taken up temporary residence at the Mayflower Hotel with his wife, the former Gloria Vanderbilt, told a Post reporter that he expects to take his physical examination for Selective Service induction "shortly" without intending to seek deferment or special classification.

De Cicco said he is now classified by his california draft board as 1A. He said he could seek deferment as a vital defense worker as he is working with Hughes Aircraft of California, but he said he prefers to let "the whole matter take its natural course." He described his work as connected with "production."

Registrants to be inducted today, their local boards, and the fort at which they will report are:

Downey Offers Bill for Seizure Of Private Cars

By the Associated Press

The Government would be authorized to seize any private automobile in the land under a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Downey (Democrat), of California.

Downey called for action now to assure transportation for war workers, for the mail and other services.

Some ten million cars should be removed from the roads and placed "in a vast pool to meet a serious transportation crisis we can expect within a year or so," he said.

Officials at the Office of Price Administration said Price Administrator Leon Henderson had no present plans for commandeering passenger cars or tires. But they said the California lawmaker was "quite right" in asserting there would not be enough natural or synthetic rubber to keep 30 million cars on the road.

"We are figuring on keeping less than ten million vehicles equipped with rubber," an OPA spokesman said.

And Integrated

Roosevelt Orders OCD Reorganized

By Christine Sadler
Post Staff Writer

Reorganization of the Office of Civilian Defense to permit closer integration of its activities with the war effort was ordered yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Major structural change called for is creation within the agency of a Civilian Defense Board, with Director James M. Landis as chairman and the Secretaries of War and Navy, the Attorney General, the director of the Office of Defense, Health and Welfare Services, and four other high officials as members.

This move provides quite a set-up in dignity for the controversial agency and is expected to end all agitation for its absorption by the War Department.

Service Advisers Remain

Army and Navy advisers to the OCD to date have been headed by Brig. Gen. L. D. Gasser, director of the division of civilian protection, and Rear Admiral Clarke H. Woodward, director of the plant protection division. Both will remain in these positions, OCD officials said last night.

Just as important as the change which permits Director Landis a closer contact with war heads is a portion of the order which states the OCD "shall serve as the center for the coordination of Federal civilian defense activities which involve relationships between the Federal Government and State and local governments."

Although the OCD has maintained it had this centralized coordinating power, other Government agencies have not always recognized it and during earlier days often were slow with their cooperation.

"We have been playing ball in the far outfield, but now have an infield position," one of the OCD spokesmen said last night.

Functions Outlined

The White House order outlined operating functions of the agency now as two-fold:

1. "To work out plans and programs for the protection of life and property against war hazards, such as air raids, including the recruiting and training of civilian auxiliaries.

2. "To mobilize a maximum civilian effort in the prosecution of the war, including the enrollment of volunteers to assist in carrying forward the total war program."

Both functions are to be carried out "in cooperation with State and local authorities."

Director Landis, declaring himself much pleased with the new order, declared it "streamlines the OCD for war" and makes possible a close integration of its work with the total Government program for prosecution of the war.

In addition to the four Cabinet members named to the board the President appointed: Maurice J. Tobin, Mayor of Boston; Earl D. Mallery of Chicago, executive director of the American Municipal Association; Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross, and Harold Stassen, Governor of Minnesota, who now is on active duty as a lieutenant commander in the Navy.

Navy Fails to Back Charges by Byrd

By the Associated Press

The Navy report which Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, quoted Tuesday as saying that slowdowns in eight plants were retarding naval contracts, was described at the Navy Department as one that was "not prepared for publication without confirmation through further investigation."

Steps for further investigation in these cases have been taken already, said a statement from the office of Ralph A. Bard, Assistant Secretary. The statements Byrd quoted, it added, do not represent the "conclusive views of the Navy Department."

Plants listed in the report were Atlas Press Co., Kalamazoo, Mich.; Aluminum Co. of America, Detroit; Bendix Aviation Co., South Bend, Ind.; Brewster Aeronautical Corporation, Long Island City, N. Y.; Curtiss-Wright Corporation, Columbus, Ohio; Hayes Manufacturing Corporation, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Shelmar Products Co., Mount Vernon, Ohio, and Thorrez-Maes Manufacturing Co., Jackson, Mich.

In the majority of instances, union activities were blamed for the reported slowdowns, but there were additional reports of inefficient management and troublesome changes of plans.

Navy Has Exonerated Union, Leader Says

Columbus, Ohio, April 16 (AP).—William Gibson, international representative of the C. I. O. United Auto Workers, said today the Navy had exonerated union leaders of charges by United States Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, that they were responsible for a work slowdown in the Curtiss-Wright warplane plant here.

Gibson said Navy officials in Washington informed him they would issue a statement to the effect that "nothing has been introduced to substantiate" Byrd's claims, and that the Navy would make a complete investigation of plant conditions here.

In Washington after a meeting of the War Labor Board with President Roosevelt, President R. J. Thomas, of the United Automobile Workers Union and a C. I. O. representative on the board, said that he had taken up with Mr. Roosevelt the charges of Senator Byrd that there were slowdowns on Naval contracts.

Thomas noted that the U. A. W. had won a collective bargaining election at the Curtiss-Wright plant here two weeks ago.

He said the union had reported both to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Navy Department—before Byrd spoke—that there was a slacking off of production attributed in part to the management and in part to changes by the Navy in specifications. The FBI was asked to investigate, Thomas said.

At the Brewster aircraft plant on Long Islang, also mentioned by Byrd, Thomas said, the union asked for an FBI investigation prior to the Senator's charges.

"I do not know what the results were," he said, "but I do know a large cross-section of the management is alien."

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN
Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there's something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

practical nurse, who was out on a case.

Wilhite, according to parts of his confession made public by police, asked Miss Matthes in and offered her a chair. Then, according to the confession, he "got a desire." He went to the kitchen, got a claw hammer, and with this struck at her from behind, after which, according to his story, he ravished her.

Wilhite, the police version continued, then got a carving knife and slashed and stabbed his victim.

Deputy Coroner Richard M. Rosenberg, who, with Dr. Christopher J Murphy, performed the autopsy yesterday afternoon, said he could find no evidence of rape. He and Dr. Murphy said also that the deep stab wounds on the body indicated that an ice pick or a stiletto, rather than a carving knife, was used.

Lieut. Jeremiah Flaherty, chief of the homicide spad, said it was "the most brutal crime I have ever seen."

Miss Matthes, who was an "above average" soprano in the Washington Grand Opera Association ensemble, lived at 1321 M Stree' Northwest, a block or so from the Wilhite apartment. She lived with her father, William Matthes, sr., floor manager in a local department store, and her brother, William, jr., a cab driver.

The elder Matthes, like his daughter, is a fervent member of Jehovah's Witnesses, a religious sect that believes that all history is already written in the Bible and that whatever happens is predicted therein.

He told a Washington Post reporter that he held no bitterness toward the youth who killed his daughter.

"I don't care what they do to him," said Mr. Matthes. "However, I don't want vengeance. My daughter was doing her Christian work as commanded by the Scriptures.

"The man who took her life is no man at all. No one who is a human creature could have done it. It was Satan. My daughter was a good, innocent girl and her only interest in life was toward the goal of making people conscious of a better way of spiritual life."

Youth Walked Into Police Station

Young Wilhite, dressed in a flashy sport coat and covert cloth trousers, walked into the First Precinct station at 10:15 o'clock Wednesday night and insisted on speaking to the commanding officer, who was then Lieut. Irving Umbaugh.

"You go up to 1422 N Street and you'll find some trouble," Wilhite told the officer.

Lieut. Umbaugh noticed red stains around the youth's finger nails. Taking Wilhite along, he and Precinct Detective Otto P. Fuss, hurried to the Wilhite apartment.

They found it a shambles. The body of Miss Matthes was sprawled on the floor, part of it in the living room, and head and shoulders in a closet. Beside the body was a claw hammer and nearby was a knife, about nine inches long.

Wilhite made no explanation, and Lieut. Umbaugh asked for none. Instead he called for the headquarters homiside squad. Two members of this squad—Detective Sergts. Charles Carver and E. E. Scott—heard the radio flash while they were cruising nearby, and they burried to the apartment and took Wilhite to headquarters.

Then Youth Confesses

At 1:32 a. m. Wilhite began his formal confession. He talked and answered questions for 45 minutes, and the result was a three-page typewritten document.

Wilhite told the officers that he changed clothes after killing the girl. He said he took a bus and rode across Highway Bridge and then hitched-hiked to Alexandria. There he decided to return to the city and visit the No. 1 Precinct Station. He didn't say why.

Mrs. Wilhite visited headquarters and was allowed to see her son at 3 a. m. The youngster rushed toward her, buried his head in her lap and sobbed.

Mrs. Wilhite soothed him, murmuring "My boy, my boy."

Police, in the course of their investigation, learned that two young women began moving from a part of the Wilhite apartment a half hour before the murder. They were Mary Green, a Navy Yard employe, and Loreen Wiles, an employe of the Embassy Pharmacy, Fifteenth and M Streets Northwest. They rented a room from Mrs. Wilhite, but it was shut off from the rest of the apartment and had a separate entrance.

In moving to 1000 Eighth Street Northwest, they took out some of their clothes at 7:30 p. m. Then they returned for another load at 10 p. m.

They said they neither heard nor saw anything to arouse their suspicion. As for young Wilhite, they said they had often seen him when they went into the Wilhite apartment. They said he seemed like a nice, friendly boy.

Police were told by others who knew him that he was "a nice boy, but sick in the head."

William Webster, president of the Washington Grand Opera Association, said Madeline Matthes joined the association's ensemble last October. Last January, when Lily Pons was in Washington for a concert, he said, the two were introduced and Miss Pons gave Madeline an autographed picture and encouraged her to keep up with her singing.

Mr. Webster described Miss Matthes as pleasant and friendly, a little naive and unsophisticated.

Singer Struck Many Times

The autopsy showed that Miss Matthes was struck by the hammer from in front, not the back, as told by Wilhite. She was struck on the top of the head and twice on the forehead. However, there was no fracture. Also she suffered 30 puncture wounds, a black eye, a bruised nose, and a blow in the mouth. A necktie had been jammed down her throat.

The cause of death was four punctures in the left lung, which caused a profuse hemorrhage and shock.

Doctors Rosenberg and Murphy said that these punctures could hardly have been caused by the carving knife found near the body. This knife was an inch and a quarter at its widest point. None of the fatal wounds was that large. Hence the two autopsists concluded that an ice pick or a stiletto must have been used.

The police record of Wilhite's disappearances from home show that, in his wanderings, he ranged all the way from Baltimore to Miami. His most recent disappearance was reported to police by Mrs. Wilhite on March 15. He had been gone three days then.

Believed "Mentally Deficient"

Detective John Apostolides, who looked into that case, said that Mrs. Wilhite requested that if the boy were found that he be held at the Receiving Home until she could arrange to have him examined at Gallinger Hospital.

Apostolides noted in his report that "she thinks he is mentally deficient."

Lieut. Horace Lineburg, chief of the Public Relations Squad, which investigated missing persons cases, said last night that young Wilhite returned the last time of his own accord. He said Mrs. Wilhite notified police of the youth's return and said she wanted no action taken.

Ewing Witnesses Confess Perjury

the case because corroboration of the story was needed.

Both of them took the witness stand yesterday to admit that they had perjured themselves, asserting that they wanted to get the matter off their consciences. Hager said that he was offered $100 and the promise of more by "Frank," but said he accepted none of it. Miller said that he was paid $200 plus expenses to come here from West Virginia to testify.

Hager related that "Frank" had disappeared just before the frame-up story was given to defense attorneys, and that he had been unable to find him since.

He said that he had tried desperately to find the man, because he wanted to know who was behind the whole thing in an effort to clear himself. He said that he got the Ewing family to finance much of his search, since they were under the impression that the man would be an additional defense witness.

The development came as a surprise at the courthouse after Assistant United States Attorneys John W. Fihelly and Charles B. Murray had filed affidavits from Miller and Hager admitting the perjury.

The testimony which they now say was perjured was to the effect that Payne had approached the pair in an Eleventh Street beer joint and offered them $100 to help him and his "girl friend" frame an "old goat."

This testimony was stressed by Ewing's lawyers in their motion for granting Ewing a new trial, still pending before Justice James W. Morris.

3 Scheduled to Die Today Get Stays

Three men scheduled to die in the electric chair today have received stays of execution in order to allow the United States Court of Appeals to dispose of appeals now pending in their behalf, it was learned at District Court yesterday.

Justice F. Dickinson Letts postponed execution of Roland J. Lindsey and Jarvis T. R. Catoe until June 26, and that of William I. Robinson until May 29.

R. A. F. Raids

The raids which the R. A. F. has for some time been carrying out on German and German-held cities in western Europe are clearly designed to achieve two major purposes. The first is to do as great damage as possible to German industry and transportation so as to impede Hitler from concentrating an overwhelming force against the Red Army. In line with this objective is another, namely, to draw as much German air strength to the west as possible. For it is only by dividing Germany's striking power that the spearpoint of the coming German offensive can best be blunted.

There has long been an argument in military circles as to the effectiveness of air raids in curbing industrial production. The lesson to be drawn from the Battle of Britain would seem to be that the losses inflicted on nonmilitary objectives is altogether out of proportion to those inflicted on military objectives. The British authorities, apparently, do not feel that even if this is true, such an argument is a reason for calling off the raids. Insofar as they damage the enemy at all they are worth while. And there are reasons to believe that the extent of the raids, the enormous increase in the bomb load carried by British bombers, and their concentration on a few key points, are inflicting more and more damage.

Yet the Nazis know the British are not of the opinion that the war can be won by bombing alone. Behind the activities of the R. A. F. the Germans also sense the possibility that the raids are intended to serve as a prelude to an invasion of the continent. They cannot, therefore, withdraw as much of their military strength from western Europe as the scale of their prospective operations on the Eastern Front may require. The second front about which so much has been said and written is not yet a fact. But it has become enough of a possibility to force the Nazis to take it into their calculations.

Releasing Patents

The Department of Justice is making rapid progress in its campaign to obtain free licensing of important patents for production of essential war materials. As a matter of course, all such patents ought to be placed at the disposal of the Government in time of war, so as to insure their effective utilization. It is more than doubtful, however, whether Senatorial committees are performing any useful function at this time by prolonged investigations into restrictive patent practices and policies that are rapidly being abandoned under pressure from the Department of Justice and the force of public opinion. One can thus sympathize with the protest of a head of a General Electric subsidiary. He interrupted hearings before the Senate Patents Committee to protest against his company being put on trial prematurely, so to speak, when a case brought against it under the anti-trust laws was due to come up shortly.

The indubitable fact is that the Truman special defense investigating committee and the Senate Patents Committee appear to be stirring up a good deal of ill-will quite unnecessarily. This they are doing by delving into the history of concerns that, as parties to international cartels, allegedly have retarded defense production by their control of important patents. Surely they realize that Congress and the Department of Justice are already in possession of all the pertinent evidence required to effect a change in the laws governing the use of patents, if such changes are considered necessary.

Moreover, the Temporary National Economic Committee has already made extensive inquiries into the question of patent monopolies. It was over a year ago that Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold told the TNEC that cartel arrangements and patent agreements dividing markets between domestic and foreign companies had gravely delayed production of strategic defense materials. He added that criminal or civil actions had been started against a number of these concerns, and that grand jury investigations were proceeding in other cases. In 1939 Mr. Arnold advocated changes in the patent laws that would forbid the owner of a patent to attach restrictions to its use, unless he could prove such restrictions to be necessary in promoting science and the useful arts. While leaving the patent owner exclusive rights of exploitation himself, Mr. Arnold recommended that licenses to use patents should be general and unrestricted in respect to price, production, method of use and area of use.

The evidence presented to the TNEC and subsequent developments strongly suggest that changes in our laws are needed to prevent the ownership of patents from becoming a shield for monopolies and a means of fostering trade restraints. Such legislation, however, should not be regarded as a wartime measure. Rather it should be viewed as part of a permanent regulatory program designed to suppress patent abuses and to make sure that patent arrangements between domestic concerns and foreign industries are at no time and in no way politically dangerous to this country.

Strategic Lesson

One could hardly ask for a more pointed illustration of the difficulty of developing Allied grand strategy than is provided by current reports from Australia. For several days now newspaper and radio correspondents Down Under have been telling us through "Army spokesmen" that General MacArthur has not received necessary decisions and instructions from Washington. Consequently, so we are told, there has been no precise definition of the general's authority or of the course he is to follow. The President, to be sure, has taken note of these reports which, among other things, imply Australian impatience. And he has at least reemphasized General MacArthur's supreme command over all the Allied forces in the southwest Pacific. Yet it is perfectly obvious why, at this stage, the President could neither define the physical limits of the southwest command, nor give a really forthright answer to the reports.

In the first place, the Japanese advance toward India has changed the immediate complexion of Allied strategy. By carrying the war on the Allies into the Indian Ocean the Japanese have, for the moment, lifted the threat of an Australian invasion. But in taking the pressure off Australia, they have applied it to an area in which the Allies are weak—one which lies not only beyond General MacArthur's specific command but also far beyond the range of his military effectiveness. Small wonder, then, that it is difficult to tell General MacArthur what to do, when he is still in the process of amassing sufficient strength to open a major offensive from Australia. Presumably, delayed orders will go out to him when strategic decisions are reached at the joint conferences now proceeding in London.

Yet the more one considers the situation in the southwest Pacific, the more one is obliged to conclude that temporarily, anyway, the Japanese switch of pressure to the Indian Ocean necessarily leaves General MacArthur in a perplexing political and strategic position. It is a position which he and the Australians, who are clamoring for action now, must bear with as much patience as they can muster. Nevertheless, the thing to bear in mind is that Japanese initiative elsewhere is indirectly responsible for the tenor of current reports from Australia. Sooner or later similar initiative must be shown by the Allies, if we are ever to disrupt Axis schedules.

Newbold Noyes

For years back no family has been more closely associated with the community life of Washington than the Noyes family. Yet they have never been cave dwellers in any exclusive sense. What they have obtained from the community, they have given back to the community in full measure. That is the hallmark of good citizenship. Newbold Noyes, associate editor of the Evening Star since 1919, who died yesterday, kept up his family's tradition. After the last war, in which he served with great distinction, Mr. Noyes threw himself into community activities with unflagging zeal. The list of the organizations he helped to found or sponsor or assist is long and impressive. They will endure in great part because of the effort he put into them.

Mr. Noyes' eleemosynary work, however, was merely a facet in a many-sided life. In his profession he shone conspicuously. Perhaps in this connection he will be remembered best for the awareness he showed in his writing of the threat to America and to American institutions which came from the rise of totalitarianism abroad. The danger was no bigger than a man's hand when he began calling attention to it. But he had a true sense of our physical oneness with the world, as well as of our community of interest with other democracies. Still, in spite of his political and economic writing, Mr. Noyes found time for excursions into less contentious writing. His poetry, for instance, betrayed sensitiveness of feeling, especially his verses for children, which found a wide following on their appearance in household magazines.

Yet death came to Mr. Noyes when his life and career, though full of achievement, still seemed equally fruitful of promise. He had just passed the half century mark. The end, which came after a year of lingering illness, is thus untimely, and The Post offers its condolences to its neighbor and the Noyes family—condolences which will be shared by the whole of this community.

Whiskered Reply

The President has again thrown cold water on plans for economizing in nonessential outlays. The mere fact that he follows his time-worn technique of demanding how and where Government costs can be cut indicates an ill-concealed hostility to economy programs. It is always difficult to pare Government expenditures, because any substantial reduction in public outlays means loss of jobs for deserving employes as well as loafers in the Government service. Budgetary cuts, moreover, usually compel curtailment of public services that are desirable if not always essential. If that were not the case, we should be forced to conclude that a lot of public money is being thrown away without any sort of return.

Even the most ardent economy advocates do not claim that saving is a painless operation. They simply point out that the Government took on a vast number of obligations during the depression years of widespread unemployment that are no longer essential. A good many sober-minded citizens conclude that work relief agencies such as the WPA ought to be abolished without further delay, now that employment has reached record heights and war labor shortages have become acute. They think, too, that the CCC and the NYA should be stripped of all but strictly defense training activities, and that these defense operations should, for the sake of efficiency as well as economy in overhead, be carried on under a unified management. Senator Byrd's Economy Committee has also suggested quite a number of other ways in which budgetary outlays could be reduced without impairment of the war effort.

There is no need to quibble over definitions of nondefense expenditures, as the President does, before making specific suggestions concerning budgetary economies. All that is needed is a conviction that the Federal Government ought to set an example of restraint in spending by eliminating all outlays not necessary to effective conduct of the war and efficient functioning of essential civilian functions. There are plenty of people who would not be at all embarrassed by the President's challenge to show him how to economize. They know the answer to that question. The trouble is that the President prefers to address his queries to the wrong people.

Next Step

To the uncritical observer our first complete blackout was an unqualified success. There were no accidents, injuries or crimes reported—a considerable accomplishment and quite at variance with the blackout experience of other cities. And, for the most part, Washington was as dark as the proverbial pocket.

This reflects credit on the whole community. But there is hardly room for complacency. All that the blackout really proved was that with sufficient warning the metropolitan area can extinguish or screen its lights in a hurry. This would be fine if it was enemy practice to announce the approximate time of an air raid. Then, as on Tuesday night, we could have members of the emergency services on the streets in advance, ready for action. Unfortunately, the enemy is never so considerate as to announce his visitations beforehand.

So we are left with no alternative but to be ready for him at any time. This must be the next step in Capital preparedness. In practice blackouts which are to come, then, there should be a greater element of doubt as to the time of simulated raids. Moreover, greater effort should be made by air raid wardens to discover whether residents are really prepared to carry on more or less normally during blackouts or whether they intend to turn out the lights and sit in the dark.

There is no doubt that many are still bent on observing the latter expedient. And the sooner they are disabused of this idea, the sooner we shall have a more reliable gauge of our blackout ability.

DARK DOVES

My love danced by, one early day,
He had no time to stop or stay,
O sing, dark doves of mourning!

Love called another lady fair,
He washed her silk, he combed her hair,
O sing, dark doves of mourning!

The lady drooped a laughing eye,
She gave a moan, she gave a sigh,
O sing, dark doves of mourning!

The lady asked Love to her bed,
Her bosom held Love's golden head,
O sing, dark doves of mourning!

The lady lashed him, bruise and blood,
The lady scorned him, snow and mud,
O sing, dark doves of mouning!

My Love and I that night were wed,
I kissed my Love—(my Love was dead)—
O sing, dark doves of mourning!

Female Registers

C.M.L.'s letter in The Post probably will be answered by many other women over 35 who find there is no place for them in the Government service. There is still another angle to the matter; it is not only that the Government discriminates against women over 35, but moreover, it discriminates against women—at least in the professions.

Like C. M. L. my name has been on a Civil Service register for months, and like her I have a very high rating. I have been informed that my name is first on two lists and second on a third, but alas, it is on a female register, and no man, by law, is required to glance at it. None of them have, for in all this time I have not once been called for an interview, though hundreds, perhaps thousands of men in my profession have been employed in recent months. I am over 35, and I might take that as the reason, except that I know of others much younger who have had the same ill luck.

So, it is a double-edged form of discrimination women past 35 are facing now. Most of us support not only ourselves, but families. What makes the situation doubly serious is that, bad as the prejudice is in the Government, it is worse elsewhere.

Although it has little bearing on the situation now, for few are under any illusion that the Civil Service lists are actually being used, may I offer this suggestion for what it is worth later on? Why not abolish "female registers?" Let the names of both men and women appear on the same list so that their chances will be more nearly equal. True, there are many jobs that can best be filled by men just as there are many that rightly belong to women, but there are many more reserved exclusively for men only by prejudice.

We are wasteful people, particularly of our human resources. Except in wartime we fail to use the services of men over 40, even in wartime we deprive ourselves of the services of women still younger. We train people for the professions and then fail to use them. And, to carry the point still further, we refuse to use the talents and abilities of one-tenth of the population just because their skins are black. We have much to learn. E. C.

Rough Washing

I have a sneaking suspicion that the newspaper boys of Washington, who have been industriously exposing the failure of some Federal offices to conserve waste paper, etc., either wash their linens themselves or never get them washed at all. This is the only explanation one can rake up to justify their failure to expose the frightful destruction of linens by the Washington laundries which is proceeding unchallenged.

Having lived all over the world, having had occasion to use the laundry facilities of many cities in the United States, I must confess that nowhere have I found such wanton destruction of linens as is going on in the Washington laundries. It would be interesting to find out what destructive chemicals they employ for their nefarious work. Is it due to careless and underpaid help?

In any event, at a time when conservation has become of paramount importance to the Nation, it is inconceivable that this source of waste will be overlooked by the powers that be.

What is to be done? Pending the outcome of an investigation, I would suggest that the laundries be compelled to hand to each client, before accepting a package to be washed, a certificate stating the sort of chemicals they employ and assuring that every precaution will be taken to safeguard the property.

Placing the Colors

It is gratifying to note the spirit of patriotism displayed by the various establishments throughout the city. I have been particularly attracted to the signs and slogans printed on placards and stationery bearing red, white and blue stripes. I have observed these in Government agencies, department stores and newspaper offices, and in practically every instance the red screams out loud on top, the white in the center and the blue at the bottom.

Now, of course, it is noble to be patriotic, but it would be well for the persons in charge of printing these colors, symbolic of our glorious American flag, to familiarize themselves with the correct use of the stars and the stripes on the flag.

According to the United States Flag Association, the red is at the bottom, the white in the center and the blue at the top. Since the blue in the flag represents the blue of the heavens, we should be reminded that the blue is always at the top. Also, when the vertical strips appear, the red should be at the right, the white in the center and the blue at the left.

I hope these irregularities will soon be corrected, so that the public will be able to observe these placards with pride.

To Speed Delivery

With our Nation now in the midst of the fight, the burden of transporting materials to their destination is tremendous. Railroads, trucks and ships must assume their portion of responsibility in the delivery of the goods in the shortest possible time. Not infrequently it is necessary for trucks to cross several States before reaching their destination.

Traffic regulations in one State differ considerably with those of another in load capacity, brakes, etc. Just a few days ago ten trucks, each carrying seven jeep cars, were stopped at the Arkansas State line. According to Arkansas State police, some of the trucks were overloaded as much as five tons. Apparently capacity loads in Arkansas are much lower than in Ohio, where the cars were shipped.

This is just one instance where Army equipment has suffered delay in transit while State officials and Army officers seek an amicable agreement.

The State police must see that persons observe the existing regulations, but who knows when the delay in transit of necessary war equipment may spell the difference in victory or defeat for our forces.

Would it not simplify matters to have uniform Federal laws covering transportation by truck and trains in all States, at least for the duration of the war? Then, instead of delaying, perhaps the State police could convoy the vans through their States, enabling the goods to be delivered in record time.

Car Turn-In Plan

An idea to secure additional funds in a painless manner for the use of our Government would be the establishment of a fixed standard price on automobiles by our Government. The public could be permitted to turn in their cars to the United States Government at this fixed rate (to cover type, make, year and condition of car). A Government car certificate could be issued on this turn-in calling for like replacement in a new car at the successful conclusion of the war. A price could be set now on these new cars by agreement between the United States and the manufacturers, permitting those who wish to participate in this savings plan to pay the balance in cost price between the turn-in value and the price of the new car to the Government now in monthly installments. The Government could issue in turn the necessary agreement calling for a fully-paid-for car at the end of the war. Savings would be made by the Government on handling sales and other like costs, for the benefit of the public.

The turned-in group of cars might be put to use in the following four ways:

1. That group of later model cars, fit for active use, to be distributed for military or general emergency use, fire, police, first aid or civilian defense.

2. A next group to be either sold or rationed to transportation needs, or defense work transportation groups, farmers, mail or other like priority groups.

3. A third group to be sold or transferred to repair agencies, to be dismantled and used to keep our present group of cars in supply of needed replacement parts, tires, etc.

4. The last group, composed of average or otherwise useless cars, to be used as scrap.

Too Little Pay

I am the wife of a building guard for the Government. His salary is $1200 a year. We came here from the Far West, where $1200 dollars would do us nicely. But here in Washington it is almost impossible to live on this small amount. With the retirement and dues for the police union taken out, the pay is about $23 a week. To live here one has to get the cheapest room possible, which nine times out of ten is vermin-infested, with a two-burner gas range. The range, by the way, is all right, because you just put the coffee on one burner and the usual can of beans on the other.

Yes, believe it or not, we are stranded here in the great Capital of ours. We would get out of here tomorrow, but it takes a lot of money to pay fare way out West. But one thing I have learned here in Washington, one really can live on love, which my husband and I have been doing for the past few months. I am sure those men up there on the hill should open up their hearts and think of the underdog.

The Post Impressionist

Sidney Lanier: In Memoriam

It is not every year that we are able to celebrate the centenary of the birth of a great American poet. I suppose that is simply because of the fact that 100 years ago great poets were not born every year. Indeed, as the centuries pass, that condition does not appear to change.

But this year, 1942, we do have a poet to remember although the great shadow of war unfortunately eclipses now such placid affairs as commemorations. His name was Sidney Lanier, born in Macon, Ga., on February 3, 1842.

His story has often been told, the story of a valiant and sensitive spirit struggling against illness to assert his genius. He fought a winning fight, not against disease, for he died at 39, but against the forces that would crush his poetical and musical talents. In the brief span of his life, which included four severe years in the Confederate Army, he rose to the top in both of the fields—literature and music—in which he divided his loyalty.

It was a divided loyalty, yet, anomalously, it was a single loyalty, for to Lanier music was the very essence of poetry; not only, however, in the way we usually think of the relationship between the two, but also in a scientific way. He wrote a whole book, a scholarly work, on the thesis that the laws of music can and should be applied to the composition of poetry. It was entitled "The Science of English Verse," and it was a signal contribution to the science of prosody and is still in many respects unsuperseded.

Lanier's musicianship was not in the theoretical field alone. He was also an instrumentalist. He was what we call a born musician. Music was his earliest passion, and as a child he could play almost any kind of instrument, virtually uninstructed. It was a natural gift that he early recognized as extraordinary and as something to be reckoned with. In a college notebook he wrote: "I am more than all perplexed by this fact, that the prime inclination, that is, natural bent of my nature, is to music; and that I have the greatest talent and feel it within me plainly that I could rise as high as any composer."

He became, however, not a renowned composer, but a flute player, one of the best that the world has known. Asger Hamerik, for six years Lanier's director in the Peabody Symphony Orchestra of Baltimore, said this of his flute playing: "In his hands the flute was no longer a mere musical instrument, but was transformed into a voice that set heavenly harmonies into vibration. His conception of music was not reached by an analytic study of note by note, but was intuitive and spontaneous. His playing appealed alike to the musically learned and the unlearned—for he would magnetize the listener; but the artist felt in his performance the superiority of the momentary living inspiration to all the rules and shifts of mere technical scholarship. His art was not only the art of art, but an art above art."

As a poet he was not voluminous; all his poetry is contained in one volume. Nor is all of what he wrote destined to survive, but the best of it—poems such as "Sunrise," "Corn," "The Marshes of Glynn," and "The Symphony"—has taken its place in the "Great American Anthology." Through it all he is the supreme lyricist, the worshiper of beauty, the brave idealist. He lived in difficult times and it took courage to cry out as he did against industrialism, to sing of beauty in a war-torn country, to preach his gospel of music to a desolate people. Yet he felt himself the one called to do these things:

Old Want is awake and agog, every wrinkle a-frown;
The worker must pass to his work in the terrible town:
But I fear not, nay, and I fear not the thing to be done;
I am strong with the strength of my lord the Sun:
How dark, how dark soever the race that must needs be run,
I am lit with the Sun.

Throughout the land, especially in the South, there have been many memorials to Sidney Lanier that have kept his name alive. There have been markers and monuments and busts. Schools, libraries and trees have been named for him. Eight volumes of a series called "Poems of Trees" have been published in his honor. There have been biographies, studies, critiques. But all of those would seem empty and futile indeed if it were not for one thing.

That is the fact that Lanier's best poems are still alive, that in spite of the odds against him he has won a place in the affections of the people particularly the people who read poetry. And that is not explained alone by the intrinsic literary worth of his work, at whatever that may ultimately be evaluated. It is explained as well by his fundamental patriotism; he had something to give his countrymen, North and South alike, and he gave it unstintingly until, on September 7, 1881, his brief life ended, high in the mountains of North Carolina.

Farewell, my lord Sun!
The creeks overflow; a thousand rivulets run
'Twixt the roots of the sod; the blades of the marsh-grass stir;
Passeth a hurrying sound of wings that westward whirr;
Passeth, and all is still; and the currents cease to run;
And the sea and the marsh are one.

Drafting Labor

To draft labor to work in defense factories at soldier's pay is about the most completely idiotic idea yet to be injected into defense thought. It must be remembered that the Government provides the soldier, in addition to his pay, with every need necessary to his health and comfort. If the Government will defray individual expenses of each workingman, as in the case of the soldier, I am sure, for the sake of being more patriotic as well as for financial security, labor would indeed welcome the idea of being drafted in defense factories at soldiers' pay.

End Of A Campaign

By Ernest Lindley

Nazi Threats Reduce French Spirit

FOR TWENTY-TWO months the American Government has been fighting a rear-guard delaying action in France. Its main purpose has been to prevent the French fleet and the French bases in Africa and Madagascar from being put into the service of the Axis. Its more general purpose, of course, has been to revive and increase the French spirit of independence.

LINDLEY

To fight this action, the American Government has had little except the fragile weapons of diplomacy. If, as now appears, the thin line of resistance has been overwhelmed by Nazi threats, that does not mean that the American policy was poorly conceived or poorly executed.

The State Department repeatedly, and increasingly, has been condemned for "playing ball" with Vichy instead of breaking off relations and going "all out" for the Free French. But the Free French do not control unoccupied France, or French Africa, or Madagascar, or the French fleet. These have been controlled, more or less, by the government at Vichy.

UNQUESTIONABLY Petain and a majority of the French cabinet members made an awful blunder in June, 1940, when they decided, in effect that the war would soon be concluded by the overwhelming of the British Isles. If they had fought on from the French African bases, the redemption of France almost certainly would be nearer than it now is. The fleet and the ground and air forces outside metropolitan France were their bargaining power. They used it to obtain an armistice somewhat less onerous immediately than complete defeat would have been. The constant aim of the American Government has been to prevent this bargaining power from being whittled away or surrendered. But it had been impaired, even before Petain capitulated this week by bringing Laval into the cabinet.

On two or three previous occasions, American officials gave up hope of salvaging anything out of Vichy. But at the last minute, Petain stiffened or reconsidered. His ace in the hole was always the plea that if the Nazis pressed him too hard he could not give assurances that his commands would be obeyed by the French fleet and in the French possessions.

To bewildered France, our State Department could offer little that was tangible. If offered sympathy and recollections of the friendship of the American people, proven by the A. E. F. of 1917-18. It could offer a little food and some medical supplies. It made a separate deal with the French authorities in North Africa. We shipped a few shiploads of necessities in return for cargoes of materials which we needed for ourselves. In addition, we were permitted to install a corps of observers in Morocco and at other points to supervise the distribution of these necessities. As a result, our Government has been well informed—up to now at least—of developments at such critical points as the French naval bases at Casablanca and Dakar. These first-hand observers, incidentally, have repeatedly disproven reports inspired by other sources as to the extent of Nazi infiltration into these areas.

AS TIME wore on, the biggest inducement the United States had to offer was the eventual defeat of the Axis. This inducement has been impaired in two ways: By the military adversities of the last four months and by the feeling engendered in the French that our friendship for them was firm. French leaders could argue, and probably did, that they could not lose by a greater degree of collaboration with the Axis; that if the British and Americans won the war, they would give France a generous deal, anyway. When the State Department says that one of our aims is the liberation of the French people, does it encourage or discourage the French people to do their utmost to assure victory for the United Nations? It may be necessary to remind the French people, as well as their titular leaders, that the penalty for collaboration with the Axis will be their treatment as enemies when the United Nations write the terms of victory. This, in effect, is the warning which Acting Secretary of State Welles gave a few days ago to the governments and people of Bulgaria, Rumania and Hungary when he told them that if they take part in the Nazi spring offensive, Congress will be asked to declare war on them.

The surest proof that the American policy was effective, at least in delaying collaboration, is that the Nazis sought strenuously, and finally succeeded, in sidetracking first Gen. Weygand in North Africa and now Marshal Petain. They have had to put into power Laval, "the most hated man in France." The seriousness of the event cannot be discounted. But until the French bases and French fleet are actually put at the disposal of the Axis, there is always room for hope. It is a hope which can be saved probably, only by the use of armed force in the very near future—by a display of Anglo-American power on the continent of Europe, or in Africa, sufficient to hearten the French who want to resist and to halt collaboration before it has delivered what is left of French armed strength—which is considerable on the sea—into the hands of Hitler.

Canadian Wheat

By Janet R. Keith

Combating Surplus

EARLY this year 400 delegates from the western wheatlands of Canada rolled into Ottawa one morning. They brought with them a petition to the Canadian government signed by 185,000 prairie wheat farmers. What they sought was a new deal for wheat. Specifically, they wanted the pegged price of wheat moved up from 70 cents to a dollar a bushel for No. 1 Northern. They wanted the prices of all farm products raised to a parity with 1926-29 prices. They wanted agriculture recognized as a definite war industry, with advance production goals, an adequate supply of skilled labor and sufficient income to maintain labor and equipment.

Reasonable enough demands! But the wheat situation in Canada is a network of complications. Like all other countries in this hemisphere, Canada has at the present time a tremendous surplus of wheat. At the end of July last year she had a carry-over of 480 million bushels, as compared with a carry-over of 387 million bushels in the United States. This is rather a staggering amount when it is considered that Canada has about three-quarters of a million farmers, as against six million in the States.

WITH A SURPLUS like this on hand, it would almost appear that the government should lower the price of wheat and discourage its production. But there is a large area in western Canada, containing almost 10 per cent of the country's total population, which is good for nothing but wheat-raising. The prosperity of this area, which takes in most important cities and towns in Saskatchewan and Alberta, rises and falls with the price per bushel of wheat.

It was from this area that the delegation was sent to Ottawa. The entire cost of the trip was financed by private contributions which averaged about 25 cents each. It was the only way these people had of letting the government know that a pegged wheat price of 70 cents was ruining them. Their teachers were getting salaries of $350 a year, and in many cases not being able to collect that much. Business in cities and towns was getting worse. Why, when all production costs and all other prices were rising, should the price of wheat remain static?

This, then, was the problem confronting the Canadian government when it worked out its wheat policy for this year. Without adding too much to the tremendous stores of grain on hand, Canada must somehow help the people of the prairie provinces.

THE NEW POLICY, announced last year in the House of Commons, seems like a fair enough compromise. First of all, the fixed initial price for wheat delivered in Vancouver or at the head of the Great Lakes will be 90 cents a bushel. This, the government feels, will be an effective way of helping those who need financial assistance most. It is the highest government-guaranteed price for wheat since the last war.

Because Canada has placed a rigid ceiling on all prices of consumer goods, this 20-cent increase on wheat must not mean a proportionate rise in the cost of cereal products. The government, through the medium of the Canadian Wheat Board, will absorb the loss by continuing to sell wheat to domestic buyers at a price which will enable them to sell wheat products to consumers under the ceiling.

The government also proposes to raise the amount of wheat permitted to be marketed in the prairie provinces and British Columbia from 230 million bushels last year to 280 million bushels during 1942-43. This increase, coupled with the new price for wheat, will raise the potential wheat income of the prairie provinces from 125 million dollars last year to 206 million dollars this year.

AT THE SAME time the government is going to pay $2 an acre for wheat acreage reduction, which, on the basis of 1941 experience, will add another 20 million dollars to farm income. This would not improve the farmer's position if the government were prepared to take all he could grow. But the fact that the government will buy only 280 million bushels will be an incentive to reduce acreage. Under this plan it is hoped that wheat acreage will be held down to about 20 million acres, as against 29 million acres in 1940. Never before has any farming population anywhere in the world taken nine million acres out of one crop and put it to other use. This tremendous acreage reduction is bound to take more money out of farmers' pockets than the government can replace. Farmers are cooperating because they are convinced that by so doing they are serving the best interests of the Allied war effort.

The growing of coarse grains will be encouraged. They are used exclusively as feed grains in Canada and are not exported. Their importance is emphasized this year by the tremendous demand for livestock and dairy products. Farmers will be paid $2 an acre for land converted from wheat to coarse grains. Minimum price levels are being set for barley at 60 cents and for oats at 45 cents. The minimum price for flax, a valuable source of vegetable oil, is fixed at $2.25 a bushel for 1942.

Canadian wheat farmers still will be getting 10 cents a bushel less than they asked for. They are still not satisfied that the government is going to assure them an adequate supply of skilled labor. But on the whole the government's policy of increased wheat price, reduced acreage, encouragement of coarse grains, seems to be a fairly good one.

Wheat, after all, is not the most desperately needed commodity in the world at the moment. This July the United States expects to have a carry-over of 610 million bushels, Canada 400 million bushels, Argentina 215 million bushels, Australia 145 million bushels. The United States is shifting its 1942 production goals from wheat, cotton and tobacco to meat and lard, dairy products, eggs and poultry, vegetables, hemp, soybeans and peanuts. The Canadian minister of trade and commerce said recently that if the Canadian government were to establish priorities in farm production, wheat would have to be placed down the list under hogs, feed grains, milk, butter and cheese.

Britain's New Perils

By Mark Sullivan

Must Be Met With Utmost Energy

BY TODAY'S EVENTS, Britain is brought to the greatest peril in its empire history. Since we are bound up with Britain—not only in this war but in common inheritance of the ideas which are the war's stake—we likewise are in a danger which we can overcome only by the utmost energy and resolution. We, and Britain, must fight with a courage that is beyond courage, if we are to survive.

SULLIVAN

Today's installment of Britain's peril, latest in a long series, is the alignment of Vichy France with the Axis. To recite the setbacks and perils of which this is the latest, would be a litany of disasters. The most recent, a week ago, was the refusal of India's leaders to agree with Britain. The time and circumstances of that refusal suggest a somber explanation. On the very day a Japanese fleet and air force were in India's waters, making headway against Britain. The India leaders, one feels, may have been moved in part by lack of certainty that Britain would prevail.

What Britain, and we, should do about Vichy, depends on information possessed by our diplomatic and naval authorities. But the governing principle is clear to all—we should act in the spirit of strength, not appeasement. If Vichy's deference to Germany means danger that the French fleet may be turned against us, then seize the fleet or destroy it, at once. If there is likelihood that France's colonies may become bases for the Axis, seize the colonies, at once.

THROUGHOUT this whole war and the period before, runs a continuous cause of Britain's and our defeats. At every crisis, we lacked the factor of resolution which, when in excess, is ruthlessness. At a dozen points, from the meeting of Chamberlain and Hitler at Munich, down to the present day, Britain did the decent thing, while Hitler was ruthless—and Hitler won the point. In our own case, had we been ruthless, willing to beat Japan to the punch, to attack Japan before she attacked us—in that case the war in the Pacific might today be almost over, and in our favor.

So much for Vichy, and what seems to this writer the most important aspect of the news, a decisive crisis in the war. I turn now to something personal yet having public interest. I have four friends or relatives who possess an extraordinary faculty—they are able to summon back and repeat nearly all the poetry they ever read. One was—and this will surprise many, the man whom the world inadequately knew as "Old Iron Pants," General Hugh Johnson, who died the other day.

THE POETIC trait in Johnson was part of a deep strain of romantic sentiment. That quality of his heart was in strong contrast with the forthright ruggedness of his mind—the poet in fitful insubordination against the brusque soldier and stern logician. And the conflict between heart and mind accounted for his inconsistencies, the lack of a steady pattern in his late career as a commentator—his personal loyalty toward some leaders of the New Deal, arising out of old associations, at war with his scornful understanding that much of the New Deal was an impossible fallacy, many of its personnel feeble pedestrians trying to act as if they were strong men on horseback.

In one incident of an almost lifelong and uninterruptedly affectionate association with Johnson, going back to when he was a young lieutenant in the Army I called him on the phone. I had been groping for some lines of verse, of which I could recall only fragments. To Johnson, I repeated two or three phrases. Instantly he, as the saying is, took the words out of my mouth. With high delight, leaping into the gallant spirit of the poem, he rattled off practically the whole of "Drake's Drum," by Sir Henry Newbolt. I quote some lines of it here (with some Devon dialect locutions changed), for the hero of it was much kin to Johnson; and the theme of the verse—the courage and force and resolution even beyond death, of a leader who helped make Britain's greatness centuries ago—is the quality of Britain's glorious past which will today sustain her.

Drake is in his hammock, till the great armadas come,
(Captain art thou sleeping there below?) . . .
Take my drum to England, hang it by the shore,
Strike it when your powder's running low,
If the Dons sight Devon, I'll quit the port of Heaven,
And drum them up the channel as we drummed them long ago. . . .

Knowlson Denies Industry Has Resisted War Conversion

By the Associated Press

James S. Knowlson, director of industry operations for the War Production Board, yesterday told a Senate defense investigating committee, "I believe industry has been more or less maligned by those who claim it has resisted conversion."

Knowlson's testimony was a contrast to that of Robert R. Guthrie, who resigned as head of the WPB textile, clothing and leather goods branch and has charged that $1-a-year men in the organization were resisting conversion in their industries.

"I do not believe industry has resisted conversion," said Knowlson, himself a $1-a-year man. "They have resisted what they felt might be liquidation. But all that is over.

"Within the next two or three months what is left of civilian production will be but an appendix to war production."

Knowlson said conversion of plants already was proceeding faster than most people realized, but cautioned:

"We must not confuse haste with speed. We must not let ourselves become hysterical and create problems which would otherwise not exist."

Robert R. Nathan, chairman of the planning committee of the War Production Board, said that the Government was going to have to be "tough and hard" in insisting that the war effort come first and that if a manufacturer of nonessential civilian goods found he could not operate without a critical raw material, such as aluminum, "it will be just too bad."

Fair Enough

Malnutrition

Tucson, Ariz.

A NOTE of pathos has marred the current light and jovial banter over proposals to banish racketeers from the unions and guarantee the free American's right to work at lawful toil subject to the licensing and taxing power of no private organization. Some of the union publications which, taken as a group, are conducted in the financial and political interest of the boss unioneers at the expense of the workers, have wept over the physical reports of the medical examiners of the draft boards. It appears that a considerable proportion of all the eligibles are rejected for physical unfitness and it is agreed that all this is due to malnutrition.

The malnutrition, in turn, is charged to the rapacity of the employers, and the conclusion is that, for the sake of their children's health, American toilers should be required to pay from $25 to $300 or even as much as $3000 out of their starvation poverty for passports through the factory gates. That this money might be better spent for milk and groceries for the young than on yachts, limousine jobs, racing stables and weekend air excursions to luxurious suites in Florida for prosperous unioneers during the wintering time of the criminal scum is a thought which might occur to many objective thinkers.

BUT, waiving that point, I think we may be of fairly good cheer anyway because not all physical imperfection is chargeable to malnutrition. Flat feet, for example, is the cause of a great many rejections, and asthma, which is entirely free of snobbery, afflicting alike the son of suburban merchant and factory toiler, is the cause of others. We have also many cardiacs whose trouble may be traced to a number of causes other than malnutrition and I have personal knowledge of two young men who never lacked wholesome food at home who were turned back for hay fever and trick knee, respectively. The hay fever subject was an applicant in aviation and may be found fit for one of the ground or sea forces but the trick knee case is a young giant, rising six feet two, and still the doctors would not have him for the Army, although he walks with no limp and plays a fair game of tennis.

Then we have to count in young men suffering from certain impairments subsequent to venereal infection and others who have hereditary physical faults traceable to ancestral ills of the same type. And, finally, we will have to subtract some at least whose malnutrition was not due to poverty but to improper cuisine at home. So, altogether, I suggest that the case for malnutrition due to poverty, due to boss-rapacity, due to nonunionism, must be considerably less tragic than the kept press of the unioneers would have us think.

BUT one naturally thinks now of the soldiers of China and Japan whose diet from childhood is considerably below the American standard, and of the poor but hardy Greek who wheeled on the invincible legions of the Duce and would have chased them into the sea but for the intervention of the mechanized robots of der Fuehrer, whose bitterest complaint against the civilized world was the starvation in childhood of these same faceless men of his. Many of the present fighting generation of British males also lived on short and ill balanced rations when they were very young. The Spaniards, tough and brave on both sides of their civil war, were born and raised poor, and our Russian Allies of fighting age were conceived in famine and grew to stalwart manhood through a succession of famines. Even the French were not well fed by our standards as French children never are, what with their coffee and wine, but their failure in war was due more to politics than to physical weakness of the individual soldier. Hammered no worse than the British, they fell away in confusion reminiscent of their national Parliament, which was the source of their fatal weakness.

ONE MIGHT like to know, if malnutrition of the young is an important factor in this rate of rejection, what proportion of the earnings of the parents was spent on tobacco, for example, and whisky and movies, three very expensive nonessentials which adorn our standard of living, and what on fuel, rubber and mechanical wear and tear for frivolous mileage in their automobiles.

This leads only into conjecture but, if it is truth we seek to cure our ills, we thwart ourselves in blaming boss-greed beyond the right degree. Added to the net family income of the toiler, the billion-and-more a year of earnings that comes off the top for union fees and dues might buy a distinct improvement in the diet of the young of those who pay the toll.

A Great Raid

By Barnet Nover

Toward An Offensive In The Pacific

THE RAID on Japanese bases in the Philippines which was carried out over the week-end by 13 American bombers based on Australia was as spectacular an exploit as the war in the Pacific has yet seen. Indeed it was so spectacular, so boldly and brilliantly carried out, so full of promise for the future, that it may have an aftermath of disappointment unless its true nature is clearly understood.

NOVER

In the dispatches telling of this raid by three Flying Fortresses and 10 medium bombers under the superb leadership of Brig. Gen. Ralph Boyce, understandable emphasis is placed on the circumstance that the striking force had to cover at least 2800 miles to reach Davao and return, 4000 miles for the round trip to Manila.

It would seem from this that the day may not be far off when American bombers in even greater force than that which raided the Philippines will be able to take off from some point in United States territory, drop their lethal loads on Japanese centers and return to their bases.

When that day comes the war in the Pacific will have taken a new and, for us, very promising turn. But we cannot safely conclude from Gen. Boyce's brilliant maneuver that that day is at hand or just around the corner.

WHILE rejoicing over what Gen. Boyce and his comrades have done there are two aspects of their raid on the Philippines which must not be lost to sight.

The first is that the 13 bombers engaged in the raid did not cover the round-trip distance between Australia and the Philippines in one great hop. The second is that the raiders did not encounter at Manila, Cebu, Matangas and Davao the kind of opposition they are likely to encounter in a raid, say on Tokyo or Osaka.

The Army communique tells us that after leaving Australia the raiders landed at air fields "much nearer the targets." In other words, somewhere between Australia and the points bombed our fliers had the use of secret bases.

In an attack on the Japanese islands either from Alaska or Free China no such stopping place is available to our raiders. A raid on Tokyo or Osaka or Nagoya would, therefore, have to be carried out by planes capable of staying in the air the full distance between the taking-off point and the target and return. It happens that we have planes with that range. But whether we have enough of them to carry out more than token raids on Japanese cities is not clear.

More important is the circumstance that in the raid on the Philippines the only opposition our bombers encountered was that from antiaircraft guns. Because of the surprise element and for other reasons no enemy fighters went up to oppose them. We must assume, however, that the Japanese cities are defended not only by antiaircraft but also by fighters. And even under the most favorable circumstances, i.e. a raid on Japan from Vladivostok, the bombers would have to operate without fighter protection.

IN OTHER WORDS, an air offensive against the Japanese islands on a scale likely to do real harm to the enemy, awaits the day when our air power in the Pacific is far greater than it has been hitherto.

For the time being the American raid on the Philippines must be regarded as a tactical success rather than as a strategic victory. And the fact must be recognized that while such tactical successes have a long-run importance they cannot, in and of themselves, turn the tide of war in the Pacific.

We must remember, in this connection, that the Navy's raids on the Marshall Islands and later on Marcus Island, the punishment inflicted on the foe in the Battle of Macassar Strait, the war of attrition waged on enemy shipping by American submarines, have not prevented the Japanese from winning one major victory after another in the Southwestern Pacific. Today they are within close proximity to the Burmese oil fields, are driving a wedge between the British and the Chinese forces in Burma and have practically unchallenged naval superiority in the Indian Ocean.

"IF THE ALLIES could get sufficient planes to Burma," said Gen. Royce, in commenting on his raid, "and strike across into China, they could cut the Japanese lines with long-range bombers."

The Japanese realize this, too. Their eagerness to cut China off from communication with her Allies by blocking all means of ingress and egress via Burma helps explain the tremendous effort they are making to conquer Burma before the rainy season forces a halt to military operations. Yet so far the Allies have found it impossible to halt the Japanese who today are within striking distance of the Burmese oil fields.

In view of what is happening in Burma, our rejoicing over the raid on the Philippines must be held in check. Yet qualify the importance and significance of that raid as we must so as to keep the entire Pacific picture in proper perspective, there is no doubt that it was a most encouraging development.

It was, in the first place, a demonstration of that offensive spirit without which wars cannot be won. And if it does not mean that raids on the Japanese islands are now possible, it does mean that a large part of the Japanese-conquered area in the South Pacific is now open to attack by our air force.

At the very least this will force a spreading out of Japan's not inexhaustible strength over a tremendous area, thus ultimately limiting the force she will be able to apply at any one point. And it also means that even from the Antipodes, United Nations air power is now in a position to wage a war of attrition on Japanese shipping and Japanese installations in the Southwestern Pacific. There are many headaches for our enemy in that prospect.

The Gallup Poll

Public Not Satisfied That Labor, Business Are Going 'All-Out in Nation's War Effort

By George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., April 16.—The United Automobile Workers Union, C. I. O., began a newspaper advertising campaign this week to tell the public its point of view in the matter of war sacrifices.

That such a campaign comes at a time when it is needed is amply evidenced by a study of the views of John Q. Public just completed by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Only slightly more than one-third of the American public is convinced that labor unions are going all-out in the war effort. Many complain that labor is more concerned about preserving its rights than it is about winning the war.

The majority of all persons interviewed from coast to coast have the impression that business and industry, as well as farmers, are making a greater all-out effort than labor unions. However, the public is by no means entirely satisfied with the war efforts of American businessmen or farmers, either.

The views of the people were gathered in response to the following questions, with results as shown:

"Do you think business and industry are going all-out to win the war?"

Yes	58%
No	33
Undecided	9

"Do you think labor unions are going all-out to win the war?"

Yes	37%
No	50
Undecided	13

"Do you think farmers are going all-out to win the war?"

Yes	69%
No	12
Undecided	19

Each person interviewed who said he thought labor unions were not going all-out was asked: "What more do you think they could do?"

More than half of all persons who offered suggestions said that strikes should be done away with. Others said that "unions should stop being so grabby about money," or should "tone down" their demands for wage increases during the war emergency.

From the results and the character of the comments in the survey, it is clear that people are still greatly concerned about strikes despite the fact that labor leaders in the Government say that losses from work stoppages have been reduced to 3.70 per cent of similar losses at this time a year ago.

These voters who think that business and industry are not sufficiently all-out for war, say that businessmen are still thinking too much about profits and that many have been too slow about converting their plants to war production.

The chief complaint against the farmers, the survey indicates, is that they are "pushing too hard to get high prices for their crops."

Marines Have the Palace Well in Hand This Week

IF YOU DON'T KNOW "Anchors Aweigh" and "From the Halls of Montezuma to the Shores of Tripoli" from first bar to last, you will by the time you leave Loew's Palace Theater this week after having viewed the Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor production of "To the Shores of Tripoli."

As the theme numbers of the martial musical score, they provide an accurate index to what the picture is all about—a close-up and detailed examination of what it takes to make a Marine, as exemplified by the routine training of the Leathernecks at the San Diego naval base in California, with a little love interest and comic sentimental by-play tossed into the duffle bag for good measure.

The story churned up for the screen by Lamar Trotti, from an original by Steve Fisher, is the old familiar one you probably would have written yourself on short notice. All about the fresh young squirt who has been booted out of his captaincy at Culver and sent to the old topkick, who had served through the First World War with his old man, for seasoning—if there was anything there to season beyond a vast propensity for "girl trouble" and a terrific case of over-inflation. This young playboy, of course, is bunked with the youthful incompetent who loves everything about the service that Chris Winters hates and whose heart is broken when he fails to make the grade as a sea soldier and is assigned to M. P. duty ashore.

Aside from the slight variations in the form of Winter's insubordination, the methods of reform applied by the case-hardened Sergt. Dixie Smith and the fictional incidents devised to create excitement without moving the whole thing to the battlefronts, the formula is the one that has worn so thin from such long and constant usage. As to those battle fronts, instead of being a "war picture," "To the Shores of Tripoli" is strictly a morale-builder, with the attack on Pearl Harbor coming along just in the nick of time to provide its amusing and thoroughly stirring fadeout. So you don't need to worry about any grim scenes of slaughter or the booming of too many guns, except at target practice.

That target practice business, incidentally, furnishes the dramatic climax of the action and demonstrates that the son of a good Marine has something bred into him that is more apt than not to make him a good Marine, too, given a little time for the top sarge to show him up. The romantic movements of the story and a great deal that happens on the drill fields and in the dormitories and mess halls are dedicated primarily to comedy and manage to generate a full quota of laughs that leave a sufficiently pleasant aftertaste to win the film a nice round of applause at the end.

Able Cast Overcomes Triteness

There is nothing wrong with the way "To the Shores of Tripoli" is played, unless it can be found in the U. S. Marine Corps manual. How much of the comedy oversteps regulations we wouldn't be too sure about. If any does, it may be forgiven for making the picture a livelier entertainment than it would be otherwise. John Payne, as the rebellious recruit, turns in an excellent job of irritating swellheadedness and on the evidence of his performance probably would wind up with a commission. Randolph Scott is made to order for the role of Sergt. Dixie Smith and Maureen O'Hara, third of the stellar triumvirate, is the kind of nurse for whom any enlistee would lie himself into the hospital. Nancy Kelly and Iris Adrian do Technicolor high credit and William Tracy gets the "feel" of the kid who couldn't make good.

So the Marine Got Plastered!

MAUREEN O'HARA AND JOHN PAYNE as they appear in an amusing scene in "To the Shores of Tripoli," during which Nurse Mary Carter proves to Leatherneck Chris Winters that when nothing ails a guy, a nice, hot mustard plaster is the best thing to cure it! This Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor salute to the United States Marine Corps is now on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater

NormaShearer,MelvynDouglas Costar in 'We Were Dancing'

By Richard L. Coe

Perversely enough, this slovenly memory can't recall the vaguest details of the sketch in Noel Coward's nine-part "Tonight at 8:30" which forms the basis of the Capitol's co-starring vehicle for Norma Shearer and Melvyn Douglas, "We Were Dancing." But it's obvious M-G-M has added an antidote to the Coward acid in the form of a hearty dose of regeneration. The cup, in fact, runneth over.

Our iron day is, of course, hardly the time to be considering how much it profits some sleek persons to toil not neither to spin. The upper-crust spongers, to whom Miss Shearer and Douglas are assigned to bring their smooth artifices, seem downright immoral in a day when even empty shells must find a use. Therefore, one understands why the film-makers preferred their moral love in a cottage rather than passion in a penthouse.

"Professional Guests"

Such an admirable notion, though, is pretty tiresome as strictly entertainment fare. It achieves something of the aura of those smart advertisements for white-tiled kitchens and fold-away beds. Perhaps Miss Shearer and Douglas will be comfortable in their cozy cote, but one fears for them in the straight-backed days that are ahead.

Let us descend to earth. "We Were Dancing" concerns the beautiful Polish princess who is about to marry the wealthy young American, a nice straightforward fellow supposedly stuffy, but we can't think why. Be that as it may, it isn't love. The suave fellow who drops in at the wedding eve dance is, however. They dance together so beautifully that, poof, they roar away in his high-powered machine and are wed by sunup.

This groom is as improvident as his lightheaded bride. Together they continue the career that had supported both before marriage. They become professional guests. But even the most lavish guest suites pall and the princess gets a touch of decency. She even descends to divorce in an effort to become wealthy honestly. And if you think that loveless marriages are permitted to rest at peace, you don't know your movie codes.

All these adventures among the haut monde are accomplished in sets of splendor and clothes of chic. Sharing this easy world with the stars are Gail Patrick, looking very fetching indeed; Lee Bowman, two times a bridegroom with nary a bride; Marjorie Main, amusing as a feminine judge, and Alan Mowbray, as a more successful sponger.

It all boils down to too much effort on a slight yarn that has had its day.

The Capitol stage doings get off to an orchestral start with Sam Jack Kaufman leading "Morning, Noon and Night" and Art Brown organizing a couple of boy-girl songs that are honeys for all-out participation.

Headliner is titavating Senor Wences, the chap who keeps his assistants in little boxes and gets merry backtalk for his troubles, a funny diverting fellow. From the radio come the Bailey Sisters with a couple of applause-worthy versions of some current songs. The Stuart Morgan dancers are among the smoothest blonde-tossing acts; Fredericks and Lane and the Rhythm Rockets complete the bill.

"John Garfield tried to steal the picture from me," Spencer Tracy confessed, "Frank Morgan tried to steal it from John, Akim Tamiroff tried to steal it from Frank—and the trained dogs in the picture stole it from all of us" . . . Tamiroff, however, proved truly expert in the art of scene-stealing. In one sequence, the four men are shown sleeping, their faces completly covered by sombreros. Akim prepared for it by wearing one torn sock. And when the camera was focused on the sleeping men, he attracted the attention by wiggling his toe.

Last week, although the receipts dropped to the lowest they've ever been, the producer told George Jessel: "If I told you that my partners might invest $10,000 more of their money to keep the show open—would you say that's possible?" . . . "I would say it's possible," said Jessel, "that your partners are counterfeiters."

Hollywood, Calif., April 16. It must be a great satisfaction to a studio when they put on a party like the one at RKO this week, sponsored by the Motion Picture Society for the Americas; doubly so when the guests of honor are as completely charming as Doctor Figueiredo and his wife. Doctor Figueiredo is assistant director of the Department of Press and Propaganda in Brazil, but "Ambassador of Good Will" would be a more suitable title, for both he and his pretty wife met each and every person at that gathering with a warmth and friendliness whose sincerity could not be doubted.

Jack Votion, producer of the Lum and Abner pictures for RKO is negotiating with Frances Marion for one of her published stories. Lum and Abner have the same homespun quality that endeared Will Rogers and Marie Dressler to the public; and those of you who've read "Valley People" know that Frances Marion is a past-master at such characterizations. It sounds like a swell combination all around.

Andy Devine and Director Lew Collins were clowning during the lunch hour on "Danger in the Pacific" set—Andy wielding the megaphone and Collins emoting through a scene of purple passion; but when they ran the day's rushes in the projection room, the cameraman had caught the whole thing with a pocket "Eyemo"—and Collins had to set up drinks for the entire cast and crew!

Ironic that Orson Welles should bring out history of automobile manufacture in "The Magnificent Ambersons" just as country quit making the darned things!

Policies of the Vermin Press Resemble Those of Goebbels' Own Der Angrieff

Papers May Be Counted By the Dozens

By Dillard Stokes
Post Staff Writer

(Editor's note.—Scores of verminous little sheets, each with a few thousand readers, are gnawing away at the faith and unity of our people, whispering defeat and clamoring about "freedom of the press." Their common policy—"made in Germany"—is to turn Americans against one another, and to split America from the United Nations. This is the last article of a series about these papers.)

The papers and the bulletins and the magazines of the vermin press may be counted by the dozens.

Their difference and variety are as bewildering as their uniformities are sinister.

They are in every size—from half tabloid to full eight-column; in every medium—from smart machine-set type to sloppy mimeograph; in every section—from New York to San Diego.

Some come out with ominous regularity, suggesting plenty of money backing; others are mere sporadic eruptions of handbills. Some speak in suave, subtle English; others use a mystical garble.

Allies Attacked

Whatever its form, whatever its choice of language, these are the policies of the vermin press:

1. To attack England, and the Netherlands, and Russia; to doubt their motives, question their courage, impugn their honor and belittle their value as Allies.

2. To besmirch the President of the United States, to slander his wife, humiliate his advisers, twist his words, embarrass his friends and glorify his enemies.

3. To bait the Jews, to incite hatred of Negroes and foment distrust of the foreign born.

4. To protest loud concern for this Republic and to depict the Communists as a huge and powerful menace, allied with all the foregoing, from which nothing can save us but the vermin press, with its crackpot finance and its doctrine of systematized hatreds.

There is a shocking resemblance to the policies of Der Angrieff, Joe Goebbels' newspaper.

The writers of the vermin press are adept at putting these things into phrases, smooth or rowdy according to the character of the publication. But it is their practice to cull their fellow publications, the legitimate press and the Congressional Record, and then to reprint whatever seems calculated to serve the common policy of the vermin press.

Among public men, these editors have their heroes.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Republican), of Michigan, for instance, because he lashes the Nation's President and its labor unions with equal violence. So his utterances are published and his notions applauded. And one editor obtained Hoffman's "Roosevelt is a Judas" speech and sold it in quantity lots, with copies of a seditious card thrown in for good measure.

And strangely, General MacArthur—for they can blame everything that has happened to him on the President.

The Constitution of the United States says "the freedom of the press . . . shall not be infringed." The vermin press refers to this guarantee in every issue, beside the articles which disavow every other guarantee.

Attorney General Biddle last Tuesday ruled that the Bill of Rights never was meant to cloak attacks upon America from within, in time of war. Postmaster General Walker promptly cracked down on Social Justice.

The others remain . . .

Newsman's Wife Tells Him Greece Fell After Gallant Battle

By Alma De Luce
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York.—It was midnight, and I was standing on the rocky slopes of Lycabettus Hill in Athens watching flames eat at the City of Pireaus.

The German bombers had been over. Like harbingers of the added destruction to come, they ranged far ahead of the German army rolling down the Greek peninsula and fired the port city a few miles away.

The Greeks had stopped the Italians in their tracks. The Greeks, buttressed by the British, could not stop the Germans.

I was not alone. Tens of thousands in the City of Athens, disdaining air raid shelters, watched the fires swab the sky with crimson.

The Greeks were fighting back. It was like a fireworks display, magnified a hundred times. Searchlights fingered the raiding planes, and the smoke from bursting shells was so thick that the glistening specks, which were the planes, looked as though they were caught in gauge.

Tracer amunition in the antiaircraft guns drew long, dotted lines from the ground into the smoke. Occasionally one of the specks fell, ever so slowly, trailing sooty smoke. When it struck, a flash of white light marked its death. Then Athens would roar and clap its enthusiam. Human sounds almost drowned out the crash of the guns.

The guns had three rhythms, three voices. There was the high metallic clatter of the antiaircraft. There was the crack of the larger guns. There was the low deep boom of the big guns across the bay.

Apart from it all was the unmistakable ca-rump of bursting bombs.

The nation that was Greece was being destroyed. We knew it was being destroyed. My gray-haired maid, Calliope, ran into the streets, shaking her fists and wringing her hands.

"Those dirty Germans," she cried, cursing in Greek. She had a son at the front. "Why am I not a man so I could fight?" This was in a sob.

I wasn't frightened yet. I had not been frightened when a British ship loaded with tons of TNT had blown up in the harbor of Pireaus, making the earth tremble and breaking windows in Athens.

"The Germans will not bomb Athens," Dan told me. "They won't destroy the Greek archeological treasures."

They didn't bomb Athens, but day after day there was the sound of antiaircraft guns and the drone of planes overhead. Then, one morning, I was awakened by the steady banging of the guns on Lycabettus. They shook the house and threaded through the roar was the snarl of planes crossing the city. Inexplicably, I was scared.

The war would last for weeks more, of course. Everybody said it would. Up north the retreat was purely strategic. I told that to Calliope. She crossed herself.

But it was a doomed city, a doomed country. On a Wednesday night, late, Dan—back from the front—and I walked home from his office in the King George Hotel.

I don't believe in portents, but Athens was like a city of the dead. Every window was blue-shuttered. In almost 30 minutes of walking we saw no one. The cold, impersonal light of the moon bathed the white marble buildings. The city itself was as ghostly as the Acropolis. The silence was absolute except for the echo of our footballs and the rustling of Mimosa trees in the melancholy wind. At a turn in the street a gust blew an old newspaper against our feet.

"We may have to leave soon," said Dan. "See what you can find out about boats tomorrow."

At 9 o'clock the next morning, when I left the house, Athens was calm. Two hours later it was in panic.

Taxis were at a premium. At the British legation refugees milled around packed trunks. Rumors sold for a song. Hurrying crowds swarmed through the streets.

At the old palace government official said we must get out that day or not at all. The Germans would be in the city in two or three days. The Aegean would be filled with boats evacuating soldiers.

As neutrals we had a choice: to flee, or to remain for the occupation and a subsequent release. We chose the former.

But choosing and doing were two different things. How could we leave?

Finding a boat was a nightmare. We tried futilely to arrange for deck space on two boats. Then we heard of a tobacco boat, leaving that night for Turkey. It would be at Eleusis, about 20 miles away. We packed our bags and raced to the wharf. The boat wasn't there. It had been moved up the coast 30 miles. We drove interminably through a rain and the blackout to its new berth. The port was closed.

The tobacco boat set sail. It was never heard from again.

We drove home. It rained drearily. We were exhausted. Earlier in the evening I had closed the house and given Calliope the key. Now I had to find her.

"Where does she live?" asked Dan.

"I don't know exactly." I was desperately tired. It was hard to think. "I think I can find her. I'll try."

I climbed the street stairways of Lycabettos, searching. All the streets looked alike. All the houses looked alike. Then a courtyard seemed vaguely familiar. I knocked on a window, calling her name, then on a second and a third. Calliope, excited, thrust her head out. She proffered the key.

Back at the house I put the key in the lock. Inside, the telephone was ringing. I thrust the door open. Reilly O'Sullivan, a member of the Associated Press and Wide World staff in Athens, was on the telephone.

"Cy Sulzberger is leaving at 5 o'clock for Turkey," said Reilly. "There is space for you if you want to go."

Cy was the New York Times correspondent.

It was one o'clock.

It seemed like such a tiny boat, when we arrived at the waterfront at daybreak. It was owned by a sponge fisherman. Its 30 feet, from stem to stern, held 14 persons and a dog, not counting sponge fishing equipment strewn everywhere.

The captain would take us only to some island within sight of the Turkish shore, he said, because he had no Turkish landing papers. He looked like a pirate. But I didn't mind. I went dead asleep on the sloping hatch above the pounding motor.

Except for floating mines and airplanes droning overhead, it might have been a pleasure cruise through the Aegean Islands. Dolphins leaped from the water. Sea and sky were a deep blue and the sun shone.

At the Island of Chios we encountered trouble. We had decided to reconnoiter. The military situation was changing hourly and we stopped off at a village before proceeding to the port of Chios. Gendarmes with rifles stalked us. In vain did we explain that we had put in only for news.

No, we must register. We had visions of sitting in some village jail in the Aegean when Greece fell, and of remaining there until the slow machinery of the occupation finally released us.

We pleaded. We argued. We threatened. And at last we got away.

We put in at the port of Chios. Its population was still frightened from a machine-gunning by German planes two hours before. We wore out three interpreters and the chief of police in a debate over exit visas. Turkey was almost within touching distance. We could see the houses of the little village of Cesme and a ruined castle on a hill, reddened by the setting sun.

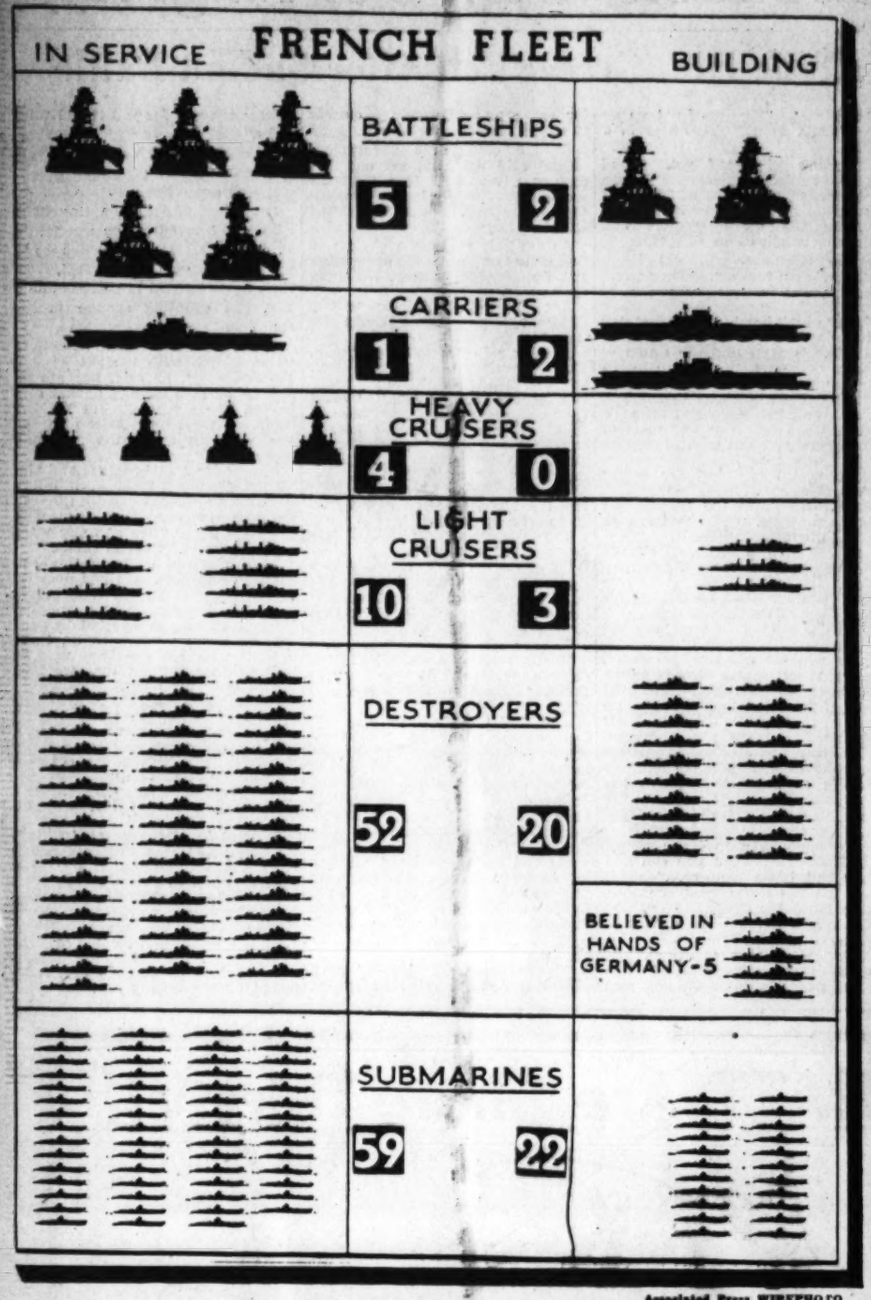
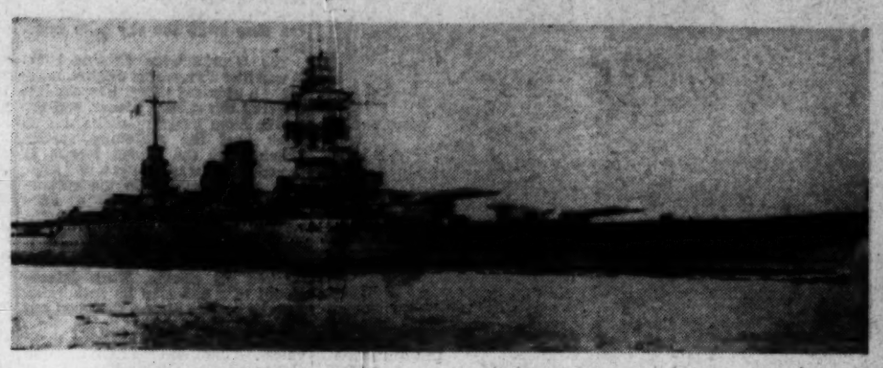
Strength of French Fleet . . .



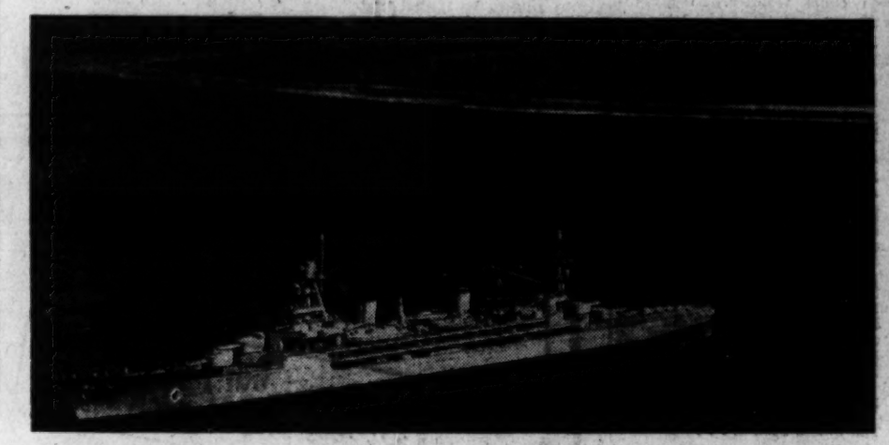
Associated Press WIREPHOTO

BATTLE FORCE—Chart, based on best unofficial estimates, shows actual and potential strength of the French fleet. Ships demilitarized in 1940 and now in British ports are not included. Battleship Jean Bart, classed here as completed, may not actually be finished. Five destroyers, under construction some time ago, are believed to have been taken over by the Germans

THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER BEARN, based at Fort de France, Martinique, was launched in 1920 as a battleship. She was finally converted in 1927 as a carrier for 36 planes.



THE DUNKERQUE, one of five French battleships in service, has a complement of 1400 officers and men. She was launched in 1935. Notes: Displacement, 26,500 tons; carries four planes; has eight 13-inch guns.



THE JEANNE D'ARC, a training cruiser of 6496 tons displacement, is shown off Clipperton Island, 800 miles off the western coast of Mexico in the Pacific, which the French seized January 27, 1935. The island is considered a strategic base for airplanes.

National Symphony's Music-Makers

Tall, Dark and Handsome, That's Cellist Mitchell

This is the third in a series of sketches on members of the National Symphony Orchestra, whose twelfth annual drive for sustaining funds is being conducted through April 25.

By Earl J. Wilson
Post Staff Writer

That down-cast look you see on the face of the little girl in the picture was brought there because she had temporarily lost her faith in human nature. Her father—Howard Mitchell of the National Symphony Orchestra—had just squirted her with water while watering the grass.

An accident, of course, he said with a grin, but with three small children under foot . . . well.

To meet Mitchell in his neat white frame house at 4615 Forty-fourth Street Northwest and to try to visualize

. . . TE DO!—Mitchel and daughter, Martha him as the dignified first cellist and guest conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra is a task.

He is a tall, handsome man with a warming smile, and the impulse in his heart to do all those simple things around the house the rest of us do—painting the porch and cutting the grass and getting a big kick out of his three children, the oldest of whom is eight.

Mitchell himself is only 30. When he was 16 he walked off with the city golf championship of Sioux City, Iowa. But golf has crept steadily into the background, he says, and now he is lucky to play one game in a month.

His career started at the age of 4 when his older brother gave him a 'cello. The brother played the violin and wanted someone to play the 'cello as an accompanist. "You know how older brothers are. I didn't want to, but he knew somebody who had an instrument we could get cheap and . . . well . . . I got a 'cello. The other guy was fed up with it."

Born in Nebraska, Mitchell received his early training in Iowa, later studying at the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore and the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia.

He has been with the National Symphony since 1933 and is married to a former violin teacher. During his career he has played in concert in most of the large cities of the country.

Last fall he made a successful debut as conductor at the "Pop" concerts and conducted the orchestra in some of its students' concerts during the past winter.

Folk Festival

French Groups Scheduled; Quebec To Send Singers

Two French folk groups will present the songs and dances of their country when the Ninth National Folk Festival programs are given at Constitution Hall May 6, 7, 8 and 9 under the sponsorship of The Washington Post Folk Festival Association.

One group of pretty girls and their escorts will come from Chicago to present music and dances that are

Joseph Creanza, of the Central Y. M. C. A. College, of Chicago, Ill., is leader of the group. He has presented groups in all the festivals held in Washington and also in the Chicago National Folk Festival in 1937. There will be 25 persons in the group he will bring to the festival here this May.

The second French group for this festival is a quartet of singers sent officially by the government of the Province of Quebec. The singers, known as the Quatuor Alouette, will be the first group ever to come from Canada to the Washington festival.

Consumers Set To Fight Rise In Milk Price

Organized milk consumers yesterday promised a fight to the finish against a threatened price increase. Meantime, the Federal administrator of the Washington milk marketing area released a report showing that March was the biggest consumption month in the Capital's history.

Mrs. Beatrice B. Schalet, acting chairman of the District of Columbia Consumers' Milk Committee, assailed the strong hints advanced this week by dairies and producer groups that milk, as well as cream, will go up in cost if the Hendrickson-Montgomery pricing proposal is adopted for this milkshed.

She said her committee will attempt to "block the producers and dealers by appealing to Government price-fixing agencies and to the Commissioners of the District to hold the price of milk at its present level."

"No Reason for Rise"

"There is absolutely no reason to raise the price of bottled milk," said Mrs. Schalet. "The dealers, under the new amendment proposed by the Department of Agriculture, will have to pay more for the milk they sell.

"So far as the price of cream is concerned, consumers are willing to accept an increased price so long as the cost of fluid milk remains the same."

The amendment in question, indorsed by Roy F. Hendrickson, agricultural marketing administrator, would place in a single price class all milk except that going into manufacture of ice cream, butter and cream cheese.

The proposal, originally made last February by Donald E. Montgomery, Agriculture Department consumers' counsel, at public hearings on amendment of the Washington milk marketing order, was roundly attacked this week in exceptions filed by Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy, the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association and other parties involved.

Bootleg Cream Issue

Defending the proposed amendment, which is aimed to keep retail milk prices down by giving farmers more money for their cream, Mrs. Schalet said:

"The bugaboo raised by the milk industry is the threat of bootleg cream. That is a false issue. This market is policed by a District milk administrator whose job it is to audit the books of all the milk dealers operating in the market. Dealers are unlikely to import bootleg milk when they know it will invite court action."

Charles I. Dunn, administrator, revealed yesterday in his March report that 30,000,500 pounds of milk and cream were disposed of in this marketing area. This is a new all-time record. All but 1,067,635 pounds were consumed in Washington proper, the remainder being sold in those parts of suburban Maryland which are in this Federal marketing zone.

Huge Fires Roar Across Timberland In Pennsylvania

Special Dispatch to The Post

Gettysburg, Pa., April 16.—Four huge mountain fires in northwestern Adams County roared across more than 2000 acres of brush and timberland this afternoon and into the night causing thousands of dollars of damage to State and privately owned forest lands in the South Mountains.

Fire-fighting crews numberking several hundred faced the prospect of an all-night battle to stop the worst forest fires in the Micheaux district in 11 years. Hunting lodges in the Tumbling Run area were believed lost and one blaze, racing over Gray Ridge from Dead Woman Hollow, threatens Wenksville, a town of several hundred in Menallen Township.

All of the blazes broke out in an 8-mile section within three hours during the early afternoon. One, covering easily 1000 acres in the vicinity of the summer resort at Laurel Lake, was believed under control. Gray Ridge, Pigeon Roost and Tumbling Run blazes still were unchecked at nightfall.

Thomas Norris, Caledonia district forester, said all of the fires were of incendiary origin and had State motor police from Chambersburg open immediate investigation. Emergency fire crews, State foresters and wardens and students from Mount Alto Forestry School fought the flames.

Noted Eagle Passes On At D. C. Zoo

Jerry's last scream has pierced the air but his majestic likeness will go winging on across the breadth of this land.

Zoo Director William M. Mann disclosed yesterday that the country's most photographed eagle was found dead Wednesday in the outdoor flight cage, which Jerry ruled with an iron talon. The famous bird's age was estimated at 23 years.

There will be no post mortem so it will never be known what caused the sudden death of the stern old bald eagle that modeled for defense and war posters and glorified many a magazine cover. His remains are now in custody of the Smithsonian Institution, which may mount the striking specimen for exhibition.

Many eagles tenant the Zoo's flight cage but one never had any trouble spotting Jerry. He had his perch and there was none to challenge him for it. He was no tormentor, but neither was he a "mixer." His most recent photographic appearance was in the book, "Zoo's Who," published in December.

The bird was presented to President Woodrow Wilson in 1916 by a Western admirer and forthwith given to the Zoo.

721 New FHA Homes Begun In D. C. Area

During the first three months of 1942 a total of 721 new homes were started with FHA aid in the District of Columbia defense area, almost all of them single family houses and most of them to be built by realty companies rather than individuals.

Applications through April 4 totaled 1483—an increase of 35 per cent over the same period for last year, according to FHA figures.

Under priority rulings the new homes are for war workers and must be built to sell for not more than $6000 or rent for not more than $50 per month. Metal equipment for kitchen and bath is cut down and so are furnaces.

To prepare against the furnace and possible fuel shortages, the new houses are more elaborately insulated and probably will be much cooler this summer than ordinary Washington structures.

Loans from the FHA went into the construction of 3751 houses in the metropolitan area last year—1201 of them in the District, 1633 in Arlington County, 681 in Montgomery County, and 236 in Fairfax County. The percentage of apartment structures was greater for 1941 than for this year to date.

Patrick V. Doyle, Publishing Chief, Funeral Today

A requiem mass for Patrick V. Doyle, former newspaperman here and head of the Doyle Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, who died of a heart attack in Dubois, Pa., Wednesday, will be held tomorrow at 9 a. m. at St. Martin's Catholic Church, 1900 North Capitol Street. Burial, with military honors, will be in Arlington National Cemetery, at 10:30.

Mr. Doyle, 47 years old, served in various capacities with the Washington Star and Washington Herald before the last war. He was with the Marines in France and remained with the Army of Occupation in Germany 18 months with the rank of lieutenant.

Although a resident of Philadelphia, where he was going by plane when stricken, he maintained a residence here at 5 Girard Street Northeast. The Doyle Publishing Co. handles newspaper advertising.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Mynette C. Doyle; a daughter, Patricia, both of Philadelphia; two sisters, Mrs. Michael A. Moran and Mrs. William S. Ledlow, both of the Girard Street address, and a brother, John T. Doyle, of Aliquippa, Pa.

First Symphony Drive Reports To Be Made Today

First report on the progress of the National Symphony Orchestra's drive for $114,000, now three days old, will be made at 12:30 p. m. today at a luncheon for campaign workers in the Mayflower Hotel.

Theme of the luncheon will be "orchestra day," and the various activities of the National Symphony will be represented. Principal speakers will be Hans Kindler, conductor and founder of the orchestra, and Charles O'Connell, director of artists and classical recordings for the RCA-Victor, who supervises all the National Symphony's recordings.

E. R. Finkenstaedt, chairman of the drive, will preside at today's luncheon.

Planning Unit Picks Sites for Dormitories

Evidently reconciled to the fact that a crowded Washington must put its parks to work, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission yesterday approved erection of a dormitory in the shadow of the Lincoln Memorial.

Unsuccessful in its efforts to prevent temporary office buildings from encroaching on the city's parks, the commission gave its assent to the building of a 2000-room bachelor quarters south of the Reflecting Pool.

At the same time the planners approved other dormitory sites at the foot of East Capitol Street, on the old Arlington Farm opposite Arlington National Cemetery, and at Suitland, Md. They provide for a total of 12,000 individual units, 7000 of which are in Arlington. All sites are Federally owned.

In addition, according to a report made by J. C. Nichols, of Kansas City, a member of the planning body, the District Commissioners are considering a Federal request to use the large parking lot south of the Municipal Center as a dormitory site.

Lanham Act Funds

Nichols said the war workers' living quarters, to be financed under the recently passed 50-million-dollar Lanham Act, probably will be built by National Housing Agency. Having concerned himself only with site selection and land use, he could not say how much they will cost or how the units will be divided among male and female occupants.

Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes' approval is necessary to build a dormitory near Lincoln Memorial, as contemplated. He is not expected to object. It is understood that, as an alternative to putting up bachelor quarters in the Mall—this was proposed last month by President Roosevelt—Ickes said he would not oppose such construction in East or West Potomac Park—but not in both.

The Lincoln Memorial dormitory site is in West Potomac Park. It would serve principally the workers in the Navy and Munitions buildings, located just across the Reflecting Pool.

"Our main consideration," Nichols explained, "was to select locations within short walking distance of Governmental buildings."

Plans Being Drafted

The proposed 1000-unit dormitory at the foot of East Capitol Street would be a stone's throw from a new temporary office building. The 7000-room group in Arlington would be convenient to the new War and Navy buildings. A large Federal office building is nearing completion at Suitland, Md., where another 1000-roomer is planned and the dormitory of the same size which is tentatively scheduled for the Municipal Center Square might be tenanted by employes of the temporary office buildings in the lower Mall.

Nichols said preliminary architectural plans are being drafted by the Public Buildings Administration. He indicated that the dormitory buildings would be two-story affairs.

Norman C. Brown, land purchasing officer for the planning commission, reported the acquisition of a 3½-acre parcel of land at Nineteenth Street and Columbia Road which will be converted into a public park.

For years the Kalorama Heights Citizens Association has advocated a park in this section. The tract was bought from the Thomas Smith estate. On it are some of the largest and oldest oak trees in Washington. Brown said "every effort will be made to preserve these old trees."

The commission also ratified a condemnation award on 20 acres in the Oxon Run Parkway project in the southeast area. Final sessions in the planning body's monthly meeting will be held today.

Restored Church In Southern Md. To Be Dedicated

Leonardtown, Md., April 16 (AP).—St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, located in a wooded section four miles southward of Leonardtown will be rededicated May 22, with the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, D. D., of the National Cathedral, Washington presiding.

The Rev. J. M. B. Woodrow, pastor, announced today that the church, originally built in 1766, would be reopened following extensive exterior restoration, which cost $5000.

He said the church, which was attended by the late Governor of Maryland, George Plater, had been praised by Bishop Freeman as equalling in architecture, "the famed cathedrals of war-torn Europe."

Among the church's heirlooms is a silver holy communion service, said by the Rev. Mr. Woodrow to have been donated by Queen Anne of England before the Revolutionary War.

The pastor said the adjoining cemetery would be landscaped and the church remodelled and restored to its "colonial glory."

Vitamins and Minerals Are Spring Offerings, Dandelion Greens a Splendid, Economical Food; Southern Cornbread Teams With Dandelions

TWO THINGS are certain each spring—the baseball season will get under way and dandelions will pop up. To those who think dandelions are solely a menace, do let me say that dandelion greens are to be considered seriously as a food. These greens which grow in the most respectable yards, as well as along roadsides, are a good source of vitamins, especially vitamin A, and also of minerals. Collecting them, too, is good exercise as well as a means of availing yourself of economical food. And with increased living costs, no benefits should be overlooked.

But you don't necessarily have to pick greens to be able to eat them, for turnip greens, mustard greens and other so-called "roadside" greens are also grown commercially and many markets offer them for sale.

For the most part, all greens are cooked by the same method, in the water that clings to them, plus salt, in a closely covered saucepan. When they are sufficiently cooked they should be thoroughly drained. They may be eaten with the addition of lemon juice or vinegar, dressed with sweet butter or bacon fat or some of its fat, and garnished with hard-cooked egg.

Affinity Foods

Dandelion greens and cornbread have an affinity as do salt and pepper, boiled beef and horseradish sauce, peaches and cream. And there is just about as much controversy over the proper way to make cornbread as there is about how to make strawberry shortcake—the biscuit or the cake method; or how to fry chicken—the dry method or the moist method.

That cornbread is appreciated is shown by a letter received in my mail recently. The writer signs himself "Gourmet." His letter follows:

DEAR MARTHA ELLYN: As a mere man who likes old-fashioned cornbread, permit me to protest against the stuff most hotels and tea rooms run by Southern ladies and advertised as places with Southern cooking give the public under a cornbread label.

In the first place they put more white flour into the mixture than cornmeal. Usually they make it too sweet, and I have run upon places which actually flavor it with vanilla, or some other extract.

Refining cornbread ruins it for folks who really like cornbread. Yellow meal is much sweeter than white meal, and much more nutritious. Cattle-feeders with scientific training abandoned white corn years ago. White cornbread should go under the same ban nutrition experts have placed upon white bread.

Why not give your readers some recipes for real cornbread which will stick to the ribs and is especially delicious when eaten with molasses or honey? It is good when made without sugar. An important item when we are facing sugar rationing. Yours truly, GOURMET.

Since it has been said that the home of cornbread is in the South, I have asked several persons from the deep South what they consider cornbread. There is a variance of opinion. Cornbread, I find, is something that you eat for breakfast as spoon bread or batter bread; for dinner as corn breads, batter cakes (for vegetables), corn pone, cracklin breads, hominy breads or rice breads.

White Meal Preferred

From one Southerner I learned that REAL Southern cornbread is made with white meal, the best that is obtainable, never with yellow meal. From another Southerner I learn that they use yellow cornmeal when obtainable. And so it goes.

Cornbread to one Southerner with whom I have discussed the subject means corn pone. Corn pone is a simple food to make so if that is what cornbread means to you, here is a recipe that is easy to follow:

Corn Pone—Mix ½ teaspoon salt with 4 cups fine white cornmean and rub in 1 tablespoon lard or other fat. Add 2 cups buttermilk. Shape into small oblong cakes or pones with the hands and bake on a greased griddle in a hot oven.

A corn bread that brings paeans of praise from women enrolled in the nutrition classes conducted by Miss Ida Lansden, Home Service Director, Virginia Public Service Co., Alexandria, Va., is one given by Mrs. Henrietta Dill, Atlanta, Ga. Here is her recipe:

Corn Bread—Sift cornmeal to make 2½ cupfuls. Mix the meal with 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda and 3 teaspoons baking powder. Beat 2 eggs until light, add 2 cups buttermilk and 3 tablespoons melted shortening (preferably bacon drippings.) Add to meal mixture. Stir until well dampened. Bake in a well-greased shallow pan in a 425-degree oven for 20 minutes.

An extravagant version of cornbread is corn zephyrs. They are rather delicate and call for scalded corn meal, and are like cornmean mush in an unsweetened meringue. The recipe follows:

Combine 1 cup white cornmeal and 1 tablespoon lard. Scald these ingredients by pouring over them 4 cups boiling water. Add 1 teaspoon salt. Cook the cornmeal in a double boiler for 30 minutes. Stir it frequently. Cool it. Whip until stiff 4 egg whites with ⅛ teaspoon salt. Fold them lightly into the cornmeal mixture. Bake the zephyrs in shallow pans—the shallower the better—in a moderate oven 350 degrees, for about ½ hour in greased pans.

Spoon bread too is a delightful cornmeal dish. This dish also comes in for great discussion as to how it should be made. The following is a recipe that was given me by a Southern woman:

Spoon Bread—Mix together ¾ cup cornmeal, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons melted butter, then add 1 cup boiling water and beat until smooth. Add 1 cup milk, 2 well-beaten eggs and 2 teaspoons baking powder. When well mixed turn into a greased baking dish or pan and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 40 to 50 minutes.

Spring Tonic

As spring becomes more forward with warm sunshine, many women will want to work in their victory gardens or among the flowers. So short cuts to flavorsome, nutritious meals will be welcome. Those new green asparagus shoots served on crisp toast and covered with smooth cheese sauce make a one-dish meal. Serve cookies and pink rhubarb sauce for desert.

Another springtime menu that scores A-1 for ease of preparation, for appetite appeal, for flavor and economy, is bacon sandwiches with scrambled eggs and new greens. Fruit compote with plain cake make the dessert.

A spring tonic in the way of hot bread is a muffin suggested by Clara Gebhardt Snyder, director of home economics, Wheat Flour Institute. Here is her recipe:

Spring Tonic Muffins—Sift 2 cups sifted flour with 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon soda and 2 tablespoons sugar together. Beat 1 egg, add ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk, ½ cup molasses and 2 tablespoons melted shortening. Add the egg mixture to flour mixture, stirring only until flour is moistened. Fill greased muffin pans 2-3 full. Bake in moderately hot oven, 400 degrees for 25 minutes or until done. Yield: 16 to 18 2-inch muffins.

Cornbread 'n' Greens

Gather dandelions while they are young and tender if you would have a delicious dish full of vitamins and minerals and good flavor. Watercress, parsley and many other greens should also be included in menus regularly. Cornbread can be served in many forms. The cornsticks above are made with the same batter as cornbread baked in pan and cut in squares or wedges

Smoked Tongue a New Offering Delicious Served Hot or Cold

IF YOU are one of those persons who quaver a bit at the thought of preparing and cooking tongue, you have a treat coming, because there is a new smoked tongue on the market.

After careful salt and sugar curing and long slow-oven smoking, tongue becomes truly a meat for epicures—on a shoestring budget. Neatly wrapped in cellophane, first quality smoked beef tongues have the directions for cooking and suggestions for serving on the wrapper.

The preparation of tongue is simple, and one beef tongue will provide two on three unique meals for your family. Cover the cured smoked tongue with cold water, bring to a boil, then reduce the heat and simmer the tongue for 2½ to 3 hours or until fork-tender. Keep the tongue in the liquid until cool enough to handle, then remove the skin. It is then ready to slice and serve hot with parsley potatoes and a green vegetable. Spring is an ideal time to get acquainted with this savory new meat because its mild texture and flavor combine so naturally with harbingers of spring like rhubarb or fresh grated horseradish.

But hot or cold, jellied or chopped for sandwiches or casserole dishes, smoked tongue is a meat that you'll be glad to know about.

A casserole dish made of tongue combined with rhubarb and pepped up with spices is one that is unusual. The recipe follows:

Spring Casserole—Slice cooked tongue ¼ inch thick and place in casserole. Mix 1½ cups diced rhubarb, ¾ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon whole cloves and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Spread over tongue, add 4 tablespoons butter and ½ cup hot water. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes. Serve hot.

Jellied tongue is also a dish that has great appeal. This is especially nice for buffets. Here is the recipe:

Jellied Tongue—Prepare lemon gelatin according to directions on package. In a 2-quart loaf pan, pour ½ cup of the lemon gelatin. Let set. Arrange a design of sliced cooked eggs and sliced olives. Apply a few drops of the lemon gelatin to hold slices in place. Let set. Pack in 2 cups shredded, salted cabbage and ½ green pepper diced. Cover with lemon gelatin. Let set. Fill mold with sliced cooked tongue. Cover with remaining gelatin. Let set. Unmold and serve with rhubarb sauce or rhubarb ice.

Tongue sandwiches are delicious served either hot or cold. The following are suggestions for serving both ways:

Cold—Thinly sliced tongue, sliced tomato, horseradish, on buttered rye bread; sliced tongue, rhubarb conserve, lettuce; ground tongue, mayonnaise, horseradish to season; slice of tongue, slice of Swiss cheese on rye bread.

Hot—Hot sliced tongue, grated American cheese on bread, toasted; hot sliced tongue, broiled bacon, mustard on toast; hot sliced tongue, barbecue sauce on bun or bread.

THEME—Let's Have Chops. How do you cook chops to make a meal that is unusual and not too expensive? There's pork chops, lamb chops and veal chops. Fit them into a well-balanced meal.

Give complete menu, including a sugarless dessert. Do not send other recipes than the one for chops.

QUALIFICATION—Recipe must not be taken from service cookbooks. All recipes must be kitchen-tested, practical, carefully written, exact and level measurements and number of servings given. Only one entry may be submitted by a person.

PRIZES—First, $3; second, $2; ten $1 prizes.

CLOSING DATE—Noon Saturday, April 17.

Mail entries to Martha Ellyn, The Post Food Editor.

For the Boys

One rule to be applied in general to the box from home to the boys in camp is avoidance of the things the boys are apt to be eating at the camp tables. The boys find plenty of starches, they tell us—though they're not as overly abundant as they were apt to be in the last war. Energy foods are welcome, of course. Ripe olives in cans are easy to handle and are good sources of food energy that are not sweet. Inexpensive sizes taste just as good as the more luxurious ones.

Hominy Casserole Should Be Studied For Its Vitamins

Hominy is an inexpensive casserole foundation that too many of us overlook. Yello whominy is richer in vitamin A than white hominy, if you're vitamin-minded—although you'll get your share of vitamin A also in the ripe olives of the following recipe. The dark fruit, cut in chewy slices from the pits, gives hominy a rich meaty flavor. A well seasoned sauce binds the flavor of olives and hominy. Try the following recipes:

Hominy-Ripe Olive Casserole—Cut olives from its pits in large slices to make 1 cupful. Fry 2 tablespoons onion and ¼ cup chopped green sweet pepper in butter. Add 2 cups cooked whole kernel hominy, ½ teaspoon salt, the ripe olives, and fry for about 1 minute. Make a sauce for the casserole as follows:

Sauce—Melt 2 tablespoons butter, blend with 3 tablespoons flour, add 1 cup milk and stir constantly until mixture boils and is smooth. Add ½ cup grated American cheese, ¼ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon prepared mustard, and a few grains of cayenne. Combine sauce with hominy and mix well; pour into baking dish and cover with bread crumbs. Bake about 15 minutes in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Serves 4 to 6.

Military Rites Tomorrow for Father Fealy

Funeral services for the Rev. Ignatius Fealy, retired Army chaplain with the rank of lieutenant colonel and former assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church at Second and C Streets Northeast, will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in St. Agnes Church, Woodlawn, Md. Burial, with military honors will be at noon in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

FR. FEALY

Father Fealy, 64 years old, died Wednesday at St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore.

Well known to Army men in the United States and the Philippines, Father Fealy was the subject of many news stories in 1937 as the first civilian to make a round trip by plane from Washington to Manilla, where he flew to attend the Eucharistic Congress, there that year.

A native of Osage County, Mo., he attended Gonzaga College here before entering the priesthood. He was ordained in June 1904. After serving four years as assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church here, he was commissioned as Army chaplain and assigned to Fort Myer, Va., under Lieut. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, now commander of the United States forces at Corregidor, who then held the rank of colonel.

Father Fealy served at a number of other Army posts in the United States and at Honolulu, Hawaii, before the outbreak of the last war. During the war, he was instructor of chaplains at Camp Taylor, Ky.

Surviving are three brothers, Aloysius J. and Frank I. Fealy, both of Washington, and Vincent A. Fealy, of Yonkers, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. George W. Angers, of Springfield, Mass.

A cousin, the Rev. Leo Fealy, of Berwyn, Md., will be celebrant at the funeral services.

Gen. Johnson's Rites Set Today At Fort Myer

Funeral services for Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who died Wednesday at his apartment in Wardman Park Hotel after a prolonged illness, will be held at 10 a. m. today in the Fort Myer Chapel with Chaplain John C. W. Linsley officiating. Interment will be in Arlington National Cemetery.

Bernard M. Baruch, World War associate of General Johnson, is included in the list of honorary pallbearers. The others include six members of General Johnson's West Point graduating class of 1903. They are Maj. Gen. R. C. Moore, General Staff Corps; Brig. Gen. W. H. Rose, Col. Max B. Garber, retired; Col. Clark Lynn, retired; Col. G. W. Cocheu, retired; Lieut. Col. O. G. Collins, retired.

Members of the National Press Club appointed by President Clifford A. Prevost to attend the funeral are Robert S. Allen, Ray Tucker, Ernest K. Lindley, Walter Lippmann, Arthur C. Krock, Paul W. Ward, Lewis Wood, Thomas L. Stokes, Barnet Nover, Bascom N. Timmons, John O'Donnell, John T. O'Rourke, Lieut. Col. R. Ernest Dupuy and Capt. Leland P. Lovette.

Rev. H. J. Miller Dies; St. George's Church Rector

The Rev. Henry Justus Miller, rector of St. George's Episcopal Church, Clarendon, Va., died yesterday at Doctor's Hospital, following an operation last Monday. He was 53 years old.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow by the Right Rev. St. George Tucker, assisted by the Rev. M. M. Perkins, rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Georgetown. Rev. Tucker ordained Rev. Miller as a deacon in 1928. Burial will be in Columbia Gardens Cemetery, Arlington.

A native of Buffalo, N. Y., Rev. Miller was graduated from Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, in 1926. He was assistant chaplain at Episcopal High School, Alexandria, from 1927 to 1929 and was called to St. George's church in 1929.

Rev. Miller was active in diocesan affairs and in many Arlington County civic organizations. He was a member of Columbia Lodge No. 285, A. F. and A. M.

There are no immediate survivors.

Mrs. Manson's Rites Are Set For Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Maude Manson, who died of pneumonia at her home at 4461 Greenwich Parkway, Wednesday, will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. in Hysong Funeral Home. Burial will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Manson, the widow of Joseph O. Manson, former executive assistant to the United States Treasurer, has lived in the District for 67 years. She was born in Newark, N. Y., on January 8, 1862.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. J. Homer Winkler, of Cleveland, Ohio; three sons, Earl West, Philip R. and Charles G. Manson, all of Washington; two sisters, Mrs. Florence R. Abrams of Washington, and Mrs. Rosamund R. Furmin of Torrington, Conn.; an aunt, Mrs. Fannie Keleher of Washington, and four grandchildren.

Bishop Will Lead Services For Newbold Noyes Tomorrow

Rites for Editor Will Be Held at St. John's Church

Newbold Noyes, 50, associate editor of the Evening Star, civic leader and clubman, died yesterday morning at his home, 1239 Vermont Avenue Northwest. He had been in failing health for several years.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, will conduct memorial services at 3 p. m. tomorrow at St. John's Episcopal Church, Sixteenth and H Streets Northwest. Burial will be private.

"Among the younger men who have rendered a wide service to the city," Bishop Freeman said yesterday, "Newbold Noyes held a conspicuous and commanding place. For many years he gave himself without reserve to the large philanthropic and beneficent agencies in Washington and in the earlier days of its enterprise was forward in leading the annual efforts in behalf of the Community Chest.

"He had large executive ability and fine literary gifts. I knew him intimately from his youth onward and cooperated with him in the many interests that enlisted his sympathies. Under his leadership the first notable campaign to be made in behalf of Washington Cathedral was undertaken in 1923 and 1924, resulting in gifts amounting to over one million dollars.

"He will be greatly missed from the many councils on which he served with such efficiency and by his host of friends among all classes of the people."

Associate editor of the Star since 1919, Newbold Noyes entered the service of the paper immediately following his graduation from Yale University in 1914. For five years thereafter he "covered" reportorial assignments that took him, among other places, to the Capitol and White House; wrote features and editorials, and served on the copy desk.

He was trained to journalism from the outset and regarded no other calling as more important than his chosen profession. The editorials written by him or under his guidance embraced a multitude of subjects, taking in both foreign and national developments as well as local matters. Failing health in recent years did not prevent him from bearing editorial responsibilities.

Backer of Preparedness

Only son of Frank Brett and Janet Thruston Newbold Noyes, Mr. Noyes was born in Washington January 19, 1892. He attended Preston's Academy here, the Chicago Latin School and Westminster School, Simsbury, Conn., before going to Yale.

A strong advocate of adequate preparedness for this country and of all-out aid to democracies fighting aggression, Mr. Noyes in this connection drew upon his own experience in the first World War. He served overseas as an Infantry lieutenant in the Twenty-sixth Division, returning with the Croix de Guerre and the rank of captain.

When he resumed his work on the Star, he concentrated on Washington's civic problems, giving particular attention to the task of obliterating poverty and distress. He helped organize the Council of Social Agencies and the Washington Community Chest and subsequently was president of both bodies. In addition, he was active in the Associated Charities, the Child Welfare Societies and other philanthropic organizations.

Mr. Noyes also was secretary and director of the Washington Criminal Justice Association, trustee of the National Training School for Boys, director of the Washington Boys' Club and the Police Boys' Club, director of the Washington Urban League and member of the advisory board of the Salvation Army.

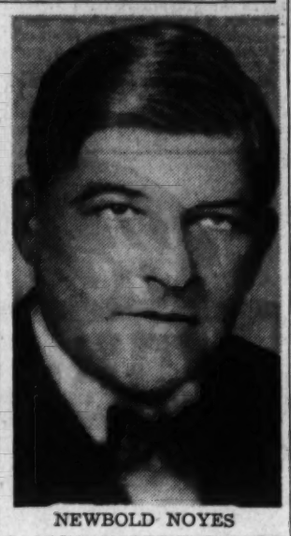
Aided in Building Cathedral

He sponsored a drive for funds for the National Probation Association each Christmas for a number of years. He also had charge of raising money to erect the District War Memorial, and, as a member of the Cathedral Council, took part in the campaign to build the Washington Cathedral. He found time, too, to aid the National Symphony Orchestra, the Town Hall of Washington and the Washington Civic Theater.

His other affiliations included the Academy of Political and Social Science, the Sons of the American Revolution, Alpha Delta Phi, the Metropolitan, Chevy Chase, Racquet, University, Yale, Elihu and Montgomery Clubs, the Monday Evening Club and the 1925 F Street Club of Washington; the Yale, Lotos Club and "The Brook", of New York; the Washington Philatelic Society and the Columbia Historical Society.

Mr. Noyes served on several inaugural committees and was a signer of the "Declaration" of the United States Flag Association. He accepted appointment to the Washington Executive Committee of the Greek War Relief Association and supported the relief work of Yale-in-China.

Early in life, Mr. Noyes gained attention as a poet. He wrote a volume, "Echo and Other Verses," published in 1916, and later wrote an epic on the invasion of Finland, entitled "Reflections." He was the author of a number of poems about children, some of which became widely read when printed in household magazines.



NEWBOLD NOYES

Played Football at Yale

Fond of all sports, he played football and boxed at Yale.

Mr. Noyes represented the Sunday Star in the membership of the Associated Press and helped to organize the North American Newspaper Alliance, which he headed in 1938. He was vice president of the M. A. Lease Radio Corporation, owner of Station WMAL, a director of the Evening Star Newspaper Co. and a director of the American Security & Trust Co. He was a member for years of the Washington Board of Trade and various other commercial and industrial societies.

Mr. Noyes married Miss Alexandra Ewing, of New York, in 1915. Subsequently they were divorced and he married Mrs. Leila Gordon Dickey in 1934. His children are Newbold Noyes jr., now a member of the Star staff; Crosby S. Noyes and Thomas Ewing Noyes, both Yale students.

Mr. Noyes maintained a summer lodge at Bathurst, New Brunswick, Canada.

John Bender, 77, Dies; Ran Market Stand 40 Years

John Bender, 77, 2127 G Street Northwest, died yesterday at Doctor's Hospital after a lingering illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow from his home. Burial will be in Prospect Park Cemetery.

A native of Germany, Mr. Bender came to this country when he was 16. He operated a cake and bread stand in Western Market for more than 40 years. He and his wife celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary four years ago.

23,000 Rent Petitions Listed

The number of formal complaints filed in his office in the first two months of operation already equals the number he expected to handle in one year, Rent Control Administrator Robert F. Cogswell told members of the Federation of Businessmen's Association meeting last night in the Hay-Adams House.

There were 5000 formal complaints on which hearings were held, he stated, which together with informal petitions total approximately 23,000 complaints.

Arlington Funeral Today for Maj. Osborn

Funeral services for Maj. Cuthbert A. Osborn, United States Army, retired, who died on Tuesday at Shrewsbury, N. J., will be held at noon today from the Fort Myer Gate of Arlington Cemetery. Interment will be with full military honors, with Chaplain John B. Duncan officiating.

Maj. Osborn, 65, a native of West Virginia, started his military career as a second lieutenant with the West Virginia Volunteer Infantry in 1898. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elsie G. Osborn, Shrewsbury, N. J.

11 Fliers Die In U.S. Crashes; Two Missing

By the Associated Press

Eleven American fliers were killed yesterday and two more are missing in crashes of two Army planes and a Coast Guard amphibian during routine training flights.

The heaviest toll was at MacDill Field near Tampa, Fla. There two officers and five noncommissioned officers died when their ship crashed from a height of about 20 feet during a takeoff.

The dead are Maj. H. C. Houston, of Baltimore, who was commander of a photographic squadron at the field and pilot of the plane; First Lieut. Floyd Messer, of Miakka City, Fla.; Tech. Sergts. Sam F. Riegger, of Greenville, Tex.; Charles Mull, of Brevard, N. C., and Malcolm Mathis, of Elba, Ala.; Sergt. Edgar F. Mathews, of Albertville, Ala., and Corp. Stephen F. A. Wysocki, of Milwaukee.

Three men in the crew of a twin-motored Army bomber died when their ship plummeted into Chesapake Bay near Langley Field, Va. The bodies of the three have not yet been recovered.

Crew members were listed by the public relations office as Second Lieut. Ralph Graves, of Ithaca, N. Y., the pilot; Tech Sergt. Norman G. Simmons, of Manchester, N. H., and Staff Sergt. Julius Young, of Venice, Calif.

A Coast Guardsman is known dead and his two comrades are missing following the crash of an amphibian from the Brooklyn Coast Guard station into the sea near Gay Head.

The dead flier was reported to be William A. Boutillier, of Walla Walla, Wash. Missing are Lieut. Robert James Lafferty, of Port Washington, N. Y., the pilot, and Stephen Hohn Tarapchak, of Brooklyn.

Meanwhile, ten United States training planes were forced down Sunday in the jungles of eastern Venezuela, it was reported, but all 20 airmen in the combined crews were rescued.

Tax Office Collected $139,000 On Last Day for Payment

More than $139,000 went across the counter of the tax collector's office on Wednesday, the last day for income tax returns, Tax Collector Guy Pearson announced last night.

Pearson said he "wouldn't dare to estimate the amount of taxes to be collected this year" since there are 2 bags of unopened mail in his vaults and 30 file-case drawers of untabulated returns in the income tax office. It will be at least ten days, Pearson reports, before any approximate figure can be given.

Clerks in the collector's office have been given notice of weekend work and overtime every night next week in order to clear the files as soon as possible. Pearson attributed the sharp rise in tax returns to the increase in District population and to the Supreme Court decision last winter which left the burden of proof of domicile up to the taxpayer, not to the District.

Queen Wilhelmina Accepts MacArthur

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Announcement from London that Queen Wilhelmina had formally accepted General Douglas MacArthur as United Nations' commander in chief in the southwest Pacific was believed here this evening to have broken the bottle-neck which had been holding up the American general's organization of his command.

Ever since the battle of the Java Sea when the major British, Dutch and American vessels participating were sunk by the Japanese, the Dutch and American commanders in that area appear not to have had a common directive. This situation appears to have been terminated by the action of the Queen of the Netherlands yesterday.

It is still not known if New Zealand is included in the southwestern Pacific zone. For operational reasons it appears now to be excluded from MacArthur's command. This much appeared implicit in the refusal of Walter Nash, the New Zealand minister, to commit himself on this matter when questioned after the Pacific war council Wednesday.

VITAMIN "C" SHORTAGE SERIOUS PERIL TO HEALTH OF AMERICA
—SAY GOVERNMENT HEALTH AUTHORITIES—

WASTED MANPOWER
Millions of our young men are unfit because of long years of "vitamin starvation". Actually, vitamin deficiency ailments are found in 1 man in 3 rejected in the Draft. In war industries, these same men are a drag on production. They fall sick frequently. They lack STAMINA to keep up with a fast pace.

HOW YOU CAN BE WELL-FED YET VITAMIN-STARVED!
You may be rich—spend money freely on food—and still be almost as deficient in vitamin "C" as the poorest sharecropper. That's because only a few foods are rich in "C". Cooking with soda or boiling kills it. Alcohol, overwork and colds rob your system of it.

NO STORAGE OF "C"
Your body can't store it up. That's why you must eat foods rich in Vitamin "C" every day.

HEED THESE DANGER SIGNALS
If you suffer from frequent colds, if your bones ache, if you bruise easily, if your gums are soft, if cuts don't heal quickly, if you feel "too old and tired"—THEN GO SEE YOUR DOCTOR! These are "danger signals". You're probably very low in Vitamin "C".

STEP UP "C" CHEAPLY WITH FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT
No need to spend hard-earned money on fancy pills. Delicious Florida Grapefruit will supply ALL the Vitamin "C" you need every day. So you get your "C" FREE in the cost of your food. And you get it in natural form—along with B_1 and B_2! To feel YOUNGER, STRONGER, and MORE VITAL, make fresh Florida Grapefruit a daily habit. You'll enjoy eating it—and enjoy better health, too!

The flavor of Florida Grapefruit cannot be duplicated. Florida soil, Florida climate made grapefruit famous! If you like true grapefruit flavor you'll insist on original, native Florida Grapefruit.

FRESH FLORIDA GRAPEFRUIT
YOUR DAILY PROTECTION AGAINST VITAMIN "C" STARVATION!

When Is a Blouse Worth $55? Tailor Answers Style Query

By Jane Driscoll

The Post Fashion Editor.

IN THESE days when equality in women's dress is becoming an accepted fact, and when the average woman's wardrobe is on a par with that of her next door neighbor's, it is amazing to discover that such a thing as sartorial aristocracy still reigns.

Yes, there are actually women in the United States, and a great many right here in Washington, who are willing to pay $55 and up for a blouse and $195 or more for a suit to have the assurance that they are custom made. This was revealed by Frederick W. Knize, who has been in Washington this week with a sample collection of his custom tailored suits and blouses, as well as his toiletries with a mannish leathery odor for men (and women).

Mr. Knize, formerly of Paris and London, is a native of Vienna. He has been, for a number of years, a custom tailor and shirtmaker to royalty, Hollywood stars and international personalities. Although this master craftsman has made several trips to this country in the past, he has been established in New York less than a year. His tailoring, well known to a select group of American women, has found a ready market over the country.

What Have They Got?

"What makes custom tailored clothes so expensive? What does a $55 blouse have that a $3.95 one lacks? What does a 235 suit have that is missing in a $25 suit?" These are a few of the questions that were running through my mind as I looked over Mr. Knize's luxury collection.

"The most costly item in any custom made clothes is the workmanship," Mr. Knize pointed out. For example, one tailor from his house could make one and a half coats per week, provided there were an extra man to do all the finishing. In a man's shirt (prices start at $12) the buttonholes alone cost $1.50 to execute. Every workman is an artist at the job he performs by hand. In mass production, however, every workman is a master of the machine he runs, turning out hundreds of garments by the hour.

Close inspection of the custom-made garments revealed the real difference between them and factory creations. The perfection of fit is the outstanding feature of the suits. Sheathlike lines distinguish the styling, which though tailored in classic types, is soft and far from mannish. No details are pronounced, yet every bodyline is revealed. Bodices taper softly over busts to end in whittling waistlines. Shoulders stop where they are supposed to stop. Handstitching is noticeable throughout. Very few seams are machine made. Buttons on cuffs actually button through button holes, a detail which is never enjoyed in manufactured suits.

"Individual" Touch

Absence of any extraneous design is also noticeable in these custom made suits, which require several fittings before they are finished. Each detail fits as a unit. Never before have patch pockets been seen that seem to grow out of the suit. These shape to fit the curve of waist and hips with no extra fabric thickness. Their flatness probably is attained by the use of soft imported fabrics and individual touches.

The custom made blouses stand out for their exquisite, imported, dull silk and satiny fabrics, as well as for their versatile adapability. Bows, jabots, slits and extra pieces dress the blouse up or down, making it practical for not one, but many occasions. Hand tucking and hand stitching, resembling woven plaid fabrics, are the items that make these blouses run up into the money.

While the details on these blouses make them virtually heirloom pieces to pass on from generation to generation, the same fine points may be watched for in less expensive blouses. Instead of buying a blouse several sizes too large, select one or two simply tailored types that fit—the secret in a tailor-made blouse.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

A threatened dearth of butlers is agitating Truthtown socialities. Many first-family butlers are enlisting for war service and others are being called to defense jobs. Mrs. Wynkoop Bigwigger, Truthtown's ace hostess, was reduced only this week to having a maid answer her door bell.

A training class for women butlers is under consideration by members of the Plush Sofa Club. The Hon. Violet Sniff-Sniff, here for the duration, has volunteered her services to teach the members of the class correct butler English.

Mrs. Badminton Bellwether, eccentric dowager, caused the usual commotion in a recent committee meeting to consider the servant problem when she suggested that mistresses of large menages take courses in dramatic art so they may disguise their voices and answer their own telephones in event worse comes to worst.

Mrs. Valentine Hassock, noted divan gardener and chairman of the "Herbs Will Win the War" committee, has employed a new second gardener who is an expert on herb growing. Mrs. Hassock is planning a large herb tea for defense later in the season just before she leaves for her summer home in Maine.

Mrs. Elderberry Straddle is entertaining furiously these days in an attempt to keep up with controveries of the day. Wednesday night she was hostess at a small dinner for senators (and their wives) who want the 40-hour act repealed. Last night her guests at dinner were leaders (and their wives) who are upholding the status quo. Tomorrow night Mrs. Straddle will entertain at a small buffet supper in her newly completed air raid shelter for the "Keep the Fleet at Home" advocates, and Sunday afternoon she will give a large outdoor fete on her estate for the "Go After the Enemy" group.

Patriotic Nuptials

Mrs. Charlemagne Calliope, nationally known patriot, staged a national defense wedding last night for her daughter, Miss Antoinette Calliope, and Mr. Montezuma Otter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hezekiah Otter.

The ceremony took place before the living room mantel, which was disguised as the bow of a battleship and draped with red, white and blue silk bunting. A miniature Army tank of red carnations stood on an occasional table on one side of the "ship" and a miniature airplane of white carnations on a coffee table on the other side.

"In view of the rivalry between the services, I wanted to be as neutral as possible in my decorations," explained Mrs. Calliope.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Sylvester Bugle, who wore his Spanish-American War uniform — or, at least, a part of it. The bride wore a gown of white parachute silk, caught at the waist with red and blue parachute cords. Her veil was held by a coronet of tiny rhinestone bombers. She carried a handsome bouquet of white and red variegated carnations tied with blue parachute cord. The two bridesmaids, Miss Melissa Zinnia and Miss Peony Thrush, were in blue and red parachute silk and wore red, white and blue cockades on their heads.

The bridegroom, who was attired as a drum major with patriotic headress, wore a Pearl Harbor button in his lapel. Records of Sousa's band music were played during the ceremony.

All the refreshments were in red, white and blue, coffee being omitted because it did not fit in with the color scheme. Mrs. Calliope said she had worked for weeks on the details of the wedding and was "utterly exhausted." "But I felt strongly that it was the thing to do at a time like this," she said.

Vitamin Pills Should Be Used Only as Food Supplements

By Ida Jean Kain

At a meeting of nutritionists, the question came up as to the use of vitamin concentrates and all present emphatically declared that the best source of the vitamins is food. Then what do you how many of the committee were suppose? Someone casually asked how many of the committee were taking any form of the concentrates—and eight out of the nine there held up their hands!

So, it seems to be a clear case of "do as I say, not as I do." There is good reason, however, for this double standard. Where the nutritionist takes a concentrate, it is in addition to a diet that is already adequate. The average person likes to think she can go merrily on her way eating as she pleases and that she can even things up by taking a little capsule. The daily menus should be as high in the vitamins and other protective elements as it is possible to make them.

Source of Vitamins

You may need a concentrate—and you may not. Chances are you do not need extra vitamins in concentrated form if you have daily a liberal serving of lean meat or fish, an egg, and two glasses of milk, to furnish protein and minerals; and fresh fruits, vegetables, dairy products and whole grains for vitamins and minerals. The concentrates won't do you any harm, but if you have other necessary things to do for your money, it is not necessary to rush out and invest in them.

Because they furnish so many of the essential nutrients, groceries will always be your best and cheapest source of vitamins. But there are times when the concentrates are life savers. If enormous doses are required—as in the treatment of neuritis, anorexia, pellagra or rickets—they work miracles. There are also normal cases that benefit from extra amounts. The person subject to frequent colds can build up resistance to respiratory infection by stepping up the vitamins A and D by use of a haliver oil capsule.

Anyone who has a struggle to keep the pounds in check must keep the calories down. On a low calorie diet it is difficult to get sufficient thiamin, or B1. Since little storage occurs in the body, this vitamin must be supplied daily. You cannot get enough in the three to four slices of whole wheat or enriched bread allowed in the reducing diet.

For similar reasons there is apt to be a shortage of vitamin A. Although it would be easy for the reducer to get ample A in a green leafy vegetable, I suspect that you do not always have one. Skimmed milk should not be included in the sources of vitamin A.

Adequate Reducing Diet

To make sure of keeping the reducing diet adequate, the reducer can take one vitamin A, B1, C, D and G capsule daily. Strangely enough, the extra vitamins make it easier to stick with a diet. As a more liberal calorie allowance is resumed, the concentrate may be discontinued.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Tired of Jealous Quarrels, Engaged Couple Invoke Trial Separation to Discover How Much They Mean To Each Other; Still Undecided, Girl Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl, 21, in love with a boy the same age. We have gone together for more two years and during that time have planned, rather vaguely, to be married. We are unable to make definite plans because both of us are pledged to help with family responsibilities for some years yet. His father is a partial invalid, and he (the boy) is helping put a younger brother through school (a matter of four or five years yet to go); while I, too, am financing the education of my younger brother, who expects to graduate at the end of two more years.

My fiance (if I may call him such) is going to school five nights a week, and practically all his remaining time must be devoted to study. He scarcely has time to telephone me, much less take me out. And while I go to school three nights a week, I have little "home work" to do. I get terribly lonesome and having a good many friends here,—most of them boys whom I knew back home, in school,—I like to go out occasionally. But he thinks that because we are more or less engaged, I should not do it. We have had violent quarrels over the matter, saying terrible things to each other. He is more severe with me, in fact, than my own father would be, if I should disobey him.

Talking things over after these quarrels, sometimes we agree that I can go out with other boys; and other times, I promise not to do so again. But sooner or later, I break that promise. Then he becomes suspicious. And knowing what is in store, I lie to him shamefully, denying that I have been out. This bickering has gone on for some time. He has discussed the matter with several persons and all,—except his mother and my sister, with whom I live,—say his attitude is justified.

I am beginning to feel that his attitude reveals more selfishness than love. Sometimes I think he is losing all desire to marry me. If our situations were reversed and I had no time to see him, I am sure I would want him to enjoy a normal amount of companionship. And I am heartily in favor of his going to night school. It is essential to his future, or to ours—as the case may be—and I want to encourage him; not hinder. But he is unable to concentrate on his studies when we quarrel—so what am I to do? Why do I deliberately lie to the man I love? And if I have a right to pursue a normal life, while he studies, how can I exercise that right without upsetting him?

He has discussed the problem with our pastor, who advised us to break off entirely for a while and see how we felt about each other at the end of a month or so. That is the current status. Yet I have been unable to come to a definite decision and the test period is practically gone. That is why I hope you can find time to help me.

Sincerely, YOUNG READER.

Girl Seems Indifferent To Man's Heavy Burden

DEAR Y. R.: If either of you could turn an X-ray upon the other's feelings and motives, the bitter conflict probably would dissolve immediately in the light of peaceful mutual understanding. It seems to me you are failing to take into consideration the effect upon t he boy's viewpoint and emotions of an abnormally heavy load of work and responsibility he is carrying—a load that is sapping his physical strength, taxing his nerves to the breaking point and consistently denying him recuperative leisure and recreation.

Under the circumstances, it is inevitable that he would set far too much store by your devotion; would come to regard it as his principal, or perhaps sole, link with contemporary-age society; and would be profoundly disturbed by fear and anxiety, when confronted by any implication that you are not wholly and steadfastly remindful of him; or that you could be won by another and lo.t to him. If he were in a position to develop a consolatory relationship with some other girl, your comings-and-goings apart from him would seem less important.

You have the current advantage over him of being able repetitiously to discover that one may be in love and yet, in the absence, of the beloved, find diversion in in the company of others. He has temporarily lost sight of that fact, if, indeed, he ever knew it. You may be the first girl he has seriously cared for; and if so, he is demonstrating singular force of character and an admirable sense of responsibility (or social conscience), in continuing to serve his family's needs and the future requirements of his chosen profession, at the expense of almost never seeing you (or "following his heart"), while probably thinking that, in doing so, he may be losing his grip on your affections.

All this, however, is more to explain than to condone the boy's jealous opposition to your having other beaux. His attitude is unreasonable, of course. But you cannot correct it by quarreling with it; and the worst possible reaction is to try to get around it with deceit. In so doing, you are adding fuel to the flame of his nervous anxiety,—giving him actual reason to distrust your performance and doubt your word. If he is "losing all desire to marry you," it is probably because he has reached a point of discouragement where he feels he can't afford to put his trust in you.

You ask: "Why do I deliberately lie to the man I love?" There are elements of cowardice, selfishness and vacillation in the character of those who hide behind petty lies. And these negative personal traits are partly responsible for your present confusion. The boy would have bowed to your will, while respecting your integrity, if you had been absolutely firm and completely truthful from the first, about your intention to lead a normal social life, while he worked.

Instead, I infer, you played the coquette, in "standing on your rights." In the beginning, I daresay, you taunted him about the good times you were having with others; and when his ire was roused you no doubt told him he lacked authority to "run your life." After which things went from bad to worse,—until finally you were quarreling violently and saying "terrible things" to each other.

Each of you is now contending with the fixed assumption that the other is meanly selfish. And I believe the burden is on you to dissolve that misapprehension,—if it is to be dissolved. I have a hunch that the boy, in more carefree circumstances, would not be jealously possessive; and that his dictatorial attitude is largely a cloak for articulate worries, which he can neither fathom nor express. If he could know in his heart, 24 hours a day, that you are as true in thought to him as he is to you, I am sure he wouldn't care how many second-string beaus you saw while he studied.

And he can only have that soul-satisfying conviction if it rests on spiritual fact; if you are, indeed, so completely "at one" with him, in his absence, as you would be if circumstances permitted constant companionship; and if you take care, always, to let him know that such is your state of mind and emotional trend. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

War Map Key To Tots' Queries

"WHY ARE we fighting there? What is that place with the funny name?"

Adults as well as children ask such questions! American battlelines now stretch over the world.

To understand our task, it's necessary to have a World War map. This newspaper has prepared an excellent one in color—showing not only Axis and Allied countries, but all strategic spots, with symbols.

You find that the place "with a funny name" is perhaps a naval air base commanding sea routes vital to our safety.

(Do you know which are our important naval bases in the Pacific below the equator?)

Also, there is an unceasing battle for control of the air! (Do you know the American air base nearest Japan?)

Our World War map is 20 by 27 inches in size and shows in full color all Axis, Axis-controlled, Allied and neutral nations. Gives air and sea distances between strategic points; also important war facts. Includes Western Hemisphere defense map and one of the Far East.

Send 15 cents (plus 1 cent to cover cost of mailing) for our war map, "Military and Naval Map of World War II," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of map.

Braided Coiffure Returns to Favor In Summer Style

Looking for a new coiffure for summer? Why not wear braids Hollywood's younger set think they're cute. Witness 18-year-old Bonita Granville who parts her hair down the middle from forehead to neckline, braids each side, ties the braids firmly with ribbons, leaving the last 2 inches to curl.

If the center part is too severe for you, the front can be arranged in your standard bangs or pompadour. But the braided ends are fun, easy to do, stay put—and look cute with slacks, cotton frocks, play clothes. Also, they'll save you time with curlers when you're on vacation this summer.

Canada's Prime Minister Negotiates Full Calendar

Day of Conferences Climaxed With Tea And Dinner for Mackenzie King

By Patricia Grady

It's only to be expected that when one of the Capital's favorite visiting statesman comes to town, he will be wined, dined and feted as much as his official schedule will allow.

Luncheon at the White House was the first item on popular Prime Minister Mackenzie King's crowded calendar yesterday. The Canadian premier arrived here by private car on Tuesday to attend meetings of the Allied War Conference. Wednesday evening he was a guest at the White House where he dined quietly with the President, his old friend of more than 30 years standing.

Accustomed to "vacationing" in the United States almost every spring, the Canadian leader, who looks more like a successful businessman than the orthodox conception of a stateman, is openly here on "official business" in this war year. In previous years, his "informal and unofficial" visits to the President have been followed by official evidences of a closer cooperation between the two governments.

Making his headquarters at the Canadian Legation, the Prime Minister was the guest of honor last evening at a stag dinner at which the Canadian Minister, Leighton McCarthy, was host. In the afternoon, Princess Cantacuzene, an old friend of the Prime Minister, invited a small group in to meet him during the tea hours.

Has Tea With Local Princess

The tea followed an afternoon of conferences during which Mr. King received Sir Gerald Campbell at the legation, and later in the afternoon, Dr. Herbert Vere Evatt. Australian Minister of External Affairs, dropped in to exchange a few official words. Then at 5 o'clock the Prime Minister, whose schedule was planned to the split second, called on the Acting Secretary of State, Sumner Welles. It was only after that he took time out for a cup of tea with Princess Cantacuzene.

Among the guests at the dinner at the legation last evening, were the Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Morgenthau; the Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox; the Secretary of Commerce, Jesse Jones; the Foreign Minister of China, T. V. Soong; the Minister of External Affairs of Australia, Dr. Herbert Vere Evatt, Field Marshal Sir John Dill and Representative Sol Bloom, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House.

Length of Stay Not Yet Known

Just how long the bachelor Prime Minister will remain in Washington is not yet known, but probably a number of Capital hostesses who would like to entertain for him will be doomed to disappointment, for this is definitely a "business trip."

A disciple of the famous Canadian liberal, Sir Wilfred Laurier, Mr. King has been Canada's Prime Minister—on and off—since 1921. Holding honorary degrees from seven universities, Dr. King earned his PhD. in political science at Harvard. He has spent a number of years in the United States, where he studied industrial relations under the auspices of the Rockefeller Foundation, and for a time, worked under the famous Jane Addams at Chicago's Hull House. The author of two scholarly books—"The Secret of Heroism," and "Industry and Humanity"—Mr. King concentrated on an academic career before turning to politics.

The grandson of William Lyon Mackenzie, for whom he is named, the Prime Minister comes naturally by his qualities of leadership. Mr. Mackenzie was the leader of the Canadian Rebellion of 1837.

Mrs. Barbour Entertains

The Brazilian Ambassador and Mme. Martins were ranking guests at a dinner last night given by Mrs. Carrere Barbour at the 1925 F Street Club.

Mrs. Edward Moran, Here From Maine, Is Honored

First of the fetes given for a popular Maine visitor, Mrs. Edward C. Moran, was a luncheon yesterday at the Senate Restaurant at which Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, wife of the Senator from Maine, was hostess.

Mrs. Moran, who is the wife of former Representative Moran, of Maine, arrived in town Wednesday morning and will be the guest of Representative Margaret C. Smith, also of her New England home State. On Saturday, the latter is planning a luncheon for her guest at the Shoreham Hotel.

Spring flowers centered the table at yesterday's party. Mrs. Brewster's guest list included Mrs. James Oliver, wife of Representative Oliver, of Maine; Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, Mrs. Edward R. Burke, wife of the former Nebraska Senator and herself a former president of the Congressional Club; Mrs. Haven Sawyer, of Bangor, Me., and Mrs. May Craig.

Josephine Griffith Is Betrothed to A. M. Kerfoot

The engagement of Miss Josephine Key Griffith to Ensign John Wilson Brown, jr., U. S. N. R., has been announced by her mother, Mrs. Alfred Moss Kerfoot, of Llewellyn, Clarke County, Va. Ensign Brown is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Brown, of Bethesda Md., and is stationed in Washington.

Miss Griffith, who is the daughter of the late Joseph T. Griffith, jr., of Berryville, is prominently connected throughout the South, her maternal grandmother being Miss Key, of New Orleans. She is also a descendant of the Trumbulls and Winthrops of Massachusetts. She is a graduate of Stephens College at Columbia, Mo.

The marriage will take place early in June in Grace Episcopal Church, Berryville. Miss Griffith will have as her maid of honor and only attendant her sister, Miss Elinor Griffin, of Washington. Ensign Brown is a graduate of the University of Maryland law school.

Elizabeth Elvin Is Engaged

Dr. and Mrs. John Henry Elvin announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Viola Elvin, to Vernon Wallace Emmerson, of Walla Walla, Wash., the son of Mrs. Myrtle Emmerson, of Portland, Oreg.

Miss Elvin has spent most of her life in Washington, D. C., but after completing her studies in the Takoma Academy, she attended Walla Walla College, where she was graduated. She is now teaching in Everett, Washington State.

Mr. Emmerson is a senior in Walla Walla College. They will reside in Walla Walla after their marriage which will take place June 15.

MISS RUTH TUCKERMAN

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Hollingsworth, to the Rev. Robert Gifford Metters, lieutenant (j. g.) United States Navy, son of Mrs. Harold Gifford Metters and the late Dr. Metters, of Norwood, Mass.

Miss Tuckerman attended National Cathedral School and made her debut at the home of her parents, Tuxeden, Edgemoor, Md. She also bowed at the Bachelors Cotillion in Baltimore and at a dinner dance in Philadelphia. She is a member of the Colonial Dames of America, Chapter 3, of which her mother was president for a number of years.

Lieut. Metters was graduated from Williams College in 1934 and General Theological Seminary in 1937. He was assistant rector of St. Paul's Church, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, for four years and is now on active duty at the Bureau of Navigation here.

To Wed Grandniece Of Former Envoy

Mr. and Mrs. Stanwood Edwards Flitner, of Englewood, N. J., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anne Wellington Flitner, to Ensign Laurence Robbins Wallace, U. S. N. R., of Chevy Chase Md., son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wallace, of Longmeadow, Mass.

Miss Flitner is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wickham Wollington, of Corning, N. Y., and grandniece of the late Alanson B. Sara Frances Ewing Wed At Washington Cathedral

In a candlelight ceremony last evening in the St. Joseph of Arimathea Chapel of Washington Cathedral Miss Sara Frances Ewing became the bride of Robert Edward Grote, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Grote, of St. Louis, Mo. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Francis Marion Ewing and the late Mr. Ewing.

The Rev. W. Curtis Draper, jr., read the marriage vows at 8 o'clock before an altar banked with baskets of white spring flowers and candelabra.

Francis Marion Ewing, jr., gave his sister in marriage. Her gown was of white lace and mousseline-de-soie cut with long sleeves, fitted bodice and full skirt. The tulle veil fell to a long circular train and was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of orchids and freesia.

Miss Elizabeth Flather was the only attendant and wore a frock of pale blue marquisette with a short train and pink picture hat trimmed in blue. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and blue delphinium.

Mr. Grote was his son's best man and Richard Tucker Ewing and Robert A. Ewing, brother's of the bride, were ushers.

A reception which followed at the home of the bride's mother who received guests attired in a gray chiffon gown, a flower hat and corsage of violets. Mrs. Grote sr. also wore gray chiffon with a corsage of orchids. Assisting at the reception were Mrs. Francis M. Ewing, jr., and Mrs. Howard D. Hilley.

The couple left later for a Southern wedding trip, the bride wearing a green chiffon printed redingote with white accessories.

Mrs. Grote attended Randolph-Macon Women's College at Lynchburg, Va., and the bridegroom is a graduate of Yale University and the University of Michigan law school.

New Names Added To Sponsors' List

Several new names have been added to the committee for the combined program and dinner party April 25 for the benefit of French prisoners of war.

Serving with Mr. Robert Woods Bliss, who is chairman, are the Countess de Marenches, Mrs. George Gordon, Mrs. Albert Dewey, Mrs. John Jay Ide, Miss Carolyn Nasy, Countess Buyer de Mimeure, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis and Mme. George Thenault.

A feature of the dinner, which will take place at the R Street home of the Countess Andre de Limur, will be a program of songs by Mme. Claude Alphand, who has recently finished a winter's engagement at the St. Regis in New York. The event is under the auspices of the Washington chapter of the Coordinating Council of French Relief Societies.

Miss Calver To Be Wed In June Rites

Capt. George Calver, U. S. N. Medical Corps, and Mrs. Calver announce the engagement of their daughter, Georgianna Calver to Lieut. Eldon Carl Swanson, U. S. N. Medical Corps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Swanson, of Omaha, Nebr.

The bride-elect, who is a graduate of the University of Maryland is a granddaughter of the late Admiral A. B. Willets and of the late Dr. Thomas Calver, of Washington. Her father is physician to Congress.

Lieut. Swanson is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and medical school.

The wedding will take place in June.

Col., Mrs. Washburn Mrs. Clayton's Guests

Mrs. Powell Clayton has as her houseguests for several days Col. and Mrs. Stanley Washburn, of Lakewood, N. J. Mrs. Washburn is Mrs. Clayton's sister. Mrs. Clayton gathered in a few friends to meet her guests yesterday afternoon.

During their stay Col. and Mrs. Washburn will also visit Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Langhorne and Mrs. Cary D. Langhorne. Mr. Langhorne and Dr. Langhorne are Mrs. Washburn's brothers.

Mary Catherine Waters Is Bride Of L. Wilson Carmichael

Gowned in traditional white satin, featuring a full skirt and a bridal train, Miss Mary Catherine Waters walked down the aisle of All Souls Church last evening to exchange vows with L. Wilson Carmichael.

A Mary-Queen-of-Scots halo of pearls caught her short veil, and she carried a prayer book with a single calla lily and freesia showered on ribbons. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Waters, of Washington, and she was given in marriage by her father. The Rev. H. H. D. Sterrett officiated at the 8 o'clock ceremony.

The bride had two attendants. Mrs. Richard B. Castell, who was matron of honor, was gowned in pale yellow mousseline de soie. Her headdress was also Mary-Queen-of-Scots style and she carried an old fashioned bouquet. Gowned similarly, but in pale green, was Mrs. William O. Lane, who was the only bridesmaid.

The bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Kate Wilson Carmichael and the late John Harlee Carmichael, of Washington, had his brother, Lieut. John H. Carmichael, for his best man. Ushers were William H. Waters and Robert Waters, brothers of the bride, Donald Carmichael and William O. Lane.

Mrs. Waters wore a blue gown which featured a lace yoke and sleeve trimming, while the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Carmichael, chose a black chiffon dress and wore red roses in her hair. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. L. A. Wilson, of Waycross, Ga., wore white.

Following a small reception at the bride's home for the wedding party, Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael left on a motor trip through Virginia. The bride wore a brown and white polka dot dress under a beige coat for traveling. The couple's future address will be 3903 Davis Place.

The Hunt Country

By Nina Carter Tabb

RECENTLY ARRIVED from New York to pass a few days at Blue Ridge Farms, their country place near Upperville, are Mr. and Mrs. George L. Harrison. Mrs. Harrison's eldest son, Ensign Gordon Grayson, U. S. Navy, is now on duty in South America. Her other sons, Cary T. Grayson, jr., and William Grayson are attending Yale University.

Mr. and Mrs. Houston Gaddis have returned to their residence, Piedmont Farms, from New York, where they went to attend the wedding last Saturday of her son, John Brognard Okie, to Miss Alys Victoria Matthiessen.

MAJ. BENJAMIN CAIN, U. S. Air Corps Intelligence, of Warrenton, who has been in England for the past year is now on duty in Australia. Mrs. Cain is at present living in Washington and has leased their Warrenton home to Miss Nancy Haas of New York.

Senator Maybank, of South Carolina, and Mrs. Maybank were recent visitors at the home of William H. Lipscomb.

An important event of the coming week-end here will be the annual Potomac Hunt Hunter Trials to take place Saturday, Saturday, April 18, at the Potomac Hunt Kennels, Great Elm Farm.

DR. FRED R. SANDERSON and Lieut. Col. Harry H. Semms are joint masters of the hunt and Mrs. Alice Berry, of Rockville, Md., is secretary of the hunter trials. Proceeds from the admission gate and picnic luncheon on the grounds will be for the benefit of the Office of Civilian Defense of Montgomery County.

Six events will be run off during the day, the first "Junior Plate" starting at 11:30 being open to juniors under 18 years old. Prize, trophy, four ribbons.

Class B: 1:00—The Chevy Chase Plate, open to any hunter that has hunted at least six times with a recognized or registered hunt since November 1, 1941. Prize, trophy, four ribbons.

CLASS C: 1:45—The Elinor Wheeler Exnicios Trophy, presented by members of the Potomac Hunt to be won three times by the same member for permanent ownership. This class is open to hunters regularly hunted by members of the Potomac Hunt and who have hunted at least six times since November 1, 1941, with the Potomac Hunt. To be ridden by individual subscribers to the hunt and ridden by owner. Prize, trophy, four ribbons.

Class D: 2:30—"The Montgomery County Plate," open to any pair of hunters, not necessarily of the same ownership. Mrs. Leonard Gives Flower Mart Tea

Spring bonnets and print dresses were much in evidence at the tea given yesterday afternoon at the Georgetown home of Mrs. Henry Leonard for committee chairmen making final preparations for the Flower Mart to be held at the Washington Cathedral, May 1. The tea marked the last get-together of those ladies in charge of the mart.

Following the meeting, presided over by Mrs. George Garrett, general chairman of the mart, guests wandered out on the porch of the lovely Georgetown home and admired the attractive formal garden of Mrs. Leonard which yesterday had burst into bloom and was a mass of color. A colorful flower arrangement of flowers cut from the hostess' garden decorated the tea table.

Among those present were Mrs. Franklin Ellis, vice chairman of the general committee; Miss Belle Gurnee, Mrs. Chase Donaldson, Mrs. Daniel Knowlton, Mrs. L. M. C. Smith, Mrs. Raymond Wolven, Mrs. Howard Davidson, Mrs. Charles McNary, Mrs. Phillip Coffin, Miss Rosalind Wright, Mrs. Ernest Mechlin, Mrs. Eli Swavely, Mrs. Richard Shands, Mrs. Phillip Freer, Mrs. John Vincent.

Following the tea Mrs. Vincent met with members of her committee at her home. Mrs. Vincent is chairman of the committee which will have charge of a hat decoration contest at the mart—a new feature which will test the ingenuity of any designer who might attend the mart.

Betty Stuart, Ensign Burke Are Married

This is another of those stories in which the principal characters will be separated, temporarily, at least because of the war. They are Ensign and Mrs. Julian Thompson Burke, jr., whose wedding took place last week in Falmouth, Maine. The bride, who is the former Miss Betty Stuart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Stuart, of Wasbhington, is expected to return to Washington about May 1. Exactly where the bridegroom will be is another of those naval secrets, for the time being.

Ceremony Is Somewhere in Maine

Because Ensign Burke was granted only a short leave from sea duty, the bride, her parents, and the bridegroom's mother went to Maine, where the wedding took place Friday, April 10. Ensign Burke is the son of Mrs. Julian Thompson Burke and the late Mr. Burke of Alexandria.

The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock in the evening, in Falmouth, but there the story needs must end, for the bride will stay as close as possible to the bridegroom and these are not times to mention men, places or ships.

This was another of the weddings made possible by the lifting of the two-year ban on marriage for ensigns, for the bridegroom was among the graduates from the Naval Academy in the class of 1940.

Mrs. D. M. Dent Is Attendant

Mrs. Daniel M. Dent, who was matron of honor, was gowned in pale gray crepe with a pale pink organza collar. Her bouquet was pink tulips. Also carrying pink tulips, but gowned in pale blue taffeta, was the maid of honor, Miss Patricia Stuart. The gown was fashioned with a shirred skirt on a low waistline and a panel front.

G. Anderson Burke was best man and ushers were David M. Burke and William Laffy. For starting on their wedding trip Mrs. Burke donned a dark blue wool dress with faille yoke, and a jacket with white faille collar. She attended National Cathedral School and H. Sophie Newcomb College at New Orleans.

Mrs. Thomason Fetes Visitors

Mrs. R. Ewing Thomason, wife of Representative Thomason of Texas, entertained at a luncheon on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. W. L. Tooley and Mrs. Joseph L. Williams, of El Paso, Tex. The party took place at the Congressional Club.

Mrs. Tooley and Mrs. Williams are visiting Lieut. Col. and Mrs. G. C. Mudgett, the latter of whom is Mrs. Williams' daughter. Guests at the luncheon included El Pasoans residing in Washington and Army circle friends formerly stationed at Fort Bliss, Tex.

Party Planned

Capt. F. Joseph Donohue, who has recently received his commission in the Army Air Corps, will be the guest of honor at a cocktail party Sunday to be given by a group of his friends in the Blue Room of the Shoreham between 2 and 4 o'clock. Until his commissioning, Capt. Donohue has been in law practice.

Gallant Chinese Women Battle Invader With Guerilla Tactics

By Genevieve Reynolds

IF YOU think the Chinese women, who are fighting guerilla warfare along with their soldiers, are uncouth, ignorant Amazons, you're all wrong. A bit on the husky side perhaps, they represent the best brains and culture of their country. This fact, Mme. Chu, wife of Maj. Gen. Chu-Shih-ming, Military attache of the Chinese Embassy, revealed in her talk at the Washington Club's dinner meeting last night.

Madam Chu

In discussing the war work of the Chinese women, the guest speaker said: "Women in the war area service often fight guerilla fashion. They harass the Japanese enemy lines. Often they precede the enemy and demolish strategic military objectives. Also, they teach their people in the country side what to destroy and when to apply the scorched earth tactics."

Organized in groups similar to the Red Cross here, the Chinese women roll bandages, make and pack mosquito nets, pad garments (for warmth—no wool), make cotton socks, according to Mme. Chu, who speaks English fluently. By the way, she was graduated from Wellesley College, a few years ago.

"In addition to actual war duties, many Chinese women are doing civilian relief work," explained the speaker. "This consists of finding living quarters for many of the 50 million refugees in the free China areas, placing children in war orphanages, teaching modern hygiene to the masses."

Just to make sure that the Japanese won't trick the illiterate members of the populace, many women go about the country explaining why the Nipponese soldiers are fighting China. Also, they teach the people patriotic songs and to read and write. These are only a few of the multitudinous war time tasks that Chinese women are performing today, according to Mme. Chu. Mrs. Frank Bunker, president of the Washington Club, presided and introduced the guest speaker.

Doings of the Day

An interesting feature of the meeting will be the showing of moving pictures, in color, of Czecho-Slovakia and other scenes in Europe, by Wilbur J. Carr, formerly Assistant Secretary of State, and lately United States Minister to Czecho-Slovakia.

The governor of the society, former Representative Maurice H. Thatcher, and Mrs. Thatcher will be assisted in receiving by Representative and Mrs. Foster Stearns, Mr. and Mrs. Carr, and Mr. and Mrs. Steele.

Van Zandt Speaks Tonight

REPRESENTATIVE James E. Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania, will be the speaker at the annual banquet of the Dames of the Loyal Legion tonight in the Chinese Room of the Mayflower Hotel. The program also includes greetings from Mrs. William H. Pouch, president general of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, and James Vernor, commander-in-chief of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Mrs. David Daniel Good, national president of the Dames of the Loyal Legion, will preside.

Mrs. Jerome J. Wilber, president of the District of Columbia Society, is chairman of the conference committee, assisted by Mrs. P. M. Allen and Miss Minnie B. Wade. In charge of arrangements for the banquet are Mrs. W. C. Kendall, Mrs. J. J. Browne and Miss Josephine Grant Richardson. Mrs. Carl Macpherson is in charge of registration; Miss Helen F. Downing, flowers, and Mrs. Katherine Alvord and Mrs. Smead Alvord, jr., flags.

Mrs. Pearl E. Phillips

IN THE country. That's where you'll find members of Beta chapter of the Phi Delta Delta International Legal Sorority Sunday. At 9:15 Sunday morning they will leave the Women's City Club for Rixey Mansion, Country Club Hills, Va. This breakfast is the first rush party of the season.

Speaker of the day is Miss Ella Evans Highman, member of Washington Alumnae chapter of Phi Delta Delta. A graduate of Georgia State College for Women and a member of the Georgia Bar Association, Miss Highman is now an attorney with the Board of Tax Appeals.

Darden Urges Conciliation On Boundary

Gov. Darden, of Virginia, yesterday suggested conciliation of the District of Columbia—Virginia boundary dispute involving the jurisdictional status of the National Airport.

In a conference at Richmond with representatives from Arlington County and the City of Alexandria, the Governor said that, as far as he was concerned, the Federal Government could assume control over liquor sales at the airport, although, he added, the matter should be studied further.

The conference was called to map plans to oppose Senator Pat McCarran's bill which would repeal the Retrocession Act of 1846, thus returning all of Arlington County, as well as part of Alexandria, to the District.

Might Call Special Session

Rather than risk losing this rich and populous area, Gov. Darden said he would even consider calling a special session of the Virginia Assembly. He did not explain, but it was assumed the purpose of the special session would be to amend a recent act of the Assembly giving Arlington County control over liquor sales at the airport.

The Governor, however, left no doubt as to his stand on McCarran's proposal to re-annex the Arlington-Alexandria area. "The territory will be gotten from us only after the exhaustion of every effort on our part to prevent it," he declared, according to the Associated Press.

The Governor said he would designate the Attorney General to represent the State in the controversy and urged that Arlington and Alexandria consider the employment of special counsel to appear before the Senate District Committee.

Also Suggests Postponement

The Governor also suggested that the Senate committee be asked to postpone hearings on the McCarran bill until after the war. He said the request would not be unreasonable in view of the urgency of the war situation.

Under the legislation passed by the recent session of the State Assembly, the National Airport is held to be entirely within the boundaries of Virginia and Arlington County. This means that the sale of liquor by the drink is forbidden. It also means that Virginia gets the revenue from off-sale liquor.

On Capitol Hill, Representative Randolph, of West Virginia, has introduced a bill which concurs with Virginia's solution of the boundary dispute. Another measure, introduced by Representative Nichols, of Oklahoma, fixes the controversial boundary so that the airport is within the District.

U. S. Planes Forced Down in Venezuela

Port of Spain, Trinidad, April 16 (AP).—Ten United States training aircraft have been forced down in the jungles of eastern Venezuela, it was announced today, but a United States Army communique indicated the only casualties were two injured airmen.

The planes, on a flight over sparsely settled territory from Trinidad to Brazil, came down at Baja, in the southeastern tip of Venezuela. One machine was wrecked in an attempted landing on a river.

The scene of the landing is about 400 miles south of the United States defense base in Trinidad.

Open House Tonight At Howard University

Emphasis will be placed on the roles engineers and architects are playing in the war program in the annual open house of the School of Engineering and Architecture at Howard University at 7 o'clock tonight.

Members of the faculty and student body will give demonstrations of work of students enrolled in the training courses conducted to prepare men and women for technical positions in war industries.

Lovett Declared Trigger Man In Va. Slaying of FBI Agent

By the Associated Press

Abingdon, Va., April 16 (AP).—Two witnesses today described the killing of Hubert Treacy, jr., of Alexandria, FBI agent, before a trial jury in Federal district court here, where Charles Joseph Lovett, 21, and James Edward Testerman, also 21, went on trial for first degree murder.

Charles L. Tignor, FBI agent who accompanied Treacy in a search for Lovett and Testerman, wanted as Army deserters, told the jury that the two G-men went to a booth occupied by the soldiers, identified themselves as agents of the FBI, and "before I could take a step the gunfire began."

Tignor said he was not able to draw his weapon during the shooting, which occurred in a small restaurant here March 23.

The Government's other eye-witness to the slaying, Mrs. Mary Sue Johnson, declared that only Lovett fired shots at the two G-men during the encounter in the restaurant.

George M. Warren, defense attorney, asked that the jury bear in mind that "regardless of what happened on that tragic day in Abingdon remember that these two boys have had at least one fine feeling. They volunteered to serve under the flag of their country."

Just as the attorney was reading this statement to the court, however, an attache handed him a note saying that a sister of Lovett had arrived by train from Philadelphia. Judge A. D. Barksdale then adjourned court to permit the defense attorneys to meet the sister at the station and to confer with her.

Lovett showed no signs of emotion as counsel made their opening statements; but Testerman, whose father was in the courtroom, had difficulty controlling his feelings.

Judge A. D. Barksdale ruled yesterday that the two should be tried together after they had formally pleaded innocent to the charge that they killed Treacy, 28-year-old agent, as he sought to arrest them in an Abingdon cafe as deserters. The FBI said they deserted the Third Cavalry at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.

The guard thrown about the two defendants was heavy. Approximately 40 officers, including Federal and Virginia police, brought them here.

Hay Fever Increase Blamed On Auto Travel

Des Moines, Iowa, April 16 (AP).—"Hay fever definitely is on the increase." Dr. French K. Hansel of St. Louis said here today.

Drfl Hansel told the Iowa State Medical Society that allergic diseases have almost become the disease of civilization and attributed their prevalence to automobile travel, which takes persons to places where pollen count is high, and increasing exposure to industrial dusts. He is a Washington University School of Medicine professor.

"Eight of 10 persons who have sinus trouble have an allergy, not infection," he declared, "and persons who have frequent colds, one after the other, may have allergy rather than a true infection."

Death of Navy Yard Machinist Listed as Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued by Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy yesterday in the fatal shooting of John F. Leimeister, 47-year-old Navy Yard machinist, of 910 G Street Southeast.

He was found dead in his automobile parked at Tenth and E Streets Southeast, shortly after midnight. A .32 caliber revolver with one shot discharged was in his lap.

According to his landlady, Mrs. Elizabeth Daye, Leimeister had appeared under a nervous tension due to war work for some time. He seemed, however, to be unusually cheerful when he left for work Wednesday, she said.

Van HookReplaces Sadler at Canal

Balboa, C. Z., April 16 (AP).—Rear Admiral Clifford Evans Van Hook has assumed command of the Fifteenth Naval District in succession to Rear Admiral Frank H. Sadler, who is reporting to Washington after two and one-half years in command here, it was announced today.

Admiral Sadler, at his press conference, pointed out that Admiral Van Hook was commanding a heavy cruiser with a task force operating from Honolulu immediately before and after the Japanese attack on Hawaii December 7, and consequently would be able to apply first-hand lessons learned at sea and in later study of the Pearl Harbor situation.

This could not but help the Canal defense, Admiral Sadler observed.

Be Patient, Drive Coming, NazisTold

London, April 16 (INS).—German newspapers are telling their readers that the Nazi offensive on the Russian front will not start until June and they are appealing to the German public to be patient meanwhile and keep confidence in the Nazi military command, dispatches from Stockholm said today.

Explaining the delay, these newspapers are saying that all operations in southern sector of the Russian front have been suspended because of deep mud, while in the northern area there still are frosts and operations are on a local scale.

Deep New Cut In Gas Ration Goes Into Effect

A new, severe reduction in gasoline consumption became effective yesterday in the East and the Pacific Northwest, and petroleum industry sources said millions of motorists would have to get along with 40 to 50 per cent less than their normal use of motor fuel.

The overall curtailment was raised to one-third, an increase of 13 1/3 per cent over the 20 per cent reduction instituted a month ago.

Essential vehicles, including those necessary to health and safety, commerce, schools and government, will continue to get full supplies, and the gasoline used in nonessential driving thus will be curtailed by considerably more than one-third.

Petroleum Coordinator Ickes said that public cooperation with the new reduction would determine whether gasoline must be put under a ration card system.

Six Dutch Subs Safe in Ports After Fleeing Java

An Australian Fort (Friday), April 17 (AP).—Six Dutch submarines—the last of which did not leave Sourabaja until the Japanese were entering the city—have traveled safely from Java to friendly ports, naval sources disclosed today.

The crew of the last submarine, during four days of waiting at Sourabaja for high Dutch naval officers, heard almost endless explosions as demolition squads destroyed munitions dumps, torpedo magazines and fuel tanks.

One night after leaving Java the submarine was picked out by the searchlight of an enemy destroyer 4 miles away, but crash-dived in time to escape depth charges.

Negroes Welcome Opportunity to Enlist in Navy

The Navy Department's announcement last week that Negroes hereafter will be eligible for enlistment in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard was described as a "progressive step" last night in a statement by the Washington Council of the National Negro Congress, which urged Negroes to seize this opportunity to help win the war.

The statement also urged public support of President Roosevelt's announced policy of "carrying the war to the enemy," and for opening up a second European front to facilitate a speedy victory over the Axis.

'1-Man Airforce' Returns to U. S.

San Francisco, April 16 (AP).—Lieut. Edward O'Hare, the Navy's "one man airforce" who shot down six Japanese bombers and sent three others scurrying for home in one Pacific fight is back in the United States. He is heading for Phoenix, Ariz., to join Mrs. O'Hare.

The lieutenant, who holds the record for the most planes bagged by an American flier in a single engagement, arrived on a Transpacific clipper after a flight from the war zone.

He and Mrs. O'Hare plan to go together to Washington, D. C.

Ruse Made Japs Waste Bombs on Worthless Plane

United States Army Headquarters in Australia, April 16 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Ralph Royce, who led the American bombing raid on the Philippines, disclosed today that he fooled Japanese bombers by fixing up an old de-commissioned B-17 Flying Fortress on a Philippine landing field.

Four wooden "propellers" were attached to the worthless plane, and new "camouflage" was provided—not to conceal it but to make the Japanese think concealment was intended.

Sure enough, the Japanese came over and bombed it all day, but their 13 twin-engine bombers failed to find Royce's base.

As souvenirs of the ruse, Royce displayed metal fragments with which Japanese bombs are filled. Several of the pieces of scrap had "Ford" stamped on them.

Service League Plans Benefit Rummage Sale Next Week

A rummage sale, bigger and better than ever before, is promised by the the Woman's Army-Navy League for April 22, 23, 24. It is to be held at the former Lotos Lantern Tea Room, now Government property, for the benefit of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club.

This club, organized and operated for many years by wives of officers for enlisted men of the services, is running at full speed, but needs help to maintain its high standards without raising its very low prices. Every penny of the money raised at the sale will go to the club.

Honorary chairmen of the sale are Mrs. Robert P. Patterson and Mrs. Ralph A. Bard. The chairman is Mrs. Thomas M. Robbins, assisted by Mrs. W. H. P. Blandy. Committees appointed for preliminary arrangements are: Secretary, Mrs. A. W. Shea; treasurer, Mrs. Robert A. Lavender; correspondence chairman, Mrs. J. H. Fellows; solicitation, Mrs. Wallace G. Smith; supply, Mrs. David McCoach, jr.; receiving, Mrs. Oliver Reed; collection, Mrs. William Rose; floor committee, Mrs. Leslie Groves; utilities, Mrs. Beverly C. Snow; publicity, Mrs. Luther Sheldon, jr.

Tables for the sale are as follows: Hats, Mrs. Edmund Hill, wife of Col. Hill, U. S. A.; women's clothes, Mrs. W. V. Carter, wife of Brig. Gen. Carter, U. S. A.; linens, Mrs. V. L. Peterson, wife of Maj. Gen. Peterson, U. S. A.; furniture, Mrs. Myron C. Cramer, wife of Maj. Gen. Cramer, U. S. A.; pictures and frames, Mrs. Dawson Olmstead, wife of Maj. Gen. Olmstead, U. S. A.; wrapping and checking, Mrs. Eugene Reybold, wife of Maj. Gen. Reybold, U. S. A.; children's clothes, Mrs. John K. Christmas, wife of Col. Christmas.

D. C. Church Leaders to Aid Education Drive

Washington church leaders will participate today in a Nation-wide program designed to make Christian education available to 45 million Americans without church ties through the United Christian Education Advance. The local observance will be held at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H Streets Northwest.

The International Council of Religious Education is sponsoring 310 one-day conventions throughout the United States from April 13 to May 2, with the Washington celebration arranged by the D. C. Sunday School Association. More than 40 Protestants denominations in 43 States are participating in the Advance.

Nine teams of Protestant leaders are bringing the story of the three phases of the Advance—home, church and community—to ministers, Christian educators and laymen in each area.

The team coming here will include Dr. J. Quinter Miller, associate general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches; Dr. J. Fisher Simpson, of the Methodist Board of Education; Dr. Nevin C. Harner, of the Evangelical and Reformed Theological Seminary, Lancaster, Pa.; Miss Elizabeth Lee, of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions and Church Extension, and Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Washington City Church of the Brethren here.

Dr. Charles E. Resser is president of the local Sunday School Association.

Meanwhile the International Council of Religious Education issued a joint appeal from 200 prominent Americans for "immediate and concerted action in behalf of the many millions of our youth who are at present outside the influence of all religious instruction—Protestant, Jewish or Catholic.

Among those signing the call were:

Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, former Gov. Alf M. Landon, Dr. Kirtley F. Mather of Harvard University; Walter W. Head, president of the Boy Scouts of America; Alexander T. Wells, past president of Lions International; President M. E. Sadler, of Texas Christian University; Dr. Clifford W. Barnes and James L. Kraft, of Chicago; C. M. Goethe, financier of Sacramento, Calif., and Wilson Compton, lawyer and economist, of Washington, D. C.

Local sessions will be from 9:30 a. m. to 12:15 p. m., 2 to 5 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Personnel Errors Cause 80% of Army Plane Accidents

Lieut. Col. S. R. Harris, chief of the Air Corps Safety Section, disclosed yesterday that 79.98 per cent of all Army aircraft accidents in the last fiscal year were caused by errors or omissions on the part of personnel.

"The vital drive, the urge to fly in a manner approaching recklessness, the lack of fear that makes our pilots feared and respected in combat also makes for airplane accidents in routine operations," he told Senator Johnson (Democrat), of Colorado.

"Combined with a low experience level is youth and high performance aircraft. The three constitute a perfect setup for accidents."

Col. Harris' observations were contained in a memorandum made public by Johnson, member of a Senate Military Affairs Subcommittee investigating military air accidents.

He said that 13.96 per cent of the crashes were caused by failure of materials and the rest were from miscellaneous causes.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

GORGEOUS IS THE WORD for the Willard Room Cocktail Lounge. It's not modernistic even a little bit, but lushly lovely in the Edwardian manner, teems with gold, crystal, mirrors, green marble columns whose tones are repeated in upholsteries. Gazing 'round you'll think of the palace of the Czar and of those endless glittery perspectives in "Citizen Kane." One can't help figuring that the Willard Room will fill the same place in the downtown picture that the Mayflower Lounge occupies in the Connecticut Avenue sector. Harry Somerville, managing director of the Willard Hotel, greeted hundreds of dazzled folks at the press opening and sweet little Mrs. Joseph Willard, owner of the hotel, was chatting with friends all over the place. We saw Managers C. J. Mack, of the Mayflower, Russell Conn of the Ambassador, Augustus Gumpert of the Harrington, Adman Frank Romer, who keeps the Neptune Room in the limelight, all with their attractive wives. Art Brown bounced in between shows at the Capitol. For the rest the place looked like a combined convention of Gridironers, White House correspondents, Early Birds, the Alfalfa Club, the Women's Press Club, Rotarians and Soroptimists.

Platinum-plated job offers are being hurled at Crossroads' sharp young band leader, Ralph Hawkins. A bid from Benny Goodman came in this week and Paul Whiteman tried to land Maestro Hawkins last month.

PAINLESS DECORATION. Roy Risk, the resourceful new manager of Hotel 2400, Sixteenth Street, is planning to have the Lounge Riviera redecorated in such smooth graations that it will not be necessary to close it for more than a day or two, if at all. Work will proceed in the daytime, but all signs of it be cleared away before Pete Macias' Band arrives . . . This kind of redecoration requires no end of care and attention to detail. But it can be done, as was proven at Burt's Trans-Lux a few months ago when the entire spot was done over in installments without the loss of a day's business.

FAUNA AND FLORA. The three orchids worn by Songstress Gina Janss at the Shoreham are sent to her daily by her father, Harold Janss, one of Los Angeles' most prominent real estate men . . . Owner J. T. Richards, of the Louisiana spends his weekends at his Virginia farm, watching the leaves pop out . . . Russ Cullen, the farming saxist of the Pall Mall Room, is the proud owner of dozens of brand-new baby pigs and two calves . . . Milton Davis, rose gardening maestro of the Rainbow Room, says the old-fashioned American Beauty is still the best rose of them all . . . There are only two night club "hep cats" (with four legs) in town. One is the tiger-striped feline that resides under the Victory Room bandstand and startles the daylights out of visiting bands. The other is the Copocabana's black "Mommy" who looks and acts like Don Marquis' brain cat, "Mehitabel" . . . Glen Echo is a park and garden combined. Manager Leonard Schloss always has quantities of bright flower beds all around Echo, which has been called the most attractive and best managed amusement park in the country.

Kitty Voyle, lovely dark-eyed dancer just added to the Casino Royal floor show, was Washington's "Miss Reciprocity" of last summer.

MAKERS OF MELODY. Fred Miller, part owner of Restaurant "823," could step out and get a job as a night spot singer any time he wanted. You should hear Fred and Emcee Van Taylor polish off "I Had a Dream, Dear" . . . Debonair Don Carper, who winds up a long engagement in Cafe Caprice tomorrow, tells us that he's a bachelor again. That's the second time in three months . . . El Patio's Streamliners received a double portion of ovation at the Spotlight Club the other eve . . . Band Leader Layton Bailey of the Metronome Room has lost four musicians to the Man With the Whiskers, has had great success, though, in getting smart replacements . . . Singer Les Colvin, of Restaurant "400," writes naughty ditties to order for other entertainers . . . There's good reason for the smooth melodizing of Evelyn Scott and Texas at Lee's Stables. They've been partners for years.

Mayfair was proud to be host to three wounded American soldier boys the other afternoon. Michael Barker's Trio fairly played their heads off for these heroes who'd been invalided home after early action in the Philippines.

SPLENDID TROUPING. Debut of the Di Gatanos at the Troika held onlookers as breathlessly quiet as Sasha Lukas' violin solos. There's a tingling dash and beauty to their dances that's truly unique . . . Maurine and Norva, now stepping at Del Rio, are made to order for this bright Pan-Am spot. They used to be with Ted Fiorita, have appeared at many of the swankiest places in the country . . . Kollette and Deane, girl adagioteers at the Lotus, could give handicaps to many male acrobats . . . There's no telling how long Jerry and Turk will be staying at Paul Young's. They're funnier every week, seem to have fresh jokes by the trunkful . . . You'll never see a more amazing job of make-up in your life than that of the "bulldog" in the Balalaika revue. He's a member of the Balalaika's Orchestra.

"BLACKOUT DANCING" is the top trick of Connie Marlow, of the new Kavakos Grill floor show. Also in the line-up are Bos Kart, novelty magician; Dell Mar, who juggles with his feet; Singer Jacqueline Martin. Lester Lee is the current Kavakos emcee.

Navy Dept. to Weed Out Misfits and Dead Wood

The Navy Department has "frozen" the number of its employes here. No one will be hired by the department for the next 45 days, or until June 1. Meantime, each new employe will be checked to see that he has been placed in a job where he is performing the maximum possible service for the Government. The check will be exhaustive and a great many shifts in personnel are anticipated. Typists and stenographers will get particular attention. Many of them haven't been able to produce on their Government jobs. They haven't been adequately schooled and trained, and the Government has been loaded down with much "dead wood."

—The Navy will drop many of its clerical people who haven't made the grade. Employes who show promise but who haven't had adequate training or experience will be required to attend school. The department itself has after-hour training courses which employes may attend free of charge. These courses will be expanded. Other employes may be required to take typing, filing, stenographic and other courses in Washington schools.

The War Production Board has been conducting a similar employe check-up for the past two weeks, which will result in a number of changes. Employes have been hired in such numbers that it has been impossible properly to place them and much work has been duplicated. Navy is limited by law to 20,000 employes here. It has around 16,000 now, but estimates made two months ago revealed a need for 27,000 employes by July 1, 1943. By proper placement of the employes, officials now hope that number will not be needed.

Nathan Margold, Interior Department solicitor, is angling for a judgeship on the combined Police and Municipal Court . . . Alex Holtzoff, Justice official, is a cinch for one of the three jobs. At Justice, the wags say that Holtzoff is being "promoted out." . . . The Junior Literary Guild has selected Pat O'Malley's "Wider Wings" for its May book of the month. She is CAA's information officer . . . Census has been given another huge job. It will tabulate Selective Service questionnaires. Instead of firing, Census will be hiring people . . . Civil Service is setting up an information specialist register. Eligibles are being asked if they are available and at what salary . . . United Government Employes will hold a mass meeting tonight at the Garnet Patterson Junior High School . . . Civil Service wants apprentice draftsmen for jobs at the Navy Yard and the Geological Survey. Salary, $1260.

The President is expected shortly to create a war man power commission. It is reported that Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt will be chairman and that he'll continue in his present job. The commission, however, will be set up within the framework of the Office of Emergency Management. War Production Board's labor supply and training division and labor's apprentice division will be transferred to the board, where they will be merged with the activities of CCC, NYA, and the Office of Education. John L. Lewis is understood to be ready to release a loud scream at the McNutt appointment. What will happen to Sidney Hillman? Some believe he'll remain as labor adviser to Donald Nelson.

It is official now. The time-consuming efficiency rating system has been modified. The simplified system is applicable to both war and non-war agencies. The revised form relieves supervisors of marking individual rating forms and of determining numerical ratings. Only one rating, instead of two, is required during the probationary period and interim ratings are eliminated under the new system. Civil Service Commission displayed its flexibility in simplifying the system. It was a smart move to make because the new system will save much valuable time.

Annual Notre Dame Fete Set Tonight

University of Notre Dame alumni now serving in the armed forces of the United States will be special guests of the Notre Dame Club of Washington at the seventeenth annual Universal Notre Dame Night celebration at the Carlton Hotel.

Speakers will include Representative Vincent J. Harrington, of Iowa, Notre Dame '25, United States District Attorney Edward M. Curran and Commander William L. Calvin, U. S. N. Notre Dame '14. The celebration is one of 94 to be held at the same time throughout the country.

E Pluribus Unum

Manchester, Tenn., April 16 (INS).—For the first time in history, members of the United States Armed Forces participated in a Confederate burial ceremony. An infantry band from Camp Forrest, which was named for a Confederate general, participated at the funeral of B. L. Sagely, who was the sole surviving Confederate soldier in Coffee County.

Honored As Dead, He Joins Up

Nashville, Tenn., April 16 (AP).—A grizzled former soldier who for many years had been listed among the dead of World War I joined the United States Marines today. The 45-year-old Tennesseean, William F. Ross, was accepted for limited service. He said he was in Haiti when reported dead. Even his name on an honor plaque couldn't convince him.

P.U.C. to Hear Witnesses For Utilities

Capital Transit witnesses will take the stand this morning in a continuation of the Public Utilities Commission's hearings on extension of the crosstown bus line, put into operation on January 23.

The extension of the line from Catholic University to Bladensburg Road Northeast, via Monroe Street, South Dakota Avenue and Franklin Street would involve the elimination of some sections of the Rhode Island Avenue and College Park-Hyattsville bus lines, and the establishment of feeder lines to give improved service in the Northeast section.

Few of the Northeast Citizens' Associations witnesses who testified at yesterday afternoon's sessions had objections to the discontinuance of the older lines, which would be practically duplicated by the crosstown route. Most arguments were for the new feeder lines to service some areas more fully than proposed.

Fred A. Sager, chief engineer for the P. U. C. testified that the revisions in the routes would increase the bus mileage per hour without involving the use of more buses. He estimated that the Capital Transit Co. would require 600 more buses this year, which he doubted would be obtainable. Therefore, he said, revision of routes and schedules, and utilization of all possible streetcar seating space should be seriously considered.

Coal Prices Returned to Winter Level

An increase in the retail price of most grades and sizes of anthracite or hard coal becomes effective today, it was announced yesterday by A. P. Brown, chairman of the Washington Coal Association.

The advance is equivalent to 56 cents a gross ton on egg, stove, nut and pea, Brown said.

The action came less than three weeks after coal prices were lowered to induce summer buying. The new prices reach the levels prevailing last winter.

The Office of Price Administration approved the increase after anthracite operators submitted evidence showing they could not mine coal profitably at the reduced prices, Brown said that many retail coal dealers here would have been forced to suspend business under the prices that prevailed up to yesterday.

Brown said the new prices will affect the vast majority of coal dealers here.

To Honor Col. Ennis

The Ligue Internationale des Aviateurs will honor Col. Arthur J. Ennis, chief of the public relations branch, United States Army Air Force, stationed here, with its special diploma of honor at a reception at the Hotel Mayflower, Pan American Room, tonight, from 5 to 7 o'clock.

Amended Recreation Bill Accepted

House Unit Agrees To Senate Change Leaving Race Issue Up to New Board

The House District Committee yesterday accepted Senate amendments to the District recreation bill which sets up a recreation board for seven members to coordinate Washington's community play activities.

At the same time two other minor bills were agreed to by the committee, while two measures, one of them deleting a provision of the District income tax law requiring out-of-town corporations to pay a 5 per cent tax on net profits earned here, will be given further consideration by the committee Monday at 10 a. m.

As passed by the House and Senate the recreation bill sets up a board of seven members. The Senate struck from the House bill, however, a provision for continuation of the present system whereby separate white and Negro supervision of playground activities exists.

To Form Own Policy

The new board will be charged with the responsibility of establishing its own policy, taking into consideration the present methods. Membership will be composed of a representative each of the Board of Education, the District Commissioners, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and four private citizens, all seven to be selected by the Commissioners.

Result of criticism of the present "unwieldy" manner of handling the local recreational program, the bill enables the new board to take over duties variously performed now by the Board of Education, the Community Center and Playgrounds Department, the Interior Department and the National Capital Parks.

Purpose of two bills accepted quickly by the committee yesterday were:

To enable operators of funeral cars and ambulances to receive licenses without passing a test of locations of places of public interest now required of taxi drivers and funeral drivers alike.

To give janitors and custodians of public schools and community centers overtime pay for work performed during the past year as the result of selective service activities.

Medical Bill on Agenda

Due for committee consideration Monday, besides the measure amending the local income tax law, is a bill requiring that all physicians practicing medicine in the District to be American citizens.

Later in the week the committee plans to consider two other bills, Chairman Randolph said. One would permit boarding and rooming houses in areas now zoned as residential "A" restricted and "A" semirestricted. The other would change the name of Woodley Place to Twenty-third Street Northwest.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Glenn Simmon told the committee yesterday that the measure introduced by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, to amend the District income tax law would mean a loss of approximately $180,000 annually to the local government.

Representative Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the Fiscal Affairs subcommittee which had reported favorably the D'Alesandro bill, asked that final decision on the change in law pass over until Monday.

The Commissioners yesterday requested Congress that a bill be introduced to abolish the Board of Personal Tax Appraisers and the tax assessor conduct the work of personal property assessment.

Members of the Board of Personal Tax Appraisers, serving at a salary of $4600 annually, are C. A. Russell and A. B. Evans. A third position on the board is vacant.

Ruling on Hankin Taxi Zone Plan Due Next Week

The Hankin taxi zoning system, of four zones and 21 subzones will probably go into effect within a few weeks, judging from the tenor of the three days hearings before the Public Utilities Commission on the proposed new zones which were concluded yesterday.

Final pronouncement by the commission will be delivered sometime next week.

No serious objections were raised to the basic subzoning idea of the proposed system. However, the suggestion by the P. U. C. that only two-thirds of a zone charge shall be collected for a trip of less than a mile was bitterly assailed by every witness for the taxi industry.

They'll Represent Social Service School at Convention

House Group Renews Budget Study Today

A House Appropriations Subcommittee today continues its hearings on the District's 1943 budget of $56,500,000, with Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health officer, scheduled to take the stand in asking for budget increases to allow employment of 161 more persons in his department.

Total amount now asked by the Health Department is $720,725, representing an increase from the $525,580 originally requested.

In executive session yesterday the subcommittee under the chairmanship of Representative Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, heard testimony from representatives of the Board of Education and the Police and Fire Departments.

Chief Engineer Stephen T. Porter told the group that the Fire Department needs 30 new privates and a new engine house at North Capitol and Crittenden Streets costing $110,000. In the department's total request of $2,229,060, an amount of $64,350 is sought for replacement of existing equipment.

Maj. Edward J. Kelly, Superintendent of Police, said his department needs $2500 for a Police Academy and rookie school in its total request for $3,959,390. No new men are asked, the only salary increases being for 195 men placed on the force several months ago. Total personnel now stands at the authorized number of 1711 men.

A total of 23,798 complaints were handled by the District Rent Administration between January 1 and March 31 of this year, Administrator Robert Cogswell said. He cited previously published statistics on the work of his office in asking for $70,000.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Frank W. Ballou told the subcommittee that Washington students need improved physical education if they are to be adequately prepared to participate in the war effort in the future. He urged more mass drills and calisthenics.

Asked by committee members how much such an enlarged program would cost, Dr. Ballou replied it would total approximately $275,000. He was requested to submit more accurate figures on the subject.

Others appearing on behalf of the schools system yesterday included President of the Board of Education Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Assistant Superintendents Robert L. Haycock, Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, Jere J. Crane and Dr. Chester W. Holmes.

Bus Official Proposes Further Staggering Of Work Hours Here to Relieve Congestion

Further staggering of working and school hours as "the only feasible means of relieving the District's transportation congestion" was proposed yesterday by Arthur P. Austin, general counsel of the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co.

Austin said his company had made an exhaustive study of the District's transportation problem and that findings indicate the situation will be even worse as motorists are forced to stop using their automobiles because of the tire shortage.

Pointing out that W. V. & M. buses are still overcrowded during the peak hours, Austin proposed that Government workers be assigned starting periods beginning at 7 a. m. and continuing at 15-minute intervals until 9:30 a. m. They would leave at 15-minute intervals beginning at 3:30 p. m. and continuing until 6 p. m.

Reporting time for office and shop workers would be at 9:45 and 10 a. m. under Austin's plan, and they would quit work at 6:15 and 6:30 p. m. The public schools would begin classes also at 9:45 and 10 a. m.

Austin said the company's survey showed that the greatest overtaxing of transportation facilities occurs between 8 and 8:30 a. m. and 5 and 5:30 p. m. The plan as applied to Government buildings alone would make it possible for 21,200 workers to get to their offices gradually over a period of two and one-half hours, instead of in the concerted rush as that causes almost unbearable crowding, Austin said.

Wardens Learn About Gas From 'Sniff Sets'

If your air raid warden starts going about sneezing like a severe hay-fever sufferer, he's probably been practicing on his "sniff-set," furnished him for practical instruction in poison-gas detection.

Washington, the only city in the country to have obtained this equipment, has distributed these chemical sets among its 75 wardens for the education of all protective service members, Chief Air Raid Warden Clement Murphy announced last night.

The "sniff sets" consist of five small boxes filled with charcoal impregnated with mustard gas, which smells like mustard, horseradish or garlic; lewisite, which smells like geraniums; chlorpicrin, which smells like flypaper or anise; phosgene, which smells like musty hay o green corn, and adamsite, which smells like coal smoke. The sets cost the Office of Civilian Defense $26.80 each.

New Officers Named For Connecticut Ave. Area

Harry C. Grove, chairman of the civilian defense committee for the Connecticut Avenue area, yesterday announced Harry R. Carroll would head three casualty stations in the community.

Other appointments announced by Grove made William F. Doyle squad leader for the Oyster School casualty station and gave William D. Searle the same job at the John Eaton School.

Air Equipment Sought For D. C. Raid Horns

Anyone with reservoirs or compressors to spare is asked to contribute them to the District (for a consideration) to be used in operating the useless air horns supposed to serve for the air-raid warning system.

Because of priorities, the apparatus to operate the 23 horns under order are not available. Therefore Porter Lumpkins, chief clerk of the District Engineer Department, last night issued an appeal for:

Twenty-two 16x48 A. S. M. E. reservoirs, suitable for 155 pounds pressure, with one concave and one convex head.

Fifteen 38x108-inch reservoirs of the same type.

Fifteen type 3YCB-16 bedplate mounted air compressor outfits.

This equipment may be new or used, Lumpkins says, but must be delivered without priority rating.

Murphy Will Address Manor Park Meeting

Chief Air-Raid Warden Clement Murphy will be the principal speaker tonight at a mass meeting called by the Manor Park civilian defense committee at Calvin Coolidge Senior High School, Fifth and Tuckerman Streets Northwest. Moving pictures of defense activities, including one film in technicolor, will be shown, and a one-act play dealing with activity in a sector post during an air raid will be presented.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Buck Newsom may have lost the distinction of being baseball's highest-paid pitcher, but he has retained his high sense of publicity value. Newsom's self-disgust at losing his opening appearance in a Washington uniform to the Yankees, was overpowered by his keen sense of the right thing to do when newspapermen entered the dressing room after the game.

POVICH

"Hey, fellows, I got a statement to make," said the chastened Buck. "I'll appreciate it if you put it in the paper that I want to thank the Washington fans for the way they received me, even when I was losing. Tell 'em I'm not going to let 'em down. If they stick with me, I'll still win 20 for 'em this season. I'll make 'em proud of me yet."

Newsom sat gazing at a pool of his own perspiration in the Nats' locker room yesterday after the game. "There's five pounds of Newsom on that floor," said Buck. "I just ran it off in the outfield. Been running steady for 55 minutes and I reckon I ran 6 miles. They were saying down South that I wouldn't run, that I was lazy, but what does this look like? I'm not overweight. Two hundred and ten pounds stripped. The weight doesn't bother me. I'm not trying to run it off. I'm trying to get hard. Another week of this and I'll be ready."

The Hartsville Squire, who owns a 13-room house in South Carolina—"you ought to see my den"—will have a good season with the Nats if he follows his habit of success in alternate years. It has been traditional with Newsom that a bad season follows a good one and that a well-pitched game is very apt to follow one of Newsom's stinkeroos.

Buck Likes to Pitch

"He won't go to work until he starts having it tough," says Clark Griffith. "That big galoot gets a sudden attack of pride every now and then and it makes him a better pitcher. He likes to win, but he's so stuck on himself he thinks he doesn't have to keep in shape. Only when he takes the kind of a licking he did the other day does he smarten up. Then he's a whale of a pitcher."

At Detroit last season, they called it just plain laziness when Newsom wasn't winning. When he wasn't pitching, he was doing nothing. Buck always managed to dig up an excuse for not working. His leg bothered him, or his ankle, or his feet. A guy couldn't get around if he was lame, could he? But when it came his turn to pitch, Newsom was willing, even if in a spirit of sacrifice. His hurts suddenly disappeared when it was his day to go out there and pitch.

The fellow loves to pitch. There is no record yet that he ever asked to be taken out of a ball game, even when he was getting lambasted. As long as he was out there, he had a chance to win, and Newsom knows that those victories are his bread and butter. He used to ask Bucky Harris to pitch him out of turn when he was with the Nats in 1935-36-37, as a relief pitcher or otherwise.

The fellow must have the greatest throwing arm in baseball. No other has been abused to the same degree as Newsom's. There have been days when Newsom had little else but his arm, and won. He hasn't had a sore arm in his life and he has averaged pitching more innings in recent years than any man in the league. That arm of his throws overhand, side-arm or most any way. It doesn't seem to be too great a strain. Lately Newsom has been throwing a cross-fire.

DiMaggio Got No Sucker Pitch

Buck has one standard alibi. He never threw anybody a sucker pitch. At least he doesn't admit it. That ball which Joe DiMaggio knocked into the centerfield bleachers the other day for one of the longest home runs ever seen in Griffith Stadium wasn't Newsom's fault, to hear him tell it. "That was one of the best pitches I ever threw. High and a little bit outside. He had no right to hit that kind of a pitch. He was swinging at a bad ball. I'd throw that pitch again, to anybody."

Newsom, however, no longer pretends to have the number of DiMaggio. It was in 1936 when DiMaggio was having his first great year with the Yankees and was terrorizing all the league's pitchers that Newsom broadcast that "I'll stop him. DiMaggio's got a weakness and I know what it is. Watch me the first time we play the Yanks."

We watched Newsom pitch the first time he faced DiMaggio in Yankee Stadium Buck had not exaggerated when he said he knew DiMaggio's weakness. Joe had a weakness for two-baggers. He made three of 'em off Buck that afternoon.

Sportin' Around:

New York, April 16.—Sportin' around:

Frank Leahy has quietly dropped the Rockne system at Notre Dame and will install the T-formation. To forestall the wrath of the Irish alumni, Frank has issued a statement saying that there isn't any real difference, except that he is dropping Rockne's shift, attack, defense, etc., etc., and letting the quarterback take the ball directly from the hands of the center. Leahy changed the positions of several of his players last year, and gave Notre Dame its first unbeaten season since Rockne. This coming season he will move all-America End Bob Dove to guard; Harry Wright from quarterback to guard, and make a Sid Luckman out of Angelo Bertelli. Otherwise, no changes.

CONSIDINE

Mel Ott says that the only difference he's noticed thus far in his career as a manager is that "I carry the game home with me" . . . The pitiless drubbing Joe DiMaggio gave Buck Newsom in Buck's 1942 debut as a Senator reminds us of the first time Buck faced Joe in the big leagues. "I'll run that guy right back to the coast league," Buck said. "He couldn't get a foul off'n me when we were both on the coast." DiMag faced Buck three times that day, and hit three doubles. We asked Buck about it later and he shrugged philosophically, "What can you do about a guy with horseshoes in his pockets?"

Bill Werber Played—for a Price

Beautiful Gloria Callen swims in perhaps her last national amateur championship tomorrow in Detroit. Sir or madam: Irate fan, sore at our recent piece quoting Jimmy Conzelman on the athletic set-up at the Great Lakes Training Station, says he hopes that little thing called the war won't be permitted to interfere with the program.

"Do you realize you've just given away about a third of the year's profits?" Leo Bondy, of the Giants, said with a grin after Larry MacPhail had told reporters that the Dodgers and Giants were going to play twice this year for Army and Navy relief. It is estimated that the two games will raise in the neighborhood of $100,000. It's a wonderful gesture. We hope the other clubs will swing in line.

Bill Werber is being paid $3500 this year not to play with the Reds. Bill was going to retire, but the Reds wanted to use him in a trade. They told him that if he remained active they'd pay him $3500 before trading him—and then gave him his choice of teams! . . . Cleveland has become just about the hottest boxing town in the country. The Bob Pastor-Jimmy Bivins fight there tomorrow night will draw $50,000. Ed Bang, sports editor of the Cleveland News, is now arranging a "Buy a Bomber for MacArthur" card, for next July, which may well draw 100,000 fans at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. Perhaps Louis vs. Pastor on top.

The Cards Tricked Pitcher Pollet

That was swell of the Stevens brothers to adopt our humble suggestion that all ball park refreshments be half-priced for men in uniform . . . How about other ball park concessionaires doing the same? . . . Understand the St. Louis Cardinals, a close-fisted bunch, made Howard Pollet sign for two years before bringing him up from Houston last fall. As a result he'll be working for cigarette money for some time to come . . . Alsab hasn't won a race as a 3-year-old, but his derby stock is actually mounting.

Representative Dick Kleberg, coowner of the Endless King Ranch and of its racing stable, is one of the best pistol and rifle shots in the world. He can plug a spinning half dollar at 40 paces, and, if the "Nassau" is big enough, can shoot any required golf score down to 70.

You hear occasionally of jujitsu being taught to our soldiers and citizens but the first anecdote we've run across concerning this practice comes from the Marine base at Quantico, Va., by way of Maj. Osgood Roberts, of Washington. A jujitsu expert was instructing a class of FBI recruits in the Japanese type of catch-as-catch-can. He picked up a baseball bat, handed it to one of the G-rookies and said, "Here, try to hit me on the head as hard as you can." The young FBI didn't feel much like doing it, but, to humor the instructor, he took hold of the bat and swung—and knocked the instructor cold. Seems the G-Man was too tender-hearted to swing for the instructor's head, so he swung a few feet away from it, and the bloke ducked into the wallop.

Landis Heads Major, Minor Executives

Army and Navy To Be Represented; To Complete Final Plans for Star Games

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—An all-inclusive program for baseball's cooperation with the war effort will be mapped tomorrow at a meeting of Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis with executives of the major and minor leagues and representatives of the Army and Navy.

The conference, for which President William G. Bramham of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues has been hastily summoned from his home at Durham, N. C., resulted from a session today of the major leagues' advisory council, attended by Army and Navy officers, for the purpose of completing plans for the second of next summer's two big all-star games.

It was known that a plan is under consideration for having a team of major league stars play a combination of standout players from the Army and Navy in the game at Cleveland Tuesday night, July 7, 24 hours after the National and American League stars clash in the Polo Grounds at New York.

To Be Taken Up

But instead of going ahead with these arrangements, Landis recessed the meeting until tomorrow when the whole broad question of baseball helping the war will be taken up. Meeting with Landis and Bramham will be President Ford Frick of the National League, President Will Harridge of the American League, President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League, who is a member of the executive committee of the National Association, governing body of all minors, and officers of the Army and Navy.

This group will try to work out a program that will go far beyond everything baseball has done thus far and undoubtedly will consider ways of directly aiding Army and Navy charities on a Nation-wide scale.

Two National League clubs, the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers, already have set aside two of their forthcoming games with each other from which all proceeds will be turned over to the Navy Relief Society and the Army Emergency Relief Fund.

But on a basis of united action by leagues up till now baseball has turned its efforts in three general directions—to the support of its important "equipment fund" which provides thousands of dollars worth of balls, bats, etc., to the Army and

Reds Defeat Bucs, 8-7, on Walk in 12th

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, April 16.—The Cincinnati Reds finally broke out in a victory today, 8-7, but had to go 12 innings to get it on a run forced in by a two-pitcher walk by Pittsburgh with the bases full.

After Gee Walker had tied up the game in the ninth with a homer over the left field wall, Rookie Aldon Wilkie and Max Butcher divided "honors" on four straight pitches to Eddie Joost in the twelfth. All were balls and Frank McCormick, who had singled and been followed on the bases by Mike McCormick and Jimmy Gleeson on walks, scored the easy way.

Six Pirate pitchers gave up 14 hits to the Reds. Joe Beggs, star fireman of Cincinnati's 1940 championship season and third Red hurler of the day, got credit for the victory, while Wilkie was charged not only with the defeat but the fatal pass.

The win gave the Reds one out of the first three-game series of the sanson.

Ival Goodman, on the Cincinnati sick list most of last year, led the slugging with four hits in six times. Rookie Bert Haas contributed two doubles, but also two of the team's three errors.

Williams, Fox, Tabor, DiMaggio Lead Attack Against Pitchers, Caligiuri, McCrabb

By the Associated Press

Boston, April 16.—Every Boston Red Socker scored at least once and all but one of them hit safely today while gaining their third straight victory over the Philadelphia Athletics, 19-4, behind the six-hit pitching of Broadway Charley Wagner.

In bombarding right-handers Fred Caligiuri and Les McCrabb for 21 safeties, the Sockers collected five extra-basers, including homers by Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio. Jim Tabor and Pete Fox each collected four hits, three singles and a two-bagger.

DiMaggio belted his homer against McCabb in the fifth inning, with Skeeter Newsome on base, and Williams' second circuit drive of the new season was off that same pitcher in the seventh, after Johnny Pesky beat out a bunt.

Walks Help Dodgers Beat Giants, 4 to 2

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—Two young pitchers for the New York Giants gave the Brooklyn Dodgers three bases on balls in the ninth inning today and two of them forced in runs for a 4-to-2 Brooklyn victory in the rubber game of the rivals' opening series.

Until this letdown in the last frame the contest had been a deadly serious struggle between two rookie hurlers, Ed Head of the Dodgers and Lefty Dave Koslo of the Giants

Koslo walked two men in the first inning to set up a run for the Dodgers and Head singled another across in the fifth. But Manager Mell Ott kept the Giants in the game by singling home a tally in the first and hitting a homer to tie the score in the seventh.

Then Joe Medwick and Dolph Camilli opened the ninth with singles and Billy Herman walked to fill the bases after one out. Koslo gave another walk to Pinch-hitter Stanley Bordagaray and when Ace Adams came to the mound he also passed Pinchhitter Lew Riggs.

Browns Rout Chisox, 13-3; Sweep Series

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 16.—The St. Louis Browns made it three in a row over Chicago's White Sox today by pounding out 14 hits for 25 bases and a 13-to-3 victory.

Leading the attack that forced Bill Dietrich's departure after six innings and continued against Joe Haynes were Rookie Vern Stephens, who got his second homer in as many days; Harold Clift, with a homer and single, and Don Gutteridge, with a triple, double and single.

Denny Galehouse blanked the Sox after the second inning, in which the Hose scored all their runs.

Estalella's Homer One of Longest in Stadium History; Gomez Is Routed

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats were getting no worse than a draw with the Yankees yesterday but, alas, the rules called for a ninth inning. And so the Yankees won the ball game, stirring up three runs in that ninth against the pitching of Rookie Hardin Cathey who was facing the Yanks for the first time in his young life.

The final score was 8-5, and the specific cause of Cathey's grief was Pinch Hitter George Selkirk who delivered a single down the right-field line that scored two runs and broke up a 5-5 tie. The Nats thus came into ownership of a three-game losing streak.

There were iron-lunged Washington fans in the stands who were not pleased with Manager Bucky Harris' strategy in that ninth inning plate as a pinch hitter for Ed Levy, plate as a pinc hitter for Ed Levy. Joe Gordon, who had singled with one out, was on third, and Bill Dickey, who had hit the rightfield fence with a double, was on second when Selkirk came to bat. Harris called for no intentional pass to Selkirk and a slow-rolling single just inside first base scored two Yankee runs.

A bit later Gerry Priddy tripled to the center field wall, but that third Yankee run of the inning was as superfluous as a second Hitler.

Relieved Jack Wilson

Until that ninth inning young Cathey had been doing a very acceptable job of it after relieving Jack Wilson in the fifth inning. He had held the Yankees scoreless for a three-inning stretch.

Both Wilson and Lefty Gomez, the starting pitchers, had a rocky time of it. The Nats plodded along against Gomez and scored a run in each of the first five innings, but Marvin Breuer held 'em scoreless after the fifth with his curve-ball pitching.

A completely futile gesture was little Bobby Estalella's monster home run clout in the third inning. The squat Cuban delivered one of the prize swats of Griffith Stadium history when he banged a Gomez pitch on a line into the dead center bleachers for a 450-foot homer with the bases empty in the third inning.

The Yankees rapped out a dozen hits against Washington pitching, seven off Wilson in the 4 2-3 innings he lasted, Washington suddenly developed a power attack that embraced four doubles and a homer among their ten hits, but they could never stir up more than a single run in any inning, in contrast to the Yankees' clusters.

Stan Spence set the Nats up in a 1-to-0 lead in the first inning when

Star Right Hander In Little Trouble As Mates Slam 12 Safeties Off Reader

West Virginia University's baseball team was Kloak-ed under seven-hit pitching yesterday and the scrappy forces of George Washington won their second straight game this season, 11-3, on the Ellipse.

Big "Red" Kloak, veteran right-hander of the Colonials, was master of the situation in every inning except the second, and then he was saved by the Mountaineers' over-zealous base running. Along with the scanty safeties allowed by the change-of-pace artist, he struck out seven batsmen and walked only two. He personally accounted for two of the Colonials' 12 blows, driving in as many runs.

A five-run uprising in the seventh inning put on the clincher, but G. W. actually won the game with a three-run burst in the third. At that point they took a 3-1 deficit into hand, converted it into a 4-3 edge.

All With Two Out

Two men were out when Billy Robertson singled to left. West Virginia's Shaffer made one of his three errors on John Koniszewski's grounder, scoring Robertson and Bobby Gilham chased Koniszewski home with another single to left. The third to the same spot a moment later, by Third Baseman Fitzgerald, rushed Gilham across.

G. W. clipped Art Reader for five hits during its big seventh, but two of the runs were the direct result of passed balls by Catcher Rich. The big sock of the inning was Outfielder Hall's triple deep into center with no one on base.

A run which might have hurt the G Streeters, seeking another triumph to add to a 10-9 job over American U., was cut off in the third when West Virginia's Caros Rodriguez, 17-year-old junior, also tripled. The ball was relayed perfectly, Hall to Sokol to Catcher Robertson, to snare Rodriguez as he attempted to stretch it to a homer. The Mountaineers' second run of the inning was scored by Carenbauer on the play, however.

Boudreau's School Answers Baseball Call

Chicago, April 16 (AP).—The meteoric rise of Lou Boudreau, 24-year-old manager of the Cleveland Indians, is having a terrific effect on the baseball team at his old high school, Thornton, of suburban Harvey.

Frank Froschauer, Thornton coach, inserted a small notice in the school paper asking for varsity candidates. Next afternoon 150 would-be Boudreaus were waiting for Froschauer on the school diamond, he said today.

The best West Virginia U. hit yesterday as it bowed to G. W. by an 11-3 count was First Baseman Carlos Rodiguez's triple with a mate on base in the third inning. Rodriguez, however, was tagged out at home by Billy Robertson when he tried to stretch it, Hall and Sokol assisting in the play

Cards Pound Cub Hurlers To Win, 11-6

By International News Service

St. Louis, April 16.—The St. Louis Cardinals beat the Chicago Cubs, 11 to 6, today, scoring four runs in the fourth inning to break a 5-to-5 tie, and adding two more thereafter, including Stan Musial's eighth-inning home run.

Jesse Flores, who relieved Paul Erickson in the third, was the victim of the Card's big inning, and he and Lou Stringer helped the rally along with errors. The first two men singled and Musial laid down a bunt which Flores fielded, but his throw hit Musial and the latter went all the way to third. Musial scored on Terry Moore's single and later advanced on an infield out and scored on Stringer's muff.

The Cubs scored four runs off Ernie White in the second, and in the third he gave way to Bill Lohrman who was credited with the victory. Flores was charged with the loss. Each club committed three errors.

Apache Easily Wins Jamaica Turf Race

Woodward Derby Hope Turns Back Two Others in First Distance Test

By the Associated Press

Jamaica Race Track, Jamaica, N. Y., April 16.—William Woodward's Apache, regarded by many as the East's main reliance for the forthcoming Kentucky Derby, today answered an important question when he essayed a distance for the first time and came through with an easy length and a half triumph in the High Quest purse.

Favorite in the field of three at odds of 2 to 5, the Belair colorbearer covered the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 2-5 without fully extending himself as he led home Mrs. Ed Mulrenan's First Fiddle, which carried 113 pounds and was in receipt of four pounds from the winner.

The Mill River Stable's Fair Call, making his first start since running a close third to Alsab and Bless Me in the Walden Stakes last fall, appeared far from that form today and trailed First Fiddle by 15 lengths. A crowd of 15,335 witnessed the race, which served as a strong Magnet despite the smallness of the field.

Carried Equal Weight

Fair Call carried equal weight with Apache, which recently inaugurated his 3-yeaf-old campaign with an impressive score in the shorter experimental handicap. Apache, in defeating two other Derby nominees this afternoon, doubtlessly could have won by a wider margin had Jimmy Stout elected to push him at any stage of the race. In addition, close observers thought Apache showed loafing tendencies once he got to the front in the stretch.

The favorite was first out of the gate, but Stout eased back going to the first turn. First Fiddle, showing the speed that marked some of his winter efforts in Florida, opened up a lead of a length or more and maintained that advantage until rounding out of the backstretch.

Scoring the first "home run" of the New York season, Don Meade registered his fourth success of the afternoon astride the heavily backed Portable, an entry with Whiscendent, in the sixth contest. The victory was the fifth on the card for favorite backers and the second for Trainer J. J. Bauer, and it gave Meade his sixteenth triumph of the meeting.

Portable was sluggish in the early stages but moved up at each pole. The filly stuck her head in front after turning for home and was a length on top at the finish line to pay $5. Chatlet and Eric Knight followed, three lengths apart.

2 Games With Eagles Mark Grays' Debut

With the Washington Grays and the Newark Eagles boasting six .300 hitters each, their clash in a doubleheader at Griffith Stadium Sunday has been touted as a batting thriller for the opening of the National Negro League play season.

Chief among the distance clouters, of course, is Josh Gibson, Grays' backstop, who hit .436 in 44 games in the Puerto Rican winter league, also banging out 15 homers. In a doubleheader at Griffith Stadium two years ago, he put three homers far up in the bleachers.

The Grays have given Washington a championship team for the past two years, with the Eagles as their chief opposition. "Buck" Leonard, on first for the Grays, will follow Gibson in the batting order, guaranteeing a danger spot for the opposing moundsman.

DeChard-O'Gatty Winner May Meet Baltimore's Blake

Promotoer Joe Turner yesterday started casting about for a fighter to face the winner of his feature eight-round match next Tuesday night at Riverside Stadium between Jimmy DeChard, Washington's budding young heavyweight, and Joe O'Gatty, the Newark iron worker.

Turner is planning another show at the Twenty-sixth and D Street plant a few weeks after Tuesday's presentation, and would like two heavyweights to headline the card.

Al Blake, the husky Baltimore colored battler who sprang a grand surprise by flattening Jabbo Kenner recently at Turner's Arena, may be available. It is also possible that Turner may consider Kenner as a candidate to engage the winner, believing that the gigantic colored lad still has plenty of stuff in him.

Homers by Ross and York Beat Tribe for Tigers, 5 to 4

By the Associated Press

Detroit, April 16 (AP).—Don Ross and Rudy York belted home runs today to give the Detroit Tigers a 5-to-4 victory over the Cleveland Indians and a 2-to-1 edge in the first series between the two clubs that tied for fourth place in the American League last season.

Ross' game-winning smash came in the eighth inning off Relief Pitcher Clint Brown after the Indians twice had come from behind to square the count. In the seventh Jeff Heath, of Cleveland, had squared it with a long homer with the bases unoccupied. York homered for the second time in two days with one on in the fifth.

The veteran Tommy Bridges, starting his thirteenth season, went the distance for Detroit after a shaky start and stranded ten runners while scattering eight hits. Bridges pitched over three errors and only two of the runs were earned.

The Tigers gathered nine hits, all but one off Southpaw Al Milnar who started for the tribe. Joe Heving stopped one Detroit rally and hurled hitless ball until removed for a pinch-hitter.

Michigan U. Hands Terps 7th Beating

13-1 Wolverine Edge Taken Over Four Md. Pitchers; 7 Errors Contribute to Loss

Michigan received able pitching from Bill Cain and slammed Maryland hurlers at will at College Park yesterday to take a tiresome ball game, 13 to ..

It was Maryland's first home game and the seventh without victory.

Bob Smith, Maryland's starting hurler, was pulled out of a hole by a double play in the first inning but the Wolverines started counting in the second and scored in every other session except the eighth. Bill Fulton, Bob Webster and Lloyd Roberts followed Smith on the mound and all took their medicine.

Michigan totaled 18 hits, with Paul White and George Harms hitting for homers and John Erpelding and Bill Cartmill, a couple reserves, tossing in triples.

Smith and Fulton added to their woes with three and two passes, respectively, and the Terp supporting cast did a wobbly job with seven miscues.

Maryland made only five scattered hits, its lone run coming in the fourth when Dan Booth, who had forced Ernie Travis, stole and counted on Jack Brenner's single.

Michigan moves down to Virginia tomorrow and Maryland hopes to have better luck in entertaining West Virginia when either Max Hunt or Jack Wright will pitch.

Pastor Given Edge in Betting Against Bivins

By the United Press

Cleveland, April 16.—Bob Pastor, whose college education isn't enough to keep him from wanting to fight Joe Louis after losing to him twice, was an 11 to 5 favorite tonight to defeat Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland Friday night in their 10-round bout which Pastor believes will lead to a June fight with the heavyweight champion.

The odds making Pastor the heavy favorite over the Cleveland Negro horrified his garrulous pilot, James Joy Johnston.

"They're not right," said Jimmy. "That boy Bivins is much better than what the odds indicate. Why look at the beating he gave that Lesnevich."

"Not as good a beating as Bob did," he added quickly, "but a beating all the same."

Jack Dempsey Clouts Cowboy In Mat Melee

Guest Referee Lieut. Jack Dempsey got peeved, wrestler Cowboy Luttrall got a cut lip, and some 2800 fans were vociferously happy about the whole thing as Promoter Joe Turner's rassle extravaganza debut at Riverside Stadium proved a huge success last night.

Here's how the mild fisticuffing came about; Dempsey was working the feature match between Sandor Szabo and Cowboy Luttrall. Several times he warned Luttrall for uncouth tactics such as biting, strangling and massaging his opponent's complexion with tape. The snaggle-toothed Texan took this admonition in a churlish manner, and even made so bold as to raise a clenched paw in the direction of former world's heavyweight boxing champ. Finally, the former champ pulled Luttrall loose from a strangle hold and the cowboy backed into a corner and swung on Dempsey. Then Dempsey swung. There was a light flurry of fists, and a thin trickle of blood seeped out of the wrestler's mouth.

While he was pondering over this, Szabo proved himself an opportunist by tossing Luttrall and clamping with a body press to win the bout. It took just 23 minutes for all this drama to unravel.

Later, in the dressing room, Dempsey told Joe Turner that he would not work another match involving Luttrall unless he was permitted to carry a blackjack.

Luttrall, meanwhile, was parading around fondly shaking one of his several teeth—the loose one—and claiming in a blatant voice that he had not only been robbed, but assaulted as well. At a late hour last night no arrests had been made.

Prelims Best

Despite this impressive bit of business, the preliminary matches stole the show.

The two-man team of Maurice La Chappelle and Ace Freemen bested a hilarious combination of Hank Kulkovich and Jim Austeri in the semifinal, taking two falls out of three. The winners lost the first fall in 13 minutes when Freeman was eliminated by Kulkovich's body press. Then Kulkovich was the victim of the second and third falls in 8 and 7 minutes, respectively. Freeman downed Kulky with a body press in the second canto after La Chappelle had used a well-placed kick on Hank. La Chappelle pinned Kulkovich with a press for the decisive fall.

Worst sufferer of this match was Referee Casey Berger, who was jumped by the two losers early in the match and forced to battle for his very existence. The portly Berger conducted a valiant and effective defense, but his dignity was ruffled no end.

Crowd Pleased

Joe Cox and Pat Fraley pleased the hysterical crowd by working to a rough draw, which saw both boys frequently sailing out of the ring.

Referee Wally Karbo realized a lifetime ambition when he disqualified Rudy Dusek after 14 minutes of his match with Tommy O'Toole, and awarded the bout to the Irishman. This procedure gave Karbo a perfect score of having disqualified all the Dusek clan at one time or another, and he called the match after Rudy had tossed him around. Neither wrestler was ever on the mat during this battle.

Brother Emil Dusek took the opener when Milo Steinborn gave up on an armlock after 24 minutes. The going was rough all the way with Dusek billed as the villain.

Eastern and Anacostia Meet; Western Debuts

Wilson Host to Raiders Today; Friendly Feud to Be Renewed at Anacostia Field

Defending champion Western makes its bow in the 1942 interhigh baseball series today, meeting Woodrow Wilson on the latter's field at 4 p. m., but the feature of a full scholastic sports card will be the Eastern nine's invasion of Anacostia in a second public school clash.

Because their respective coaches—"Chief" Guyon and Rolland Lund—enjoy baiting one another the two teams have had an intensive rivalry built up for them, and they love it. Each of their meetings since Anacostia joined the school system has been accompanied by the fanciest baseball each is capable of.

So far Eastern has had the best of the series, finishing second in the last three series while the Indians were far out. This year, however, both schools boast strong clubs with Anacostia perhaps a mite the stronger.

In John Penn, the stocky veteran who will probably start today, Anacostia figures it has the best hurler in the series. At any rate he is a smart pitcher, mixing curves with a lot of speed. His opponent on the mound will be Garland Curles, brother of Eastern's 1941 star, and himself a capable performer.

The game will open this year's league action for both teams, just as the Western-Wilson battle will see both contenders in their initial effort. Little is known about the last two foes, except that the Raiders are well stocked with seasoned material while Wilson has been forced to rebuild almost completely.

Four other schoolboy baseball games are on today's program, along with a pair of track meets and a tennis meeting of Roosevelt and Episcopal at Alexandria.

Jersey City Wins as Season Play Begins

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—The International League, baseball's oldest minor circuit, opened its fifty-ninth season today with a total of 77,222 fans attending the four games, two of which went extra innings.

At Jersey City, where the Little Giants nosed out the Montreal Royals, 3-2, in a 10-inning thriller, the ticket sale was 55,218, largest of the year in any league.

The Jersey City figure fell below last year's inaugural, which drew 61,164 paid admissions although the park seats only two-thirds that number.

It was the first time in six years that a Jersey City opener failed to establish a new minor league attendance record.

Rochester, Syracuse and Buffalo came out on top in the league's other opening games, each played before less than 8000 fans, but the defending champion Newark Bears went down to defeat.

A tenth-inning single by Bob Boken scored Ed Kobesky from third base with two men out and gave Buffalo a 5-4 triumph over the Bears at Newark.

At Baltimore, a triple play by the Oriole infield failed to keep the Rochester Red Wings from winning, 12-6. Ira Hutchinson went the distance for the victors, although he was nicked for a dozen hits.

At Syracuse, the chiefs squeezed out a 5-4 decision over the Toronto Maple Leafs, behind the seven-hit pitching of Charles (Red) Barrett. Bobby Adams paced the winners with a double and two singles.

Austin Knickerbocker's ninth-inning homer tied the Jersey City game for the Little Giants, who went on to win in the tenth when Joe Orengo walked, stole second and scored on a single by Buster Maynard.

Maple Leafs Beat Detroit, Even Series

By the Associated Press

Detroit, April 16.—The rebounding Toronto Maple Leafs squared the Stanley Cup hockey series at three games by crushing the Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 0, before 13,153 spectators tonight for their third successive victory. The deciding game will be played Saturday at Toronto.

Toronto took the lead on a sneak shot 14 seconds after the second period opened when young Don Metz beat Mowers from close-in after Sid Abel, of Detroit, had slipped behind the cage and lost possession of the puck.

Toronto had the upper hand most of the way and seemed very definitely to be wearing down the Red Wings, but there was no further scoring and the period ended with the Leafs in front, 1 to 0. Again there were no penalties, particularly unusual for this roughhouse series.

With the one goal looking bigger every minute as the third period opened, the Leafs operated with a note of caution but near the halfway mark began an offensive flurry designed to clinch the game. At 13:32 Toronto made it 2 to 0 when Bob Goldham skated in unmolested from center ice and beat Mowers. Just 32 seconds later Billy Taylor scored to give the Leafs a 3 to 0 margin. The Leafs held on and that's the way it ended.

Jockey Haas, Slated to Ride Requested, Suspended at 'Graw'

Rider Is Set Down Rest Of Meeting

Haas Charged With Interference While Up On Handy Tom; Was To Ride in Stake

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., April 16.—Jockey Leon (Buddy) Haas, scheduled to ride Ben Whitaker's Requested in the $15,000 added Chesapeake Stakes here Saturday, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting by the stewards today. Haas was charged with interfering with Tamil on the backstretch in the third race. Mrs. A. B. Letellier's Handy Tom, ridden by Haas, won this event in the role of a $3.80 favorite.

Although Handy Tom is one of the horses posted as having been "nerved" under the new Maryland rule requiring the listing of such thoroughbreds, the 4-year-old son of Sazerac was claimed out of the race by O. S. Jennings for $3,000.

The Elkton Purse, featuring the program, produced a merry battle in which E. K. Bryson's Joe Ray won by a neck. Second money in this field of five went to Don Diveto, owned by Fred Turner, jr. The beaten-off third horse was J. B. Belk's Sir Cousellor. The crowd of 7500 made Sir Counsellor the favorite, probably as a result of remembering that Belk's Blustering won yesterday's feature at an $87 mutuel. Joe Ray paid $7 and ran the 6 furlongs in 1:13 1-5.

Year's First Start

It was the first 1942 start for Joe Ray who gathered more than $10,000 in purse money last year and listed among his achievements victories in the Kindergarten Stakes at Bowie and the Pimlico Nursery. He was capably handled by Apprentice Jockey Eddie Campbell.

Joe Ray had no time to loaf during the sprint. Sir Counsellor went to the front when the break came but Campbell sent Joe Ray along with the pacemaker. Approaching the stretch, Campbell shook up the Bryson 3-year-old and he took command. Then Don Diveto, who had been saving ground came out under a drive from Jockey Porter Roberts. Campbell shook up the Bryson 3-year-old and he took command. Then Don Diveto, who had been saving ground came out under a drive from Jockey Porter Roberts. Campbell was forced to keep Joe Ray to pressure and the son of Infinite held on gamely.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FREE DOUBLE, $8.80, $4.60, $3.80; ISLE DE PINE, $4.30, $3.30; FLYING REIGH, $3.00.
FREE DOUBLE took command in opening furlong, drew out and was not threatened at any stage. ISLE DE PINE lacked early speed, improved position between horses and closed gamely. FLYING REIGH was well placed from start, moved up menacingly in midstretch and then weakened. WHEAT had a rough trip and can do better.

Daily Double—LA REIGH and FREE DOUBLE Paid $47.80.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 3:30. Off at 3:33. Winner, Mrs. A. B. Letellier's ch. c. Selections at Havre de Grace

Dear Al:

Training hours yesterday morning brought a quartet of strong 3-year-olds to the track for trials in preparation for Saturday's $15,000 added Chesapeake Stakes. Here's the clocker's report on the mile works: Alsab, 1:41; Bright Willie, 1:41 1-5; Colchis, 1:41 4-5; Baby Dumpling, 1:42. Alsab has a cut on his right foreleg, but it did not hinder him. The 1941 juvenile champ received the slight injury in the Chesapeake Trial last Monday. Bright Willie appeared to have recovered from cuts on his legs, souvenirs of the same race. Jockey George Woolf, who has three handicaps to his credit since the Maryland season opened, may ride Colchis in the Chesapeake. He prefers that mount to the one of W. L. Brann's Pictor in the $10,000 added Excelsior Handicap at Jamaica the same day. Trainer Ed Christmas, who has first call on Woolf, will grant the rider's request if he can sign Maurice Peters to pilot Pictor. The winner of the Southern Maryland Handicap was shipped to New York yesterday. Jockey Alfred Robertson will make his 1942 saddle debut in Maryland on Saturday. He pilots Bright Willie in the big race. I'm told the stewards gave the jockeys a lecture the other morning and the subject was rough riding. The boys were warned that they must respect the rights of their fellow riders. Mrs. R. Feinberg purchased Free Trader from the Christiana Stables and the 3-year-old ran in the new colors yesterday. J. M. Black is taking a string of horses to Charles Town for the meeting opening May 11. Here's some horses to watch that I have scribbled on the pressbox wall: Little Wizard, Star Charter, Steamer, Ship Signal and Hindu Spy. Jockey Joe Dattilo is going to Narraganset Park to ride. Friend Eddie Smith is back in saddle circulation and should be riding winners soon. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—MARVAL gets in with a feather assignment and seems the best suited of the maidens gathered for this distance event. UNITED FORCE tired after setting the pace last out and should improve. TRIPOD will like the route.

Second race—QUESTION BOX from the Bomar Stable may be the right one in this juvenile maiden field. QUICK BUBBLE has worked well. LISSOM is a first-time starter and reported to have speed.

Third race—REHEARSAL gets my call in this test for fillies and mares. She totes top weight but is fit and ready for the best. MISS BRIDEAUX gets in light and should take the place from PANDONNA.

Fourth race — The Christiana Stable's entry of SOBRIQUET and HIGH COMMAND, with the accent on the first named, should account for first money in this test. ABRASION always likes this track. PETE, JR., to fill out the cash bracket.

Fifth race—RARE breaks off the rail and has that excellent second at Bowie as a recommendation. CALATAN begins to figure with this kind. QUESTION MAN to account for the show end.

Sixth race—MEMORY BOOK'S last was a good one and the veteran is likely to turn back this field. NILON was a winner last out and will be a threat. DINGMANS was never better.

Seventh race—GENTLE SAVAGE was a winner at Bowie and gets the vote in this field. WHO REIGH did about everything asked at the other track and will be close. GUERRILLA'S last was encouraging.

Eighth race—NAVY gets opposition that suits his purposes in the day's finale and I see no reason for mistakes. DEVALUE is good now and will be in the first flight. The Bedwell entry of GINOCA and RANGER II belongs in the money circle.

Best bet—Gentle Savage.

Lombardi's Single in 10th Beats Phils, 2-1

By International News Service

Philadelphia, April 16.—A single to center field by big Ernie Lombardi in the tenth inning broke up a tight pitching battle and gave the Boston Braves a 2-to-1 win over the Phillies in the final of a three-game series here today.

Lombardi's drive scored Manny Fernandez and returned Tom Earley the winner over Tommy Hughes in a well-pitched ball game. Lombardi's single in the second inning put the Braves in front, 1-0, and they made but one other hit till the tenth.

The Phils tied the score with two down in the ninth when Bragan doubled to center and Warren singled.

Red Sox Sell Hash To Minneapolis Club

Boston, April 16 (AP).—The Red Sox announced today the outright sale of Herb Hash, right-handed pitcher, to the Minneapolis club, from which he was obtained at the close of the 1939 season. In 1939, he won 22 games for the Millers. In 1940, he won seven and lost seven. Last year he was optioned out to Louisville, but became ill in mid-season and since had undergone a back operation.

Capital Store Sales Off 4% During Week

Due to earlier Easter season this year, Washington department store sales in the week ended April 11 showed a 4 per cent drop when compared with the corresponding week last year. The local volume during the week was 25 per cent less than in the previous week which was the climax of the holiday-buying rush.

However, the store sales here in the four-week period ended April 11 were 27 per cent heavier than in the like 1941 period, according to the weekly review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond.

The sales recession here during the week was much less than that in other sections of the Fifth Federal Reserve District. Baltimore showed a 23 per cent drop while the district as a whole averaged 13 per cent less for the week.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

13th Anniversary Marked

Today will mark the thirteenth anniversary of the establishment of Prudential Building Association. The latest statement of conditions released last night disclosed resources of $4,400,000 with a surplus and reserve account in excess of $4,400,000.

Although comparatively young in years, the Prudential pioneered in the development of the suburban district and was the second association in the city to become a member of the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, an agency of the Government which insures all share accounts up to $5000.

Most of the officers and directors have been with the association since its inception. Luther C. Steward has served continuously as president, with Curtis Walker and John B. Colpoys, vice presidents. Elmer J. Carlson is secretary-treasurer; C. H. Boyse, assistant secretary-treasurer, and Harvey L. Cobb, attorney.

Directors include T. Howard Duckett, Thomas E. Hampton, Thomas D. Lewis, F. Eliot Middleton, William P. Ames and the officers.

Agency Marks 25th Year

The Standard Accident Insurance Co., celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its agency here with a dinner last night at the Mayflower Hotel. The agency was organized by the late Edward S. Brashears.

Hal A. White, of Detroit, superintendent of the agency department, presided and presented bronze plaques to O. L. Kenney, Dr. Daniel G. Davis, Max Collberg and Edith F. Gottwals. Mrs. Brashears received the plaque awarded to her husband, whose death occurred last January.

$11,230,000 Notes Sold

A $11,230,000 issue of Washington Housing Authority temporary loan notes has been sold to New York City banks. The Federal Public Housing Authority announced yesterday that a group headed by Chemical Bank & Trust Co. purchased $10,230,000 worth and the United States Trust Co. bought one million dollars' worth.

The interest rate on the larger purchase will be 0.63 per cent and on the smaller purchase will be 0.625 per cent. Both issues will mature on December 4, 1942.

Funds obtained from the sale of these notes will be used by the local housing authority to repay the FPHA for money already advanced on loan contracts together with accrued interest and the balance will be used for construction costs.

N. A. S. D. Offices Moved

The office of District No. 11 of the National Association of Securities Dealers has been moved from Washington to Baltimore. Martin J. Bayly is field secretary located there. This district is composed of Maryland, District of Columbia, North Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

Howard E. Demuth, of Mackubin, Legg & Co., Baltimore, is chairman of District No. 11.

National headquarters of the association were moved this week from Washington to Philadelphia. This action was decided upon by the board of governors because of the growing needs of the Government for office space in Washington. The selection of Philadelphia was due largely to the fact the Securities and Exchange Commission, with which N. A. S. D. maintains close contact, has moved to the Quaker City.

Building Permits Drop

Washington maintained sixth place in building permits during the first quarter this year although local volume showed a sharp drop as compared with the same period last year.

A Dun & Bradstreet review showed that local permits in the first three months totaled $7,097,718, as compared with $11,759,245 in the same period last year.

Only eight out of the leading 20 cities bettered the volume of building permits during the first quarter as compared with a year ago. Los Angeles continued to lead New York and the rest of the country. Individual comparisons follow:

22% Decline Reported Here In Home Loans

Home financing in the District of Columbia during February amounted to $4,205,000 with a total of 901 mortgages being recorded, Federal Home Loan Bank Administration economists reported yesterday.

These figures compare with mortgage recordings amounting to $5,120,000 in January and $4,267,000 in February a year ago, or a drop of 22 per cent in dollar volume.

With savings and loan associations leading in number and amount, mortgages recorded in the District of Columbia in February were as follows:

	No.	Amount.
Savings and Ln. Assns.	325	$1,741,000
Insurance Companies	43	321,000
Banks and Trust Cos.	47	350,000
Individuals	294	810,000
Others	192	983,000

The bank administration reported that the figures for February reflect not only the normal decline in lending during the January-February period, but the sharp curtailment in new construction due to the war. At the same time it released figures showing the high volume of home financing by savings and loan associations in 1941 as compared with the previous year.

During 1941 savings and loan associations in the District of Columbia recorded mortgages totaling $34,414,000, as compared with $28,689,000 for 1940. These associations led all other types of financial institutions, with 45.4 per cent of the dollar amount of all home mortgage recorded in the District of Columbia last year. Nationally, savings and loan associations recorded 31.5 per cent of all non-farm mortgages in 1941.

Permit for Oil Pipe Line To Georgia Is Refused

Atlanta, April 16 (AP). — The regional office of the War Production Board announced today that Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, refused to certify a proposed crude oil pipe line from Wichita County, Tex., to Savannah, Ga., as necessary for national defense.

The Trans-American Pipe Line Corporation sought to obtain permission to build the pipe line.

Eastman's action was based on a report by a three-member board which held a public hearing February 19, and on a statement by the War Department which said that because of its location the line would be of little value to the war program.

Week's Clearings Gain 6.1% in 24 Cities

New York, April 16 (AP).—Bank clearings in 24 leading cities during the last week aggregated $6,416,456,000, a rise of 6.1 per cent from the previous week and 12.3 per cent ahead of the comparable week in 1941, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

The expansion occurred both in New York City, where most of the transactions were reported, and in the rest of the group.

Brownhoist Sales Double in Year

Bay City, Mich., April 16 (AP).—Sales of the Industrial Brownhoist Corporation set an all-time high of $10,642,406.47 for 1941, Hoyt E. Hayes, president and treasurer, reported today. This figure was more than twice the 1940 sales of $5,260,011.54 and nearly three times the 1939 figure of $3,860,775.83.

Net profit, after allowances for necessary reserves, bond interest, income and excess profit taxes, was $702,877.89 as compared to $164,367.61 in 1940.

Awards Up 124%

New York, April 16 (AP).—Engineering construction awards in the week ended today amounted to $148,577,000, an increase of 124 per cent over $66,308,000 in the comparable 1941 week but 40 per cent below $246,344,000 in the preceding week. Engineering News-Record reported today.

New York Cotton

New York, April 16 (AP).—Cotton futures moved upward today to close 75 to 90 cents a bale higher on what traders said was primarily a lack of selling pressure.

Agitation for legislation which would cause an upward revision in parity prices and potential demand necessary to fill Government requirements were stimulating influences.

Bank Idle Cash Off 280 Million On U. S. Loans

By the Associated Press

Federal borrowing took another big chunk out of idle bank funds last week.

The Federal Reserve Board said that excess reserves of banks declined $280,000,000 to a total of $2,890,000,000 in the week ended April 15. This total was the lowest in recent years.

The decline was due to the sale by the Treasury of $1,500,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness.

The board's statement said:

"During the week ended April 15 member bank reserve balances decreased 213 million dollars. Reductions in member bank reserves arose from increases of 14 million dollars in money in circulation, 11 million dollars in Treasury deposits with Federal Reserve banks and 135 million dollars in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts offset in part by increases of 31 million dollars in reserve bank credit and three million in gold stock and a decrease of 11 million dollars in Treasury cash. Excess reserves of member banks on April 15 were estimated to be approximately $2,890,000,000, a decrease of 280 million dollars for the week.

"The principal change in holdings of bills and securities was the addition of ten million dollars of United States Treasury bills to holdings of United States Government securities."

Changes in member bank reserve balances and related items during the week and the year ended April 15, 1942, were reported as follows, in millions of dollars:

	Apr. 15, 1942	Apr. 8, 1942	Apr. 16, 1941

Late Earnings Statements

Johns-Manville Corporation, building material manufacturers, reported for the first quarter of 1942 consolidated net earnings, after all charges, including Federal income and excess profits taxes, amounted to $896,335, equal to 77 cents a common share. This compared with $1,561,588, or $1.73 a share, in the initial period of 1941. Net sales in the quarter increased 31 per cent to $21,883,773 against $16,713,047 last year. Earnings before income and excess profits taxes amounted to $3,883,758, an increase of $683,278 over 1941. Provision for income and excess profits taxes totaled $3,187,423, a boost of 94 per cent over a tax bill of $1,638,892 a year ago.

Continental Baking Co. and subsidiaries reported for 13 weeks ended March 28 net profit of $712,140, equal to 20 cents a share on the common after providing for dividends on 249,977 shares of 8 per cent preferred. In the like period last year net profit of $771,181 was equal to $1.92 a share on 400,900 shares of 8 per cent preferred then outstanding.

Botany Worsted Mills of Passaic, N. J., showed 1941 net income of $1,946,580 before a special contingency provision of $500,000, compared with $527,481 for 1940.

Otis Steel Co.'s first quarter net profit was $240,015 against $416,621 the same 1941 period. President E. J. Kulas reported. Stockholders will vote April 24 on a proposal to sell the concern to Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation.

Installment Credit Shows Varied Trend

By the Associated Press

The Census Bureau reports divergent trends in the volume of installment credit used to finance different consumer items during February.

Figures from finance companies indicated a 3 per cent increase in the amount of credit outstanding for other than automobiles, which now are rationed. Financing of furniture dropped 12 per cent from the January level, and loans for home repairs fell 8 per cent. Increases included 8 per cent on radios, 47 per cent on refrigerators, 15 per cent on appliances and 44 per cent on other kinds of merchandise.

Niagara Hudson Salaries Assailed

New York, April 16 (AP).—A group of Niagara Hudson Power Corporation stockholders filed a plea at the annual meeting for a reduction in managerial salaries and protested against the present management's continuation in office.

Dr. Raphael Yood, a stockholder, charged operating expenses were too high. He also stated the $45,000-a-year annual salary paid Lloyd L. Carlisle as board chairman was "for a part time job" since he also gets $107,000 from Consolidated Edison as chairman of that board.

In reply Carlisle said the management was working not on a 40-hour week but a seven-day, 24-hour-a-day week. A reduction in managerial salaries, he said, would be the worst thing in his judgment that could happen.

Gen. Aniline Board Cut to 4 Members

New York, April 16 (AP).—Stockholders of General Aniline & Film Corporation have amended the by-laws to provide for a board of directors of four members.

Robert E. McConnell, A. E. Marshall, George M. Moffett and Robert E. Wilson, who were appointed managers of the company by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau when the Government took over the company, were elected directors.

General List Drifts in Narrow Orbit; Several Key Industrials Drop Sharply

New York, April 16.—Stocks today repeated Wednesday's indecisive action but because of heaviness in handful of key industrials prices on average dipped to the lowest level for about nine years.

Accounting for this result were a drop of 2⅝ points in J. I. Case and declines of a point or so in Westinghouse and Johns-Manville.

The brighter side of the market shed no great bullish light, but such leaders as Chrysler, Union Carbide and Woolworth managed modest final gains. A few preferred issues pushed up a point or so.

In the absence of any favorable news the speculative panorama continued drab, reflecting recent changes in the Vichy government and some increase in apprehension over taxes predominating.

At its closing level of 33.3, down .1 of a point, the Associated Press 60-stock composite rested at its lowest point since April 28, 1933.

The trading pace lagged all day, transactions totaling 262,720 compared with 347,630 the previous session.

A case of cause and effect in the matter of news was the fall in Johns-Manville. The company reported its March quarter earnings were equal to 77 cents a share against $1.7- for the same quarter last year. Provision for Federal taxes in line with the latest Treasury proposals partly explained the shrinkage in profits.

Among stocks notably lacking in rising power were American Telephone, Caterpillar, Air Reduction, International Nickel and most of the steels. Westinghouse, Case and Eastman Kodak reached new bottoms.

Bonds were narrowly irregular with speculative rails in best demand. Commodities also were uneven. Chicago wheat ended ½ to ¾ of a cent a bushel lower and corn was ⅛ up to as much off. Hogs were quoted 25 to 50 cents a hundredweight lower. Cotton gained 75 to 90 cents a bale.

Phoenix Securities, Creole Petroleum, Glen Alden Coal and Mesabi Iron registered small gains in a mixed curb. Lower were Aluminum, Ltd., Gulf Oil, International Petroleum and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. Dealings here were around 49,000 shares in contrast with 59,000 the day before.

Nat. Dairy Head Takes 28% Cut In Annual Pay

New York, April 16 (AP).—Thomas I. McInnerney, chairman of the National Dairy Products Corporation, told stockholders at the annual meeting today that he had reduced his $150,000 annual salary by 28 per cent because he had not been required to devote so much of his time to its affairs.

Sales are running ahead of last year, the chairman said, adding that the rubber shortage had created quite a problem for the 7000 trucks the company uses in its business.

McInnerney said the fluid milk situation was not satisfactory, adding that Sheffield Farms Co., the subsidiary that handles fluid milk, has made no money for two years.

G. E. Payroll at New Top

Schenectady, N. Y., April 16 (AP).—General Electric's production for World War II already exceeds that of the entire first war and "every practicable means is being employed to increase production still further," President Charles E. Wilson reported today.

"This will not be difficult if every employe can be made to see his personal stake in the war," Wilson said in a statement.

The president, reporting the largest number of employes in the company's history, asserted a majority work more than 40 hours a week, some 60 hours, with an average for the company's largest plant 47.7 hours per worker.

April Egg Prices At 22-Year High

Chicago, April 16 (AP).—Eggs sold at the highest April levels in 22 years in wholesale trade today. Buying was activated by confidence that the Government would absorb a large percentage of total production for lend-lease export purposes.

Strength in the cash market was reflected in futures trading on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, where some contracts were at peaks since 1930.

Eggs grading extra firsts sold in car lots at 30¾ cents a dozen wholesale, up ¼ cent, compared with 22¼ cents on the same day last year. Extra firsts in cars were 30¼ cents against 21¾ a year ago, current receipts 29 against 20½ and storage packed extras 32¾ against 23.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 16 (AP).—Wheat prices slipped back to around the 4½-months' lows today, after an early attempt to continue the rally which got under way yesterday.

Gains of about ½ cent a bushel were converted into corresponding losses as the market slumped a cent from early highs after midsession. Closing figures were within ⅛ cent of the lows established yesterday and Tuesday, lowest posted here since December 1.

Traders blamed the relapse on a let-up in buying to cover previous short sales, which had given the market a firm tone from the opening. Lagging flour demand, favorable weather conditions for crop progress, the impending scarcity of storage space and political developments in France were regarded as bearish factors. Food shipments to France have been suspended.

Wheat closed ½-¾ cent lower than yesterday; May, $1.20½@1.20⅝; July, $1.22⅛@$1.22⅜. Corn, ⅛ off to ⅜ up; May, 86; July, 88⅜. Oats ¼-½ off. Soybeans ⅝-¾ lower. Rye ¼-½ down, and lard unchanged at ceilings.

Further Increases Posted for Cargo War Risk Rates

New York, April 16 (AP).—Marine underwriters made further increases in cargo war risk insurance rates today for most trade routes, reducing charges in two limited areas.

The increases included a rise to $7.50 per $100 from $6 on shipments between the Americas and Portugal, Spain Atlantic, Gibraltar, Tangier, Madeira, Azores, Canary and Cape Verde Islands and West Africa west of Capetown.

United States coastwise voyages will come under a $6 per $100 rate instead of the old $5 and the new rate was applied also to shipments between United States Atlantic ports and the West Indies, East coast of Central America, Mexico and the North coast of South America.

Any cargo moving to South American Atlantic destinations south of Paramaribo from the United States, Central America, Mexico, West Indies or the North coast of South America will come under a $7.50 rate, an increase of $2 per $100.

The reductions were to 50 cents per $100 from 75 cents on United States Gulf coastwise voyages, and to 75 cents from $1.50 on Hawaiian interisland shipments.

Associated Gas to Sell Unit for $7,000,000

New York, April 16 (AP).—Trustees of the Associated Gas & Electric Corporation announced today they had reached initial agreements for sale of the Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Co. for a base price of seven million dollars.

The property, which has annual gross revenues of around two and a half million dollars, is a subsidiary of the Associated Electric Co., an intermediate holding company in the Associated system, and is the largest Eastern property in the group.

The transaction is a complicated one, involving sale of Associated's control to the Tennessee Valley Authority, which in turn will sell to five Kentucky cities various parts of the setup, retaining some of the generating facilities.

The Rural Electrification Administration also is involved, along with another utility company, in the deal.

Rail Revenues Surge 27.4% During March

By the Associated Press

Estimated operating revenues of 88 Class I railroads, representing 82.7 per cent of total operating revenues, increased 27.4 per cent in March, compared with March, 1941, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

The 88 reporting railroads had estimated operating revenues of $438,551,054, compared with $344,127,773 in March last year.

Embargo Is Revealed

Also the association announced that railroads had put into effect yesterday an embargo system designed to prevent freight from accumulating at the Nation's ports.

In announcing the embargo, the association said commercial freight for export would be moved to Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific ports only after a permit had been obtained showing that ship space is available.

The embargo does not apply to Army, Navy or lend-lease freight. Likewise it does not affect freight shipments to ports other than for export.

For several months a permit system has been in operation for commercial freight to various Pacific ports and also to New Orleans and certain other ports.

Permit Is Required

The new embargo order supersedes all previous dealing with export freight, and now includes all ports.

Before the railroads will accept commercial freight for shipment, a permit must be obtained from George C. Randall, manager of port traffic, 30 Vesey Street, New York, or his designated representatives in New Orleans, Atlanta, Houston, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Seattle. The permit will be issued when a shipper can show that a definite steamship booking has been obtained.

The association also reported that 814,233 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ended last Saturday. This was a decrease of 14,657 cars, or 1.8 per cent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 134,425 cars, or 19.8 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 195,128 cars, or 31.5 per cent, compared with 1940.

Md. Winter Wheat Lowest Since 1932

By the Associated Press

The Maryland crop reporting service predicted yesterday the winter wheat yield for 1942 would be the smallest since 1932.

On the basis of April 1 reports, the service placed the Maryland crop this year at 5,976,000 bushels. The 1932 crop was estimated at 5,306,020 bushels.

Dry weather last fall retarded early growth, the service reported, but added recent wet weather had helped the crop "considerably."

The service estimated farm stocks of Maryland wheat on April 1 at 471,200 bushels compared with 552,000 bushels a year ago and 896,000 as the average for the years from 1930 to 1939.

WPB Favors Vacations for War Workers

By the Associated Press

War Production Chief Donald Nelson declared yesterday that the Government officially favored vacations for warworkers but that industry must "show its ingenuity in securing the vacation benefits without paying a counterbalancing cost in productive hours lost."

Responding to numerous inquiries from labor and industry, Nelson said the War Production Board believed that "some rest period" after the extensive overtime and added emotional strain of the war effort would provide doubly effective in restoring workers' energies and determination.

He suggested that production slowdowns be avoided by doing work ahead, by additional overtime on the part of employes not on vacation, by a special program on training substitutes for workers scheduled to take vacations, or "by spreading vacations over the whole year in those sections where this is possible and spreading them evenly over the full May-though-September period in those sections where the greatest vacation benefits are secured in summer."

"Under no circumstances can the desire or need for vacations be permitted to excuse any shutdown of any department of any war production plant," he asserted.

"I am depending upon American industry to embrace the vacation opportunity and solve its accompanying problem in a way that will not let our current ouput suffer and yet will fortify our working force for the still greater accomplishments the President's program demands."

Nelson said experience here and abroad indicated that workers, "even when stimulated by the urgency of the Allied war situation, cannot work long hours and maintain peak output indefinitely."

Humble Barrel Stages Comeback

New York, April 16 (AP).—After being kicked around for years because American manufacturers and consumers like to see everything packed in fancy containers, the humble wooden barrel, like old Dobbin, is on the comeback trail.

Every other sort of packaging material has been affected one way or another by war restrictions except the wooden barrel, it was brought out at a session of the packaging division of the American Management Association.

There is plenty of plant capacity available to produce all kinds of barrels, Leonard R. Steidel, manager of a Little Rock, Ark., firm said, adding that the unskilled labor required in their manufacture would not conflict with war plant demands.

Curb on Resin Hits Paints And Novelties

By the Associated Press

The Government prohibited the use of natural resins yesterday in 11 common uses, including interior house paints, barn paint and the finish on playing cards and pencils, and cut by 50 per cent their use in outside house paint and nearly all other uses.

There are no known substitutes for the slick finish on playing cards and pencils, but asphaltic and pitch bases may serve in place of natural resins for most other uses.

The restrictions are on manufacture for the named uses, and do not affect the sale of paints or varnishes already produced. They are effective at once.

The order by the War Production Board was the result of booming military demands for synthetic resins for plastics and paints, coupled with interruption of imports of natural resins. The latter are sap from fossilized trees found only in New Zealand, the Far East and Africa.

The prohibited uses of natural resins are: Barn paint, farm equipment finishes, floor finishes, freight car paints, interior house paints, porch and deck paints, pencil finishes, playing card finishes, road marking paints, spirit label varnishes, and toy and novelty finishes.

Consumption equal to 50 per cent of use in the same quarter of 1941 is permitted for other purposes.

G. W. Golfers Meet G. U. Today

Local Boys Oppose as Captains

Sharkey, of Hoyas, Plays Geo. Vass, Jr.; Match Is Scheduled For Kenwood Club

Two local boys will be opposing captains as Georgetown and George Washington University golf teams meet today at Kenwood in the first match of the intra-city series. The Hoyas, easy 6-0 victors over Catholic U. on Tuesday, will be heavy favorites.

Buddy Sharkey, Georgetown's number one player who is unbeaten in three matches will meet George O. Vass, jr., a low handicapped member of the host club, in the feature match of the day.

Charles Stockell, Scott Gudmundson and Milton Rein will complete the G. W. quartet. The Colonials played a match with Western Maryland last week, which was a complete surprise to everyone but the players, and lost, 5-1, with Gudmundson, the football player, scoring the only point.

Georgetown lost to North Carolina and Duke on a Southern trip, but have improved under steady practice since that time. Georgetown won the only match between the teams last year, 9-0.

Opposing coaches will be George Diffenbaugh, host pro, for the Colonials and Tony Sylvester, Bannockburn pro, for Georgetown.

Bethesda's leading team in the Metropolitan section of the Schoolboy Golf League will meet an unbeaten foe again today in its old rival, Blair High, at Indian Spring Club, in the feature match.

Roosevelt's public high leaders figure to make it four straight victories in the outstanding Dawes Cup match at Kenwood against Central.

AAU Approves Service-Pro Sports Action

New York, April 16 (AP).—Amateur athletes in the Nation's armed forces were given the approval of the A. A. U. today to compete with professionals in service contests without impairing their amateur standing.

The A. A. U. executive committee announced unanimous approval of an eight-point program agreed upon a week ago by Maj. Gen. M. A. Reckord, commanding general of the Third Army Corps, and a special A. A. U. committee to cover the relations of the A. A. U. and service men.

The vote, completed today by mail, was the first unanimous executive committee ballot in recent years.

The policy which the A. A. U. has agreed to follow is substantially the same as that group observed during the last war. In effect, it provides:

1. While in service a man's amateur status shall not be affected by participation with or against professionals in service events or informal games.

2. One who was a professional athlete before entering the service shall not be eligible to compete in A. A. U. sanctioned events, tournaments, or championships.

3. An amateur in the service may not compete in a professional contest as an individual or member of a team for his own personal benefit under any circumstances and may only compete in such professional contests when they are held for the benefit of his company, regiment, or other official service fund or a recognized charity, and then only if he has received authority to do so from his commanding officer.

Hopkins Netmen Beat A. U., 6 to 3

Two losses in a row was the record of the American University tennis team following its 6-to-3 defeat by Johns Hopkins yesterday. Navy previously downed the Eagles.

Only one three-set match marked hostilities yesterday. In the first singles American's Doolittle, after losing the first set, 4—6, came back to down Pardew in the next two, 8—6 and 9—7.

One A. U. point came as the result of a forfeit in the doubles.

Complete results:

Singles—Doolittle (A) defeated Pardew, 4—6, 8—6, 9—7; Hobbs (H) defeated Miller, 7—5, 6—3; Neilson (A) defeated Middlecamt, 6—4, 6—1; Stern (H) defeated Manchester, 6—3, 6—4; Bosworth (H) defeated Williams, 6—2, 7—5; Brown (H) defeated Pribam, 6—2, 6—1.

Doubles—Pardew and Hobbs (H) defeated Doolittle and Miller, 6—4, 6—3; Weis and Middlecamt (H) defeated McGraw and Johnson, 6—0, 6—0.

Publisher Charley Paddock Here; He Used to Run a Little

Famed Olympic Sprinter Is California Publisher; Is Army-Navy Committeeman

Charles W. Paddock, who modestly admits that he "used to be a runner," is in town for a few days en route to the American Newspaper Publisher's Association convention in New York. At the Mayflower, where he and Mrs. Paddock are staying, the former Olympic sprinter said last night that he doesn't do any running these days. He's too busy publishing the Pasadena Star News, of which he is vice president and general manager.

Charley worked for the paper as reporter and editorial writer even before his first Olympic triumph in 1920. "After that they decided I must know something about sports," he explained, "so I started a syndicated sports column. But you can only go so far with that sort of thing and I finally changed over to the business end. When the publisher passed on, they looked around for someone and all they could find was me."

Paddock also starred in the Olympics of '24 and '28. When he wasn't running or writing columns, he was making personal appearances at high school assemblies. "I used to talk at four or five schools a day," he said last night. "That was the only way I could get any money out of it!"

His principal extracurricular activity now is the chairmanship of the Citizens' Committee for the Army and Navy in southern California and Arizona. He's in Washington to confer with the President's Committee, which directs the organization's activities.

Yankees Tally 3 Runs in 9th, Beat Nats, 8-5

he followed Case's walk with a long double against the left-field wall. The Nats picked up another lonesome run in the second when Repass walked and scored on a single by Gomez and Wilson's infield out. Estalella's homer produced a third-inning run, and Spence fetched another home in the fourth when his second double to left scored Gomez, who had walked. They got another run in the fifth when Estalella and Evans rapped doubles against the left-field wall with one out, but Breuer entered the game at that point and the Nats were done for the day.

The Yanks cut the Nats' lead two in the third inning on a walk to Rizzuto and Henrich's triple off the right-field wall and in the fourth they tied the score at 3-3 after Keller, Gordon and Dickey rapped Wilson for singles to center before anybody was out. In the fifth they took a temporary 5-4 lead, getting two runs in the inning.

Henrich beat out a bunt to Estalella to open the inning and DiMaggio drew a walk from Wilson. Keller flied out, but Gordon doubled down the left-field line to score Henrich. Cathey got the pitching job at that point and filled the bases by walking Dickey. He got rid of Levy on a pop foul but forced in a run by walking Gomez.

Devitt Takes 18-2 Beating From Western

The Western High nine had little more than a workout with Devitt Prep yesterday in preparing for today's interhigh opener with Wilson, beating the Devittmen, 18 to 2, on the winner's field.

Western scored five times in the first inning and eight more in the second off only six hits, taking advantage of a combination of walks, errors, wild pitches, hit batsmen and passed balls.

Alex Papanicolas was the stick star for the winners with a perfect day at bat, consisting of two doubles and a single.

Baseball Heads Meet to Map War Program

Navy camps, promotion of the sale of war savings stamps and entertainment of service men both by admitting them to games and by visiting them in their camps.

Landis said after the conference today that the possibility of organizing a service team for the second all-star game still was open and it seemed likely that whatever suggestions were agreed upon today had to be submitted to the War and Navy Departments for approval.

More than three score major league players have entered the service, but no one is certain how many of these could be made available for a ball game. Mickey Harris, a leading left-hander of the Boston Red Sox last year, is known to be in the Canal Zone.

12,242 Fans See Columbus Win, 13 to 2

Chicago, April 16 (AP).—The Columbus Red Birds, selected by American Association Baseball Writers to duplicate their title victory of last year, came up to all expectations today and so did attendance figures as the league began its forty-first season.

The defending champions dealt Indianapolis its first opening day defeat since 1931 by pounding three pitchers for 15 hits and a 13-to-2 triumph before a Hoosier crowd of 12,242 persons, top attendance for the day.

Total attendance for the league was more than 47,000 which George Trautman, association president, said was the best mark in a decade. This figure included some 15,000 persons at the St. Paul game at Milwaukee, which weather halted after one inning.

Columbus got its attack operating at Indianapolis in the very first inning, scoring twice off Oral Hildebrand. After three innings, Hildebrand was removed for a pinch hitter, but the Red Bird attack continued against Walt Tauscher and Glen Fletcher.

Chevy Chase Spring Golf Card Released

Minus the annual invitation championship for the first time since 1911 and with the Independence Day Cup substituted for the Hungarian Cup on July 4, the spring portion of the Chevy Chase Club golf schedule was released yesterday by Golf Committee Chairman Frank Reeside.

The French High Commission Cup play will be the usual opening event, with qualifying starting April 27 and the match play finals slated for May 23.

The Victor Kauffmann Cup will be up as usual on May 30 while the Treasurer's Cup will be up for the four-ball handicap championship.

The club championship will again be held as a medal play event but entrants will have from June 6 to 21 to turn in the four 18-hole rounds.

The women's card is made up of the already announced Keefer Cup and District championship dates, plus the French High Commission Cup.

Men's Spring Schedule

April 27-May 9—Qualifying rounds, French High Commission Cup; May 11-23, French High Commission match play.
May 30—Victor Kauffmann Memorial Day Trophy play.
June 6-21—Horstmann Cup for club championship, 72-hole medal play; one round any four days between dates.
June 8-20—William P. Ham Treasurer's Cup, four-ball handicap play.
July 4—Independence Day Cup.

Women's Schedule

April 28-29—Keefer Cup.
May 18-June 6—French High Commission Cup.
June 15-19—District W. G. A. women's championship.

Wesley Stars With 191 in Pin League

Elmer Wesley's all-time league record game of 191 not only sparked the Brookland Merchants League but helped his Diamond Cab team chalk up an all-time record game of 670 last night. Wesley's total for the single was 14 sticks better than the old mark and the team game count increased the previous high by two pins. Lewis Yates' 424 set was high for Washington Oil Burner and helped win three from Rudy's Tavern. DePerini Delicatessen totaled 1769 for hig hset and also won three games from Hite's Service, while the Friars Club white-washed The Tavern. University Delicatessen and Washington Oil Burner are tied for first with the former leading by pinfall.

ARLINGTON

Bill Schubert's 146 game for F & H Parking led his team to high game of 583 in the Arlington Recreation League with Ralph Smith's 365 set for the Virginia Ramblers taking honors. Heflin Plumbers totaled 1603 for high team set with Heflin's No. 2 white-washing the Fairfax Country Club quintet.

SILVER SPRING

The Silver Spring Ladies League was sparked by Hazel Swett's 139 game for Seven Up and Mary Heine's 373 set that led her House & Hermann girls to high team set of 1574 and a sweep over Hendrick's Service. Wright's Floors rolled 551 for high team game. The Kay-Rene girls scored the only other white-wash, taking three from TW & L Brick.

ARCADIA

Rosemary Stull's 142 for RFC No. 1 and Bee Foresburg's 355 set for ICC topped the Ladies Federal League with RFC No. 1 and ICC sharing the team highs after respective pinfalls of 564 and 1573.

College Golf Medal to Blum; Stewart Fails

By the Associated Press

Athens, Ga., April 16.—Stocky Arnold Blum, of Macon, Ga., who knows the ups and downs of the Athens Country Club like the wrinkles in his shirt front, put the knowledge to good use today in two sub-par rounds to become medalist of the eighth annual Southern Intercollegiate Golf Tournament.

While National Intercollegiate Champion Earl Stewart, of Louisiana State, blew up and failed to qualify, Blum, a University of Georgia junior, led a field of 60 shotmakers over the par 73 course with 71-69—140. He finished two strokes ahead of Duke's Bill Goldthorpe, a broad-shouldered sophomore from Haddon Field, N. J., who matched the medalist mark posted last year by Stewart.

Dale Morey, of L. S. U., and Grover Poole, of Duke, each with 144, tied for third.

Blum, as low man among Southeastern Conference entries, automatically won the conference individual championship. Louisiana State, with Morey, Stewart, Ben Downing and George Sharpe, posting a combined 597, won the Southern and Southeastern team championships. Duke was second at 598.

Dunlap Victor, Moves Toward Amateur Title

By the Associated Press

Pinehurst, N. C., April 16.—George T. Dunlap, jr., of Pinehurst, a perennial winner, seemed on his way to win another North and South amateur golf championship today after defeating Harry Offutt, jr., of St. Petersburg, Fla., one up, in a quarterfinal match of the annual tourney here.

The former national amateur champion scored a two-under-par 70 and needed it, for Offutt held on to the home green and had had a medal of 71.

Dan Carmichael, of Columbus, Ohio, beat Ralph Strafaci, of Brooklyn, N. Y., 3 and 2, and Medalist Powell Crichton, jr., of Bronxville, N. Y., defeated William Peete, of Warrenton, N. C., 4 and 2.

In semifinals tomorrow Crichton will play Goodes and Dunlap will meet Carmichael.

AUCTION SALES 8

ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers.

TRUSTEES' SALE OF TWO-STORY BRICK DWELLING NO. 3804 W STREET, N.W., CONTAINING 6 ROOMS AND TWO BATHS, HOT-WATER HEAT, GAS FURNACE.

By virtue of a deed of trust recorded in Liber No. 7467, folio 383, et seq., one of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of premises, on WEDNESDAY, THE TWENTY-SECOND DAY OF APRIL, 1942, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described property in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Lot 157 in Nellie M. L. Jenkins' subdivision in Square 1314 as per plat recorded in the office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia in Liber 109 at folio 130.

TERMS OF SALE: One-third of the purchase price payable in cash, the remainder payable in monthly installments of $10.00 for each $1,000.00, including interest at 5½ per cent secured by first deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash at option of purchaser. A deposit of $300.00 required of purchaser at sale. Examination of title, conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell the property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C., or deposit may be forfeited, or without forfeiting deposit trustees may avail themselves of any legal or equitable rights against defaulting purchaser.

JOE PALOOKA — The Bell — BY HAM FISHER

---SHAKE HANDS AND COME OUT FIGHTING.
SY'ME TO YOU.
THIS WOULD BRING A MILLION DOLLAR GATE IN NEW YORK.
I SAY-- WE'RE IN LUCK, WOT?
THE BOYS SPARRED CAUTIOUSLY, LOOKING FOR OPENINGS--- PARRY STARTED THE ACTION BY TRYING A SHORT CHOPPING RIGHT---IT CAUGHT PALOOKA ON THE SHOULDER--
'E'S GOOD, PARRY IS. 'OW ABAHT A BET?
YOU SAID A MOUTHFUL, PAL! HOW MUCH? AN' NO REGRETS LATER.
THERE WAS SOME BODY PUNCHING BUT NOT MUCH DAMAGE--THE REFEREE SEPARATED THEM AND PALOOKA JABBED PARRY'S NOSE---

WINNIE WINKLE — Pa Runs Interference — BY BRANNER

H'MMM! DAN AN' AD BOTH VISITIN' WINNIE-- WHAT'S AD BUTTIN' IN THERE FOR? I'LL HAVE TO ELIMINATE THAT BIRD!
HELLO, DAN! HELLO, AD! SAY, AD, COULD I SEE YOU IN THE KITCHEN A MINUTE?
WHY-- ER--- UH-- ALL RIGHT!
IT'S YOUR MOVE, AD-- SAY, YOU. HAVEN'T GOT YOUR MIND ON THE GAME!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — BY CLIFFORD McBRIDE

JANE ARDEN — Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. — Let Her Die — BY MONTE BARRETT and RUSSELL ROSS

TROUBLE— THE F.B.I. TRAILED OUR MESSENGER!
"THE TURK" IS ON HIS WAY TO SEE "DR. Z" MASTER NAZI SPY—
NOW!
FRIEDA ARROYEZ WAS DELAYED THREE DAYS BECAUSE THE F.B.I. WAS TRAILING HER— SHE GAVE THEM THE SLIP, BUT THEY'LL CATCH HER IF SHE TRIES TO GO BACK—
SHE WANTS US TO HELP HER ESCAPE— AFTER ALL, SHE'S BEEN A FAITHFUL AGENT FOR A LONG TIME AND ENDANGER OUR WORK? THAT'S THE TROUBLE WITH AGENTS— THEY'RE TOO HUMAN!
SHE'S KNOWN NOW—HER USEFULNESS IS OVER— LET HER DIE!

SUPERMAN — Paging Superman — BY JERRY SIEGEL and JOE SHUSTER

EVERY OTHER REPORTER IN TOWN SEEMS TO BE PRESENT.
HOW ABOUT IT, GRADY?
NOTHIN' DOING. THE CHIEF DOESN'T WANT TO SEE ANYONE RIGHT NOW—ESPECIALLY REPORTERS!
FINE ATTITUDE FOR YOU TO TAKE— AND AFTER I ALWAYS TOOK SUCH PAINS TO SPELL YOUR NAME CORRECTLY!
SURREPTITIOUSLY, CLARK SLIPS AWAY FROM THE OTHER REPORTERS....
I'LL NEVER GET RESULTS THAT WAY.
THIS IS A JOB FOR— SUPERMAN!

ODD BODKINS — BY FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

BODKINS, YOU'VE WASTED MY TIME WITH YOUR SUSPICIONS! NOW GET OUT OF HERE! WHO EVER HEARD OF A HEN LAYING MESSAGES ON AN EGG?
IT'S A LOT OF FIDDLE-FADDLE!
ORDERLY, WHERE'S MY BREAKFAST?
WE RAN OUT OF EGGS, SIR!
SO WE BOUGHT ONE FROM A MRS. TWEEDY! BUT WHEN THE COOK FRIED IT, IT WAS COVERED WITH A MESSAGE, CAPTAIN!
MESSAGE?
WHAT DID IT SAY?

The Columbia Broadcasting System has concluded arrangements for regular broadcasts of topnotch network commercial programs to the United States military forces across the seas.

Columbia's two new 50,000-watt transmittters—WCBX (15,270 kc, 19.6 meters) and WCRC (17,830 kc, 16.8 meters)—are slated to carry these programs at periods when they have maximum audiences of service men abroad. Various encampments also are to record the programs so that soldiers and sailors on duty at the broadcast time may enjoy them at their leisure.

First of the CBS programs to ride the transatlantic short waves is the full-hour "Star Theater," with Fred Allen, Kenny Baker, Portland Hoffa, Al Goodman's orchestra and the mighty Allen Art Players. The fighting men hear these every Wednesday, beginning April 15, from 7 to 8 a. m. EWT. The program is heard on the network every Sunday at 9 p. m.

Other "delayed broadcasts" which CBS is to transmit include:

"Radio Theater," directed by Cecil B. DeMille, with stars of stage and screen, every Tuesday, beginning April 21, from 7 to 8 p. m. EWT, and "Great Moments in Music," musical program with Jean Tennyson and guest stars, every Saturday, beginning April 18, between 7:30 and 8 a. m., EWT.

The Post Radio Highlights

10:30 a. m., WOL—Mme. Chiang Kai-shek speaks from China.

1:30 p. m., WRC—"Government and the Press:" Archibald MacLeish, director of the Office of Facts and Figures, addresses the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

5:30, WJSV—Paul V. McNutt, FSS administrator, speaks to the convention of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

8:30, WRC—Grantland Rice makes it two sportswriters on Information Please this first Friday night in baseball season, facing the mike with colleague John Kieran. Levant and F. P. A. also are on hand.

9, WMAL—With a "Foreign Correspondent" from Bataan to Melbourne is the "March of Time's" half hour tonight. Reporter Melville Jacoby speaks from Australia.

9:30, WMAL—Former Postmaster General James A. Farley takes to acting on the new, novel Celebrity Theater, playing the lead in a political story by Margaret Culkin Banning, "The Good Party Man."

Contract Bridge

A three-no-trump hand which required skillful play is shown in today's box. South made his contract by overtaking a winning card in order to keep an entry in dummy, where he had his long suit. When West opened the spade seven, a fourth-best lead, declarer applied the rule of 11 (he subtracted 7 from 11 and knew that there were four cards higher than West's seven-spot in the other three hands, and that these were accounted for between North and South, and saw that dummy's nine would win the trick.

East followed suit with a small spade, but South overtook the nine with his ace. To make his contract he had to run the heart suit, and it was probable that the defender with the heart ace would hold up until the second lead, thus shutting South out of dummy unless he could find a re-entry.

Declarer next played the king of hearts, East ducked and South continued the jack, overtaking with dummy's queen. East won the ace and returned a spade. West played small and North's jack took the trick. Declarer then ran three hearts and the ace, king of diamonds and the ace of clubs for game. He won two spades, four hearts, two diamonds and one club.

If declarer had allowed the spade nine to hold the first trick, he would have been unable to get into dummy by a spade lead, as West would block the second or third round of the suit with his king, according to declarer's play. By overtaking with the ace, South insured a spade entry, as he could then lead twice toward North's queen, jack—whether East led back the suit or not—and West's king could not stop both leads.

HOW WASHINGTON APARTMENTS LEAD DOUBLE-LIVES

Every square inch counts in Washington. Living-rooms do duty as bedrooms. Dens double as guest-rooms. One-room apartments lead an all-purpose existence. There's no hocus-pocus about it. No mumbo-jumbo magic. It's just old-fashioned Yankee ingenuity.

When the mass migration started toward Washington, The Hecht Co. put its best brains to work. Already our Bedding Department had won coast-to-coast recognition in a national poll . . . and now we went out to break our own record. We were determined to meet every need of this new chameleon existence. And we think we can.

When pretty Sally T. told us she had an annual salary of $1440 and a yen for a bohemian studio we put a mattress on box springs for her, and the box springs on legs . . . and showed her how to dress it up with a throw and pillows.

When Mrs. C. who could only find a one bedroom apartment for her family of three needed a divan to go with her 18th century living-room furniture we filled the bill with a Lawson "Hide-a-Bed."

When young Mrs. R. presented her problem . . . small wall space and endless guests, we sent her home with a convertible love seat. When Major B. confessed to cramped quarters and a young nephew as a constant visitor, we rose to the occasion with a chair-bed.

So far we haven't been stumped. We have honey-colored maple divans for Americana lovers, blonde-finished maple for modern enthusiasts. We have conventional divans and upholstered divans. We have them for budgeteers and high salaried executives. And we have them so cleverly designed that no one would suspect their utilitarian purpose. Bedding—Fourth Floor—The Hecht Co.
